Battered Finns Hold New Defenses; Turks Prepare for War in Near East

RUSSIAN CANNON BOMBARD VIIPURI AS FRONT SHIFTS

18,000 Soviet Soldiers Slain or Captured by Ghost Army; Invaders Relentlessly Pound Line

HELSINKI, Feb. 19.—(AP) Russian artillery tonight dropped shells regularly into Viipuri, now a definite part of the front as a result of Soviet penetration into the Mannerheim fortified zone, a reliable informant said.

"This does not mean the city is in danger of capture, but that it now is definitely a part of the front," the informant said.

Shortly before an official communique had told of the completed destruction of the 18th Red army division northeast of Lake Ladoga by Finland's ghost-like fighters who for weeks parried and thrust until 18,000 Russians were dead or captured.

The communique also said Soviet attacks against the new Finnish Karelian isthmus positions, to which the battered Manneheim line army had been compelled to withdraw, has been repelled.

The British destroyer Daring was torpedoed and 157 lives lost; Norway may appeal to the League of Nations to settle the Altmark incident. These and other war stories and a map of the Finnish front appear on Page 4.

With the Russians continuing their unrelenting attack, Finnish spokesmen said their new positions were "sound," despite the enforced withdrawal.

The Russians' new positions from west of Summa toward Muolaa presumably permitted the Russians to bring their artillery closer so that Viipuri, Finland's second largest city and center of Karelian Christianity for 700 years, was subject to regular shellfire. Heretofore the city has been 20 miles from the front.

(The Russian communique early today said the Red army had advanced to within six miles of Viipuri on the Gulf of Finland, and previously reported an advance to within four miles farther east.)

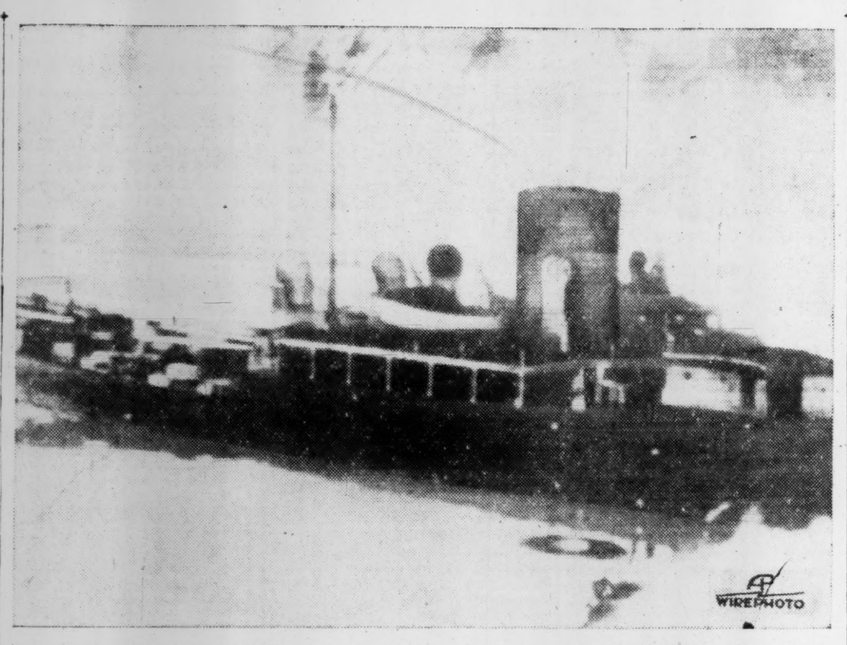

Soviet planes came over Viipuri in waves today, and the city was bombed several times.

The infantry division that was isolated 15 miles from the Russian frontier and 10 miles north of Lake Ladoga was chopped up "piece by piece," and the final blow struck yesterday with capture of the division's last stronghold.

Latest official figures on booty captured included 100 tanks, 58 guns of various types, 12 anti-tank guns, 75 motor vehicles, 23 tractors, 44 field kitchens and more than 60 machine guns.

The German prison ship Altmark, from which the British navy rescued 300 British sailors, prisoners of war, lies in the ice at Gjessingfjord, Norway, so close to shore that sightseers could see blood staining the fjord ice. Britain, Norway and Germany raged in a dispute yesterday over the Altmark's fate and the fact whether she was armed.

Long Masses Troops In His Louisiana Race

3,500 Soldiers Assemble as State Votes for Governor Today; Old 'Huey' Machine Opposed by Veterans' Brigade Aiding Reform Candidate.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Louisiana's long, bitter gubernatorial primary campaign, fought out midst ever-widening charges of federal law violations, ended tonight with 3,500 national guardsmen mobilized for duty tomorrow.

Governor Earl K. Long, standard-bearer for the machine his brother, Huey P. Long, put into power in 1928, and opposed by "Reform" Candidate Sam Houston Jones, ordered the mobilization and said troops would be used against the World War veterans' "Jackson brigade" of poll watchers if they started trouble.

The threat and expectation of violence grew, as zero hour neared for the embattled forces of the "honest election" brigade mustered behind State Senator James A. Noe, arch foe of Governor Long. After being eliminated in the January 16 first primary, Noe joined the coalition of anti-administration forces behind Jones, 42-year-old Lake Charles attorney and newcomer to politics.

"There iwll be squads with trucks, machine guns, gas equipment, and whatever else they need to dampen Jimmy's enthusiasm," Long said in announcing the militia call.

"I just hope Jimmy Noe is in front of his Jackson brigade tomorrow," the Governor added.

"I've ordered out the militia to preserve peace, law and order wherever they may be needed. It's almost certain they will be called out in New Orleans," Long said.

Opposition ranks frequently have alleged widespread vote frauds in the past, including the first primary, and these now are under federal grand jury investigation.

Long said "crack troops" from as far distant as Shreveport might be dispatched to New Orleans, the administration machine stronghold, to augment 1,200 troops stationed here in case trouble develops.

Noe, buoyant rough-and-tumble former oil worker, promptly sneered at the whole procedure, saying the mobilization and appointment of 1,600 armed special police for poll duty tomorrow was "to frighten voters away from the polls."

HOLY LAND EXHIBIT WILL OPEN TODAY

Animated Model Shows Christ and Disciples in Authentic Settings.

The Holy Land has been rebuilt.

This miracle of man's ingenuity, directed toward the faithful reproduction in miniature of the land where Christ walked, talked and lived, will be opened formally at 11 o'clock this morning at 489 Peachtree street.

Atlanta ministers, invited to view the exhibit today as guests of The Constitution, will be present when the switch is thrown that begins the animation of 740 moving figures on the model, and illuminates its hundreds of tiny lights.

Immediately thereafter, the ministers and general public will begin to view the myriad wonders of the 44x18-foot model of Palestine, with its 124 scenes taken from the life of Christ, 1,200 stationary figures and 60,000,000 individual pieces.

Proudly on hand will be Salvatore and Joseph Gauci, creators of the exhibit, who have been busily engaged here for the past week assembling the model, which will be exhibited for a limited time under The Constitution's sponsorship, with proceeds going to charity.

Admission prices are 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children under 12. Hours are from 11 o'clock until 4:30 o'clock each afternoon, and from 7 until 9:30 o'clock each night, excepting Sundays. Hours on Sunday are the same at night, but in the afternoon the exhibit will not open until 1 o'clock. It must close each afternoon for a few hours to permit the tiny motors to cool.

LOAN SHARK FOES ANNOUNCE PLANS

Bar Group's Eradication Drive Includes Recovery of Illegal Interest.

The Atlanta Bar Association's drive against loan sharks, who charge interest rates as high as 520 per cent a year, took definite form yesterday in a conference of leaders to map procedure.

The session, held in the Lawyers Club, was attended by President Philip H. Alston, Chairman Victor K. Meador, of a special committee to enforce the usury laws; E. Smythe Gambrell, John McCallum, J. L. R. Boyd, B. D. Murphy, Hal Lindsay and Scott Lay.

Three Hour Meeting.

It was announced that the meeting, which consumed nearly three hours, was devoted to a survey of the field. The first decision reached was to work for complete cooperation of employers with the movement to end "iniquitous rates" not only in the interest of the direct victim but of legitimate business houses, large and small, who suffer from his inability to pay.

Full support of the effort by the Lawyers Club membership was assured. The movement was described as the first such effort by the association.

Recover Illegal Interest.

A further session, to be held probably Friday, is to be devoted to setting up actual machinery through appointment of subcommittees on criminal prosecution of usurers, recovery of illegally charged sums and remedial legislation.

"Our work will be greatly simplified," declared Chairman Meador, "if employers will assure employees of the safety of their jobs if they reveal the toils in which they are caught. A stern employer attitude is the sharks' handiest weapon of extortion, for the man in fear of his job will pay in silence, and the shark thrives."

Fired 'WPA Loafer' Hailed as Pure Genius

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Federal Judge Carroll C. Hincks, looking over the record of a man he was about to sentence for counterfeiting, remarked from the bench today:

"I notice he was dismissed from the WPA for loafing. Any man discharged from the WPA for this is a genius."

CABINET TO APPLY NEW DEFENSE LAW TO MEET MENACE

Government Repeats It Is on Side of Allies; Papers Attack Berlin for Policy of 'Bluff.'

By HUGO SPECK.

ANKARA, Turkey, Feb. 19. (UP)—The government tonight decided to apply the Turkish national defense law, which will give it virtual dictatorial powers, and newspapers warned the people that, as non-belligerent allies of Britain and France, they must be prepared for a "supreme effort" this spring.

It was understood that national assembly (parliament) would be convoked tomorrow or Wednesday to confirm the government's "full powers" and that measures would be instituted immediately to get the nation's economic, financial and military structure in shape to cope with a possible extension of the European war to the Near East.

Germany Attacked.

Newspapers in Istanbul attacked Germany, bitterly accusing Berlin of a policy of "bluff" and "propaganda."

Reliable informants said the government's decision means that the foreign situation is such that Turkey must be prepared for any eventuality including "drastic action."

The decision caused widespread popular concern as it was feared that the government foresaw a situation which might include this country's entry into the war.

The assertion of Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu on the eve of the recent Balkan entente conference that Turkey is "not neutral" was reaffirmed.

Feels Menaced.

Application of the defense law was interpreted to mean that Turkey feels she and her Allies, Britain and France, are menaced in the Balkans and the Near East.

The defense act contains measures for strengthening Turkey's military defenses, for control of imports and exports by the government and for reorganization of various industries to supply the needs of the Turkish armed forces.

May Mobilize.

The law empowers the cabinet to apply general or partial mobilization when it considers that an extraordinary situation has arisen.

Newspapers warned Berlin that Germany has no chance of maneuvering this country into a position of "neutrality" while authoritative informants said the government considers it to be Turkey's duty to make every effort to assure the desired outcome (that is, an Allied victory) of the war.

Wife Files Cross Bill in Roosevelt Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Betsey Cushing Roosevelt filed a cross-complaint today to the divorce suit of James Roosevelt, son of the President.

She asked a divorce on the grounds of cruelty and desertion.

The action, filed through Attorney Neil S. McCarthy, asked court approval of a property settlement which she said had been agreed upon and which provides a payment of certain sums for the support of herself and their two children, Sara Delano Roosevelt, 7, and Kate Roosevelt, 4.

Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, sued for divorce here Thursday, charging desertion. Both petitions said the plaintiffs were married in Brookline, Mass., June 4, 1930, and separated November 1, 1938.

WELFARE BOARD CONSIDERS PLAN TO REDUCE COSTS

Director Proposes Cut in Personnel, Beginning in May; Groups Oppose Smaller Staff.

The Fulton County Board of Public Welfare yesterday postponed for further study any move of Commissioner I. Gloer Hailey for an immediate cut in the department's administrative staff but took under advisement a program suggested by Henry B. Mays Jr., the department's director, to reduce the monthly operating costs by $742, beginning in May.

This action featured a long monthly session of the board yesterday, attended by a large crowd, before which Mays defended present operating costs of the department and representatives of several groups opposed any reduction in personnel.

The program suggested by Mr. Mays provides for the dismissal of nine employes and the demotion of two others. In offering the program he said he could not recommend drastic cuts in personnel at this time when winter emergencies still face the department.

Action Postponed.

No formal action was taken on the director's proposal. At the suggestion of Dean Paden, welfare board member, it was taken under advisement until a called meeting of the board.

Specifically it calls for the dismissal of one supervisor, one Negro case worker, one Negro senior visitor, one white senior visitor, one white junior visitor, one part-time bookkeeper, one Negro stenographer, two file clerks and the demotion of two assistant supervisors to the status of workers with attendant reductions in salaries.

Before going into the question of reducing operating costs, the board instructed the director to investigate and report on a plan to establish the federal government's food stamp plan here.

Double Relief.

This move, sponsored by Albert Gossett, would provide for issuance of blue stamps for which relief clients would be given food in addition to the other relief they are now getting. Gossett said the plan, if adopted, will give the relief clients almost double what they are now getting. He also pointed out that in Jefferson county, Alabama, it was established at no additional expense to the welfare department.

Mays in defending administration costs of the department submitted a report which listed annual savings totaling $9,313.20 which he had already put into effect since becoming head of the department on November 1, and before County Commissioner I. Gloer Haley in his letter of February 10 asked for the reductions. Among other things it showed a reduction in personnel costs of $3,600.

"This is just a start," said W. G. Mitchell, welfare board member. "It indicates that our director is taking his job seriously."

Gossett then added:

"It just goes to show that we can save."

Mitchell then said "there is never any excuse for excessive expenditures for operating the department. I think the director has made a very good showing."

Mays then read his program for reductions in May, pointing out "while I do not agree that our operating expenses have been exceedingly heavy, there is no one more anxious than I to save money for the benefit of our relief families.

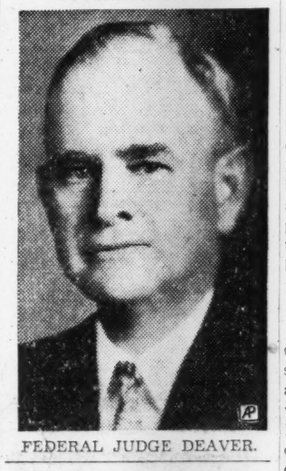

"At the same time I am anxious that our standards of service remain high with an adequate and properly equipped staff.

"This justifies my contention," Gossett said. "In my opinion we 100 Leaders Meet Here To Discuss Federal Aid for Chain of Fields.

More than 100 air-minded representatives from seven southern states met here yesterday morning to discuss how to obtain part of a federal fund of $125,000,000 for regional airport development which will make Atlanta a more important aeronautical crossroads and lead to the construction of one or more additional airports in the metropolitan area.

Sponsored joinly by the aviation committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Georgia Aviation Commission, the delegates, many of whom are airport operators from North Carolina to Mississippi, will begin development of a definite program which "will enhance the value of individual airports by the construction of more landing fields."

Brought together were such experts as Grant Mason Jr. and Major A. B. McMullen, both of the

FEDERAL OFFICER WILL GET PAPERS TO SERVE TODAY

National Guardsmen Will Protect Governor's Person, Sources Close to the Executive Declare.

A clash between Governor Rivers and federal authorities was impending last night as Judge Bascom Deaver, of the United States court at Macon, enjoined the chief executive from using the national guard to prevent W. L. Miller's return to the highway board.

Following the order Governor Rivers announced: "I certainly do not propose to abdicate as Governor."

Beyond that, it was also learned from a source close to the Governor that he will continue to guard the state highway building by the use of national guardsmen, and in addition protect his own person with troops in the event that an attempt is made to seize him on charges of being in contempt of a federal court order.

To Reach Marshal Today.

In a sweeping and far-reaching decision, which came as the state supreme court heard arguments on appeals in the superior court cases which the Governor has effectively circuited by his martial law edict, Judge Deaver held that Miller is being deprived of his legal rights by the Governor's course.

Judge Deaver's order will reach United States Marshal Charles H. Cox for service on the Governor today.

Governor Rivers immediately made public the letter he addressed to Judge Deaver last week when he ignored the court's summons to answer Miller's injunction plea. In this letter, the chief executive again reiterated his announced plan to maintain the functions of the executive, judicial and legislative branches of the government separate and said to the court:

"My desire is to humbly, conscientiously and yet steadfastly protect the sovereignty of the state of Georgia, its right to regulate and supervise its internal political affairs, and to maintain that division of governmental powers made mandatory by the Constitution."

Supreme Court Actions.

The state supreme court took the Miller cases, which the ousted chairman won in the lower courts, under advisement. It then took up hearing on the appealed contempt cases from Judge W. R. Smith's Lanier superior court and will conclude these hearings today. No decision from the supreme court is expected in several weeks.

In his order from Macon, Judge

Deaver Conclusions

MACON, Ga., Feb. 19.—Here are Judge Bascom Deaver's conclusions of law read yesterday from the federal bench in the case of W. L. Miller versus Governor Rivers and Adjutant General John E. Stoddard:

1. The court has jurisdiction over this suit under section 24-(1) of the judicial code (28 USCA Sec. 41-(1), and under section 24-(14) of the judicial code (28 USCA Sec. 41-(14), and under 8 USCA Sec. 43.

2. The office of chairman of the state highway board of Georgia is an office created by the laws of Georgia, for a fixed and definite term of office.

3. The Governor of the state of Georgia has no power to remove the chairman of the state highway board of Georgia during the time of office of such chairman.

ACTION OF RIVERS "ILLEGAL AND VOID"

4. The action of the defendant, E. D. Rivers, Governor of Georgia, in attempting to remove the plaintiff, W. L. Miller, as chairman of the state highway board of Georgia was beyond the power of the said defendant, and was illegal and void.

5. Under the laws of Georgia, the chairman of the state highway board of Georgia cannot be removed from his office or deprived of the right to fill said office and exercise the duties thereof and receive the emoluments thereof during his term of office, by the Governor, or by any tribunal, without notice and an opportunity of being heard, and a removal of such officer without such notice and opportunity of being heard would amount to a denial of due process of law and equal protection of the law.

6. The rights of plaintiff to hold his office and to perform the duties thereof unmolested have been adjudicated by the state court by judgments not reversed or set

ROTARY PLEDGED TO FIGHT INSANITY FOLLOWING WAR

Molnar Declares 'Big War Brewing' in Detailing Part Group Will Play in Chaotic Times.

When the insanity that follows war comes at the end of the present one, 210,000 Rotarians are going to be in there battling to maintain a common-sense balance, Tibor T. Molnar, of Cuthbert, told about 200 of that group yesterday at the weekly Rotary Club luncheon.

Molnar, with an accent that would be envied even by so great a practitioner as Francis Lederer, is a past district governor of Rotary, and represented it at the international conference at Geneva, Switzerland. He's a native of Austria-Hungary, educated in law in New York, and an attorney in the south Georgia town. He was principal speaker as the Atlanta club celebrated its part of the 35th birthday anniversary of the international organization.

"The world's gone crazy since 1918," Molnar complained as he built up his explanation for the part that Rotarians and members of other luncheon clubs will play when the chaos that comes after war tears at the vitals of all countries.

He predicted that a "big war is brewing" and admitted that when its over, no one knows what will happen. No matter what, he said, the members of the Rotary clubs all over the world will be holding their weekly luncheons, calmly resisting all forms of "insanity" and madness, holding to the methods of common sense. H. G. Wells, the English philosopher, sees revolutions galore to follow this war.

Rotarians, preaching their principle of international service to the world, as they do vocational and community service locally, can even prevent wars, Molnar added.

"At Geneva, three Rotarian delegates who were prime ministers of three small countries which were on the verge of war, quietly settled their problems and no war came," he told newspaper reporters.

Joel C. Harris, former district governor of Rotary, introduced Molnar.

Mate of Vivien Gets Conditional Divorce Decree

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Herbert Leigh Holman, barrister, was granted a conditional divorce decree today from Actress Vivien Leigh.

(Such decrees usually are made final after a probationary period of six months.)

The suit was undefended. Holman named as corespondent Actor Laurence Olivier, whose wife, Jill Esmond, was granted a divorce January 22, naming Miss Leigh as corespondent.

Holman was given custody of the child borne to him by Miss Leigh.

He testified that in 1937, five years after they were married, his wife went to Denmark to appear with Olivier in a Shakespearean company.

On her return, he said, she told him that she was in love with Olivier and separated from him.

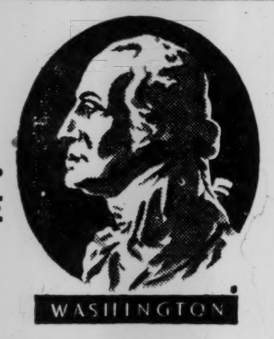

DOHERTY INVESTORS CHARGE SECRET GAINS

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—An action filed in state supreme court today charged that Cities Service Company stockholders lost $10,000,000 as a result of "secret profits and commissions" made by the late utilities magnate, Henry L. Doherty.

The action, seeking to substitute the estate of Doherty as defendant in his stead, was begun by Frank P. Sloan, Isadore S. Schapiro and William Schneiderman in behalf of themselves and other stockholders. Sixteen present and former directors of Cities Service also were accused of having been "derelict in their duties as trustees of the Cities Service Company."

Leaders Discuss U. S. Aid for Airports in the South

Liquor Cases Lead Indictments Returned by U. S. Grand Jury

A variety of indictments were returned yesterday by the federal district grand jury, but the largest number were reserved for those charged with violation of the internal revenue law—making or possessing untaxed whisky.

In one true bill, Henry Hinton Sr., Henry Hinton Jr., James Hinton, Willie Hinton, Ralph Eugene Hinton, Russell Hinton, Sam Johnson, and Buck Hamby were charged with a conspiracy to operate 12 stills near Stockbridge, Ga., from 1936 to 1939.

William G. Cook was accused of using the mails to defraud the Caradine Hat Company of St. Louis, Mo., by sending in false orders on which he sought commission.

J. B. and Irwin Tatum were indicted on charges of defrauding the Jonesboro Production Credit Association in 1937 by obtaining a loan after representing ownership of $700 worth of mules, horses, and farm implements.

Lawrence K. Fryer was charged with stealing a package from the mails at the Atlanta Terminal railway post office, containing 50 cents in stamps.

A dozen others were named in bills accusing them of possessing untaxed liquor.

Pastor Urges Hymn Singing As Speed Gains

MANITOU SPRINGS, Colo., Feb. 19.—(AP)—The motorist with any "regard for his future abode" should sing hymns as the speedometer climbs upward, the Rev. L. C. Miller said in a safety sermon at the Mennonite church.

His selections at the different speeds:

"At 25 miles per hour, 'I'm But a Stranger Here, Heaven Is My Home'; at 45 miles, 'Nearer, My God, to Thee'; at 55 miles, 'I'm Nearing the Port and Will Soon Be at Home'; at 65 miles, 'When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder, I'll Be There'; at 75 miles, 'Lord, I'm Coming Home.'"

OHIO RIVER THAWS; EMBARGO IS LIFTED

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 19.—(AP) The Mississippi Valley Barge Line office here said today a freight embargo on the Ohio river, imposed because of ice conditions, was lifted today and that all ports were free.

"We expect no further trouble in delivering freight to all points on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers," attaches said. The order halting service for the two rivers was imposed January 25 and was lifted for the Mississippi on February 8.

STATE SOIL TESTED FOR DIET DEFICIENCY

About 25 Counties Included in Experiments of Extension Service.

Tests to determine whether there is a deficiency in the "diet" of Georgia soil are being carried on by the Georgia Experiment station in co-operation with the extension service.

Like a baby that must have its vitamins, soil must have nitrogen, phosphorus, acid, potash and lime. If there is a deficiency in any one of these, it's time for the farmer to go into action, extension service officials said.

About 25 counties from various sections of Georgia have been selected for the tests. With the cooperation of county agents in these counties, the farmers submit their soil for analysis. If a deficiency in diet develops, the farmer is notified. L. C. Olson is in charge of the soil experimental work.

POLICE CAPTURE GOAT HALTING ROAD TRAFFIC

HALETHORPE Md., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Patrolmen Charles Ripkin and Christian Kessler found a long line of cars halted and honking on Annapolis road.

At the head of the line was a frisky goat, too stubborn to get off the highway. The officers captured him, rodeo style, and traffic moved on.

14-MILE TRIP FOR HORSE SAVES OLD RESIDENCE

SARDINIA, N. Y., Feb. 19.—(AP) It took a 14-mile drive at a mile-a-minute clip to save the century-old Hiram Flint home.

As voluntary firemen watched the flames gain headway, recruit Harlan Fisher drove seven miles to fire headquarters and returned with nine lengths of hose—enough to reach the nearest water a quarter of a mile away.

LIVESTOCK SALE.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Feb. 19.—Last monthly livestock sale before the annual fat cattle show and sale to be sponsored by the Troup County Livestock Association will be held here tomorrow, Joe Hawkins, Troup county agent, ananounced. The sale will feature hogs. March 16 and 19 is the date set for the annual show and sale.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

PACT DEBATE PLAYS TO 'LIGHT' HOUSE

Only 30 Members on Floor During Fight on Hull Trade Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The debate on the Hull trade treaty program began today in the house, where Democrats praised his policy as a foundation for eventual peace and Republicans charged the administration with turning over the American markets to "peons and coolies."

None of the debate attracted very many listeners. When Representative Doughton, Democrat, New York, began the administration argument for extending the program for three years from next June 12, only 76 of the chamber's 425 members were in their seats. Attendance reached such a low ebb later on that Representative Robertson, Democrat, Virginia, asked plaintively how there could be a good fight with only 30 fighters.

A vote on the resolution will not be reached until Friday or Saturday when a full turnout of members is expected.

SOUTH'S AIRPORTS TOPIC AT PARLEY

Civil Aeronautics Authority, and Colonel Roger Q. Williams, who made the first non-stop flight from New York to Rome. The conference will consider the part to be played by the federal government in financing a national system of airports.

The pot entialities of restaurants as a source of added revenue for airports was outlined last night in a talk by Mr. Mason. He related how several European airports have increased income through this source and expressed the belief American aviation men could profit through similar methods.

"It frequently is claimed that the shortest way to a man's heart is through his stomach," he said. "Perhaps one of the shortest ways to the heart of the economic problem of airports is the same route."

Theme of the opening day was set by William K. Jenkins, of the Chamber of Commerce aviation committee, who described the benefits derived from a network of airports. An airport without feeder lines and adjacent fields in near-by communities would, he pointed out, be restricted to local business.

The construction of other fields, however, would broaden the commercial area of one airport by linking it with others. The purpose of the meeting, Jenkins said, was to organize plans which will give to the south in particular a wider and more developed airport chain.

National Problem.

Major McMullen, first speaker on the program after an address of welcome by Mayor Hartsfield, cited the CAA as favoring federal grants because "adequate airports were a problem of national concern."

"In planning for new airports," he said, "we must not think in terms of the present load of five to 15 airplanes, but in terms of 50 airplanes utilizing local facilities. The time is not far off when $1,000 airplanes, available to all who now own automobiles, will be on the market."

Following another address of welcome by Governor Rivers, Colonel Williams told the conference that airports must fit into the local situation so that taxpayers would not be overburdened by bonds and that planning of new fields or improvements on old fields should not be made out of proportion to the business expected for that field.

The conference will adjourn this morning after a brief discussion meeting.

Yankee Owner Gets Letters Claiming War-Looted Plate

That beautiful old plate which some Northern soldier looted from a Southern home during the War Between the States, and which Mrs. Edwin J. Niles, Springfield, Mass., now seeks to return to the descendants of its original owners, has aroused the interest of many who believe it could be taken from the raided plantation home of their ancestors.

Preston Davie, 435 East 52nd street, New York city, wrote Mrs. Niles:

"I think there can be no doubt that this was a plate belonging to my grandfather, General William Preston, C. S. A., of Lexington, Kentucky."

Mrs. Elizabeth Orme Block, 383 Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta, wrote in a letter that also gives a vivid picture of wartime days:

"The initials in the plate (W. P.) are the exact copy of my grandfather's silver. He was Captain Pope, of Beaufort District, S. C."

Mrs. Julia E. Custer, Montrose, Ga., also wrote Mrs. Niles that the plate might possibly have belonged to her mother's father, William Poole, a captain in the Confederate army, whose home in Hart county, Georgia, was looted.

"My mother was a small child at the time and says the plate looks like some of the china at looks like some of the china at member the details.

"I think it is a splendid gesture for you to make anyway," Mrs. Custer wrote Mrs. Niles. "It helps all of us to feel differently about the old wounds."

The story about the plate, with a complete description, appeared in The Constitution on Sunday, February 4.

Mrs. Niles, who now possesses it, does not know from what section of the South it was taken, nor under what circumstances.

She inherited the plate from her mother, who had it from her grandmother, to whom it was given by a returning soldier, who passed out several pieces from the same set to his friends.

FEDERALBANK FIRE QUICKLY PUT OUT

Control Board Blazes and Panics Employes.

The staid atmosphere of the Federal Reserve Bank on Marietta street was thrown into a noisy panic yesterday morning when an electric control board burst into flame and routed a dozen attendants from the buildings.

A crackling noise in the board was first heard by Custodian T. E. Mathew, who tore off a cover just as the switch, which controls electric power in the building, began burning.

Frightened employes of the bank returned to work after firemen pulled a switch which cut off the current and extinguished the blaze. Although work was impeded by the loss of current, there was no damage to vaults.

STATE HIGH COURT STUDIES APPEALS IN HIGHWAY ROW

Arguments Heard While Federal Judge Issues Injunction Against Governor, Military Head.

The supreme court of Georgia yesterday took under advisement appeals filed in behalf of L. L. Patten, Herman H. Watson, and Jim L. Gillis from verdicts returned against them and in favor of W. L. Miller in Miller's effort to regain the chairmanship of the state highway board.

The high court which was in session when Federal Judge Bascom Deaver at Macon issued an injunction against Governor Rivers and Adjutant General John E. Stoddard, listened to arguments for and against decisions of Superior Judge Will R. Smith of the Alapaha circuit, who ruled in Miller's favor.

A decision from the supreme court is not expected for several weeks.

Say Judge Erred.

Attorneys for the three highway commissioners combating Miller's litigations contended that Judge Smith erred in decreeing that the three should recognize Miller because, they contended, the office of chairman legally does not exist.

B. D. Murphy, appearing in behalf of Miller's successor, L. L. Patten, and board Members Herman Watson and James L. Gillis, argued Miller could not bring quo warranto proceedings to force recognition as chairman "because as a matter of law there is no such office."

He said Miller could only claim position as a board member.

James A. Branch, chief counsel for Miller, denied this contention and told the court the act of 1922 creating the office of highway board chairman had never been repealed.

Branch denied the contention of the appellants that the successor to Miller had been named because the latter had resigned and observed that if this were true it would create "an irrebuttable presumption" that the former chairman had "resigned by fiat of the Governor."

Contempt Charges Appealed.

The supreme court of the United States, Branch said, "has held that statements of a Governor, where not supported by fact, are not binding on anyone," and added, "where it affects an individual, the courts are the ones to decide whether facts exist."

Murphy and Preston Arkwright Jr. contended the issues involved were of fact and not law, and hence orders by Superior Judge Smith sustaining Miller were in error because the cases were not tried before a jury.

The high court later took up the appeals of Patten and S. Marvin Griffin, Governor Rivers' aide, who were sentenced for contempt by Judge Smith. Arguments on these cases will be finished today.

Excerpts of Rivers' Letter

Governor Rivers' letter to Judge Bascom Deaver, outlining his challenge to the federal court's authority to intervene in the Miller highway controversy, follows in part:

February 14, 1940.

Honorable Bascom S. Deaver,
United States District Judge,
Macon, Ga.

My dear Judge Deaver:

Re: W. L. Miller vs. E. D. Rivers, Governor, and John E. Stoddard, Adjutant General.

I address this letter to you and, through you, to such other judge or judges, if any, as may preside with you in this case. Inasmuch as Adjutant General John E. Stoddard is involved as the result of my official action, I write in his behalf as well as my own. His conduct in the premises has been at my direction as Governor.

The petition filed by Mr. Miller in the United States court withholds certain important facts which I think should be related to the court. For instance, the petition in the case pending in your court fails to even disclose the fact that the judgment of the lower court, which is sought to be enforced by redress to the federal court, is now on review by the supreme court of Georgia.

(The Governor then traced the legal steps taken by W. L. Miller in an effort to retain his seat as highway chairman.)

The foregoing statements are made to acquaint you with the fact that all of these five cases and the issues therein involved now are pending for adjudication in the highest tribunal in the state.

The suit in question seeks to have the federal court regulate and supervise the internal political affairs of the state of Georgia, and thereby attempts to interfere with the supreme court of Georgia in the orderly process of adjudicating the issues and procedure involved.

Certainly it is axiomatic that as between state and federal courts, the court first taking jurisdiction retains it until a final adjudication has been had.

(The Governor then cited a decision of a three-judge federal court in a similar Georgia case, in which the court held the remedy to be properly sought in state courts.)

The case now pending in your court is a suit against the sovereign state of Georgia, and seeks to restrain the chief executive of this state from carrying out the duties imposed upon him by the constitution and the laws of Georgia. No consent has been given by the general assembly for the maintenance of such a suit.

(Here the Governor quoted federal judges as saying that in the appointment and removal of state officers, federal courts should not interfere.)

I yield to no man in my respect for the courts, functioning within the limits of their constitutional powers, and I unhesitatingly say to you that when a final and complete adjudication of all the issues involved in this private political dispute is had in the supreme court of Georgia, it is my intention to comply with its judgments.

RIVERS PREPARES TO RESIST ORDER

Deaver said that his injunction stood regardless of the outcome of the litigation pending in the supreme court unless the defendants, which include Adjutant General John E. Stoddard, "their co-agents, sergeants and employes," petition the court for revocation or modification.

Lawyers took this to mean that the federal judge intends to let his order stand even if the cases are reversed by the state supreme court unless Rivers asks for the modification. Should the high court reverse the lower courts and no modification of the Deaver order asked or obtained the situation apparently would be one wherein Miller would have a court order calling on Rivers to obey a state court order which had been set aside.

Governor's Belief.

In this connection, Judge Deaver said:

"If in any of the Lanier county cases herein referred to, the supreme court of Georgia, on appeal, should render a judgment which would make it proper to revoke or modify this order, defendants may at any time upon notice to the plaintiff or his counsel, apply to this court for such revocation or modification."

The Governor, in his letter to Judge Deaver, while he indicated he will stand on now that the court has ordered him to do what he originally protested against, laid down his belief that he is acting within his authority and made it clear that he will not recognize the federal court intervention. Rivers dwelt at length on a decision of a three-judge federal court, composed of Circuit Judge Samuel H. Sibley and the late District Judge William I. Grubb, of Birmingham, and Judge E. Marvin Underwood, of Atlanta, in a decision in the case filed by Captain J. W. Barnett against former Governor Talmadge and former Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp after Talmadge ousted Barnett as highway chairman in 1933. In that case Judge Sibley ruled that the action should have been filed in the state of Georgia.

It is the contention of Miller's lawyers that there is a difference in the cases, in that Barnett had not filed a state court suit and that he had not obtained state court decisions in his favor as has Miller. Miller's lawyers contend that it is the Governor's refusal to comply with the superior court verdict which gives them the right to appeal to the federal courts.

Governor Rivers was not at the capitol when Judge Deaver's decision was announced. He telephoned orders for release of his letter and issued with it the following statement:

"My letter to Judge Deaver explains my official position fully. I regret that Judge Deaver permitted himself to be put in the position of being the first and only United States district judge who has sought to regulate and supervise the internal political affairs of the sovereign state of Georgia."

The letter of the Governor to Judge Deaver is printed in full in another column.

As news of Judge Deaver's decision and the Governor's defy became known over the capitol, the building buzzed with speculation.

Scores of lawyers and visitors thronged the halls anticipating immediate action but none was forthcoming.

Miller Back in City.

Miller returned to Atlanta early yesterday afternoon from Cairo, where he attended the funeral of his father Sunday. He immediately sought a conference with his chief of counsel, James A. Branch, only to learn that Mr. Branch had suddenly been called to Sale City, in south Georgia, by the illness of his aged mother. Mr. Branch's office said the lawyer was expected to return to Atlanta tonight or tomorrow. Miller said he would make no move until he had conferred with Branch.

Whether the Governor will attempt to defy service or accept service and then defy the order remains to be seen. But he let it be known that he does not intend to comply.

TEXT OF RULING IN MILLER CASE

aside and those judgments constitute the law of the case as to those matters and are recognized as such by this court.

7. The proof has established a cause of action in favor of the plaintiff, W. L. Miller, in this case, under the due process and equal protection clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, and under 8 USCA Section 43.

8. The acts of the defendants, E. D. Rivers, Governor of the State of Georgia, and John E. Stoddard, adjutant-general of the State of Georgia, as set out in the findings of fact, are in violation of the equal protection and due process clauses of the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States, and amount to a deprivation of the rights of the plaintiff, W. L. Miller, under the provisions of 8 USCA Section 43.

9. The plaintiff, W. L. Miller, has no full, adequate and complete remedy at law.

10. The judgments rendered in the contempt proceeding against John E. Stoddard, adjutant-general of the State of Georgia, and J. H. Skelton, lieutenant colonel, as aforesaid in said cause, in the superior court of Lanier county, Georgia, were for civil contempt, and the Governor of Georgia had no power of authority to grant pardons for such civil contempt, and his efforts to pardon the said Stoddard and the said Skelton in furtherance of his plan and purpose to obstruct the execution of the processes and judgments of the court amounted to denying the plaintiff, W. L. Miller, due process and equal protection of the law.

11. The plaintiff is entitled to an interlocutory injunction against said defendants, E. D. Rivers, Governor of the State of Georgia, and John E. Stoddard, adjutant-general of the State of Georgia, in terms and form as granted in the subjointed judgment and decree.

DEATH IS DECREED IN MACON KILLING

Slayer Will Go to Chair March 15 for Holdup-Shooting.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Judge A. M. Anderson tonight sentenced Willie Bryant to die in the electric chair after a superior court jury found the local Negro guilty of the murder of Zack Trice, oil company official, in January, 1939.

The jury reached a decision at 9:30 p. m. after 23 hours of deliberation. They received the case at 10:30 p. m. Saturday and were ordered by Judge Anderson to suspend consideration over Sunday.

The Negro made no sign as the solicitor read the verdict or as Judge Anderson ordered him to die in the chair on March 15.

Defense attorneys said an appeal would be taken immediately.

Bryant went on trial last Monday, accused of shooting Trice in a holdup at the company's plant here. The prosecution based its case on a confession the Negro was said to have made to County Officers Walter Waldron and O. R. Stokes after a search for Trice's slayer had continued fruitlessly for many months.

Defense attorneys contended Bryant was feeble minded and had been coerced into signing a confession. They also attempted to prove alibis through friends and relatives.

FARMS BEING SOLD, INSURANCE MEN SAY

Situation 'Becoming Adjusted' in Wake of Foreclosures, Solons Told.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—An official of the Prudential Insurance company of America—which owns $45,000,000 of American farm land—expressed the opinion to the monopoly committee today that the "farm situation is becoming adjusted and stabilized" in the wake of a period of extensive foreclosures.

The Prudential official and Glen Rogers, farm loan manager for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, testified their companies were anxious to make more farm loans.

R. R. Rogers, Prudential vice president, told the committee Prudential was selling 20 per cent of the land it owned each year.

Glen Rogers told the committee that the company usually required a 10 per cent down payment when selling to a farmer, but sometimes sold for as little as 3 per cent down on a "character sale."

Prudential, its officials said, sought to encourage tenants to become owners by selling to farmers with no money down, and under contracts whereby a farmer acquired his first stake through a share in each year's crop for three years.

STEAMPIPES BURST, PERILING TRAINMEN

Engineer and Fireman Jump as Flamingo Leaves Macon for Atlanta.

The engineer and fireman of the Flamingo, crack Central of Georgia passenger train, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when steampipes in the locomotive burst and flooded the cab as the train was leaving Macon for Atlanta.

The two trainmen, listed as Edward Shouse, engineer, of Macon, and Claude Brooks, fireman, Macon Negro, jumped to safety. Shouse suffered a bruised back in the fall.

The accident occurred just north of the Monroe street underpass in Macon. Automatic brakes stopped the train.

Delayed more than an hour by the accident, the Flamingo arrived here at 7:01 o'clock last night. Regular arrival time is 5:55 o'clock.

GALES, ICEBERGS PERIL BYRD POLAR SHIP BEAR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The veteran polar ship Bear of the Byrd Antarctic expedition radioed today that she has battled gales and dodged icebergs for four consecutive days while maneuvering along the coast of Antarctica. A message received from the Bear, a barkentine, said wind velocity had attained the 60-mile mark.

Aboard the bear is the government expedition commander, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, seeking a chance to launch a plane for an aerial survey of the area in which the ship is sailing.

FLORIDA SEA TRAINING IS APPROVED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP) The house passed and sent to the senate today a bill to authorize the Martime Commission to acquire about 10 acres of land in St. Petersburg, Fla., as a site for establishment of a permanent shore training station for apprentice seamen.

The property now is owned by the city. The Maritime Commission said about $750,000 would be spent on the property for improvements as soon as title was acquired.

Biography of Late Bishop Haygood, Written by Dr. Dempsey, Is Praised

Christian Advocate Reviewer Urges Churchmen To Know More of Methodist Leader Whose Life Is Sketched by Atlanta Clergyman.

Dr. Elam F. Dempsey's book on the "Life of Atticus G. Haygood" is praised highly in a review appearing in the February issue of the Christian Advocate, which urges that all churchmen know something of the work of the famous Methodist bishop.

The author, a resident of Atlanta, is secretary of the Historical Society of the North Georgia conference, a former pastor of Trinity Methodist church and formerly editor of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate here. His biography of Bishop Haygood, the pioneer, is 800 pages long.

The Advocate's review of the "The Life of Atticus A. Haygood" is written by W. P. King, who calls attention to the fact that Bishop Haygood often was referred to as a man 50 years ahead of his time.

Urged Christian Unity.

To illustrate, it is pointed out that Haygood promoted a united Christianity, and adds that, "Behold, the union of the three American Methodisms was consummated 43 years after his decease. How timely, then, are his words, spoken long ago and now again brought to light in this volume."

The bishop, too, devoted time and thought to the Negro's problem in his book "Our Brother in Black," and in numerous magazine and newspaper articles. "And we know that one of the timeliest themes in American journalism continues to be this one of our Afro-American fellow-citizens," adds the reviewer.

Work for Negro.

Dr. Dempsey devotes several chapters to Haygood's efforts on behalf of the Negro, and some 40 pages to the letters Bishop Haygood wrote President Rutherford B. Hayes, who was then chairman of the trustees for the John F. Slater Fund.

The book contains examples of Haygood's humor, wit, anecdotes, reminiscences, and interviews, as well as a large group of epigrams culled from the bishop's works. Dr. Dempsey's biography is profusely illustrated with 150 scenes, many of them full-page.

U. S. NOT TO HINDER EXTRADITION OF BIOFF

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Federal Judge Ralph E. Jenney ruled today that the federal government should not interfere with the extradition of William Bioff, Hollywood film labor leader, to Chicago to complete a six-month jail sentence for pandering.

Bioff is free under $5,000 bond pending his trial set for May 28 on federal charges of evading payment of $85,000 in income taxes for 1936 and 1937.

BRITAIN ADMITS DESTROYER SUNK, 157 LIVES LOST

Daring Is Torpedoed by Germans; Norway May Appeal Altmark Case to League of Nations.

By ROBERT E. BENNELLE.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Britain today acknowledged loss by torpedo of the destroyer Daring with 157 men, but kept up a triumphal chorus praising the swashbuckling rescue of British prisoners from the German prisonship Altmark in defiance of Norwegian neutrality.

Sixth destroyer lost by Britain in the war, the Daring was the twenty-eighth of Great Britain's naval craft to go down in the intensifying warfare on the sea.

Five Rescued.

Nine officers, including her commander, S. A. Cooper, and 148 men went down with the 1,375-ton Daring, the admiralty disclosed, and one officer and four seamen were picked up.

A sister ship of the destroyer Duchess, lost earlier in the war, the Daring's main armament included four 4.7-inch guns, seven smaller guns and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes.

(Germany reported the destroyer, a part of naval forces guarding a convoy, was sunk yesterday. At the same time, the German command declared, its navy sank an undisclosed number of merchant steamers and tankers in attacks on three other convoys.)

Meanwhile Norway's foreign minister, Halvdan Koht, announced at Oslo that the incident might lead to an appeal by Norway to the League of Nations or some other tribunal.

Ship Carried Guns.

The Altmark was armed with anti-aircraft guns, he said, casting new light on one controversial feature of the ship's status. In addition Koht charged she had violated Norwegian regulations by sending wireless messages while in Norwegian waters. But neither of these facts gave Britain the right to violate Norway's neutrality, he maintained.

In Berlin, diplomatic tension between Germany and Norway eased decidedly. There was evidence that foreign office correspondence over the British attack of the Nazi ship Altmark was being dictated by kindlier hands.

Map Shows Center of Reds' Intensive Drive on Viipuri

Soviet troops hammered yesterday almost at the doors of Viipuri, Finland's second largest city, after isolating Fort Koivisto, western anchor of the Mannerheim line, a Russian communique said. Viipuri, a prime objective of the Reds since the start of the war, appeared hard pressed as the Soviets reported capture of Johannes, Makslahti and Somme. They also reported occupation of the fortified area and village of Muolaa. The map shows the center of the intensive drive.

'No Intervention For Finns'—Gustaf

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 19.—King Gustaf informed the people of Sweden by royal proclamation today that Sweden could not intervene militarily on behalf of Finland.

The king overruled the wishes of his cabinet in going direct to the people because, he said, he felt the statement last week of Premier Per Albin Hansson did not make sufficiently clear that the king and the entire cabinet were agreed on the issue and an open division of public opinion had resulted.

"We have always given the maximum of voluntary aid for Finland," the king said, "but I feel sure that active military intervention for Finland would mean not only war against Russia but immediate involvement in the great war with other powers."

Britain Speeds Search of Ships

GIBRALTAR, Feb. 19.—(AP)—British naval authorities announced tonight that speeded arrangements by contraband control officers were enabling United States vessels to pass through the strait with the least possible delay.

Six Altmark Sailors Are Buried In Norway With Military Rites

Swastika Flags Cover Coffins; Hitler, Other Nazi Leaders, Send Flowers; Envoy at Oslo Observes That Ceremony Took Place on Friendly Soil.

GJOSSINGFJORD, Norway, Feb. 19.—(AP)—One hundred seamen from the German ship Altmark stood with bowed heads in a litle Norwegian churchyard today as six shipmates, who have become in death new Nazi heroes, were buried with full military honors.

Red and black swastika flags covered the six white coffins, and flowers sent by Adolf Hitler, German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, and Admiral Erich Raeder, commander of the Nazi navy, were banked around the graves.

The burial took place in the tiny village of Hauge, two miles from the rocky Fjord where the Altmark was attacked Sunday by a British boarding party which rescued 303 English seamen the vessel was taking back to Germany as prisoners of war.

The services were conducted by a German Lutheran pastor, and a brief eulogy was delivered by the German minister to Oslo, Helmuth Braeuer, who observed that the seamen were being buried in friendly soil.

The last words were spoken over the graves by the 67-year-old captain of the Altmark, Heinrich Dau, who said:

"You were not of the German navy, but you served your country bravely and venturesomely by giving that navy auxiliary service, by supplying its needs far from home."

The merchant sailors of the Altmark, which had served as a supply ship for the ill-fated pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, were a motley crew as they stood in knee-deep snow of the wind-swept churchyard.

They had been away from home so long that their clothing was tattered and worn, and few wore anything resembling uniforms.

'NO ARMS ABOARD,' SAYS NAZI CAPTAIN

Claims He Ordered Altamark Crew Not To Resist British.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Captain Heinrich Dau, of the German prison ship Altmark, said in a radio interview in Stavanger, Norway, tonight that he had ordered his crew to offer no resistance to the British boarding party which freed more than 300 British seamen held captive on the vessel.

The German skipper in an international broadcast (CBS) declared "we had no guns aboard the Altmark."

The veteran captain, former master of the liner Deutschland and twice decorated by his government during the World War, was interviewed after attending the burial of six Altmark crewmen killed in the raid.

Captain Dau said he was bound for Germany Friday night when three British planes flew overhead. He said that when a British destroyer appeared shortly afterward and signaled for him to turn away from shore he was only three-quarters of a mile from the Norwegian coast.

"They took the English seamen aboard the destroyer and left hurriedly. They appeared to be in a very nervous state all the time."

The captain hesitated when asked what Norwegian ships in the vicinity were doing while his vessel was being boarded, then replied with some bitterness:

"They did . . . nothing . . . as far I could see."

WELLES, TWO AIDES CONFER ON PLANS

Official En Route to Europe on Mission for Chief Executive.

ABOARD ITALIAN LINER REX EN ROUTE TO NAPLES, Feb. 19.—(UP)—Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, en route to Europe on a confidential mission for President Roosevelt, converted his suite on this Italian liner into an office today and spent much of his time working out plans with his assistants, Jay Pierrepont Moffett and Hartwell Johnson.

The State Department was keeping Welles constantly informed on day-to-day developments on the European situation which are likely to have a bearing on his work.

Plans Berlin Visit.

It was understood that so far no official advices have been received concerning a letter written to the President by Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, suggesting that Welles take up with German authorities the matter of American relief for needy persons in Poland when he visits Berlin next month.

The Vandenberg proposal is known to the undersecretary, however, and it has been received in the radio news service.

To See Duce and Ciano.

Welles will arrive in Naples February 26 and will see Italian Premier Benito Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano in Rome, probably on the following day.

Present plans, it was understood, call for conferences in Berlin during the first week in April. Duration of the trip will depend on developments, it was said, and the undersecretary may be away longer than the six weeks envisaged when he left New York last Saturday.

The Rex ploughed through a rough sea today and fought a headwind. A falling barometer indicated worse weather to come.

FINN LOAN HELD UP BY HOUSE GROUP

Jesse Jones Urges War Trend Study; Banking Committee Defers Vote.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Besieged Finland must wait at least another week before she will know whether to expect further financial aid from the United States government.

This became apparent today when the house banking committee deferred a vote on senate-approved legislation to increase the capital of the Export-Import Bank $100,000,000.

Jesse Jones, the federal loan administrator, told the committee today that the $10,000,000 advance already made to the Baltic republic had been on the assumption that "Finland would endure."

"I don't think you should expect us to lend $20,000,000 (additional) to Finland if she has been defeated before the loan is acted upon," he testified. "I think we would give them some additional credit if they were still fighting and with a chance to win."

The legislation would permit the bank to grant Finland $20,000,000 of credit for purchases in this country.

GROUP TO DISCUSS HARBORS MEASURE

$6,5000,000 Georgia Project on Chattahooche Is Endangered.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The senate commerce committee will meet tomorrow to discuss the problem of an omnibus rivers and harbors bill which some members asserted had grown too big to permit its enactment at this session.

It was reported the senate group probably would not act on specific projects, but would refer the measure to a subcommittee with instructions on necessary changes.

It has been suggested by Chairman Bailey, Nemocrat, North Carolina, and others that al big projects be eliminated then sent to the senate as separate bills.

Bailey said the big controversial items endangered all the projects in the authorization measure. He advocated setting an upper limit on the cost of projects to be included in the bill, asserting this would insure its passage by the senate and approval by the President.

Some informed persons have asserted President Roosevelt would veto a high-cost river and harbor bill.

One of the projects endangered was the proposed $6,500,000 improvement program on the Chattahoochee river in Georgia. This project was added to the bill by the senate commerce committee last year.

Georgians said they would insist that if any upper limit were placed on the projects' cost it should be higher than the amount involved in the Chattahoochee undertaking. Nevertheless, they feared a presidential veto unless some of the biggest items were eliminated.

One frequently discussed level has been $10,000,000.

The Chattahoochee development involves the construction of two dams, one at Fort Benning south of Columbus, Ga., and the other farther down the river at the point where it joins the Flint to the Apalachicola.

J. W. Woodruff Jr., of Columbus, was here in behalf of the proposal.

The bill merely authorizes projects. Appropriations for all river and harbor work come up later this session, but only those projects authorized will be eligible for appropriations.

DUTCH ARE SEEKING BIG DEFENSE FUND

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The Netherlands government asked parliament today to approve expenditures of 39 million guilders (about $20,000,000) for strengthening the nation's defenses.

About 30,000,000 guilders ($16,000,000) of this sum already has been used.

The expenditures include 24 million guilders (abcut $13,000,000) for anti-aircraft batteries; 13 millions (about $650,000) for new planes, and the remainder for improving the cruiser Sumatra and building a new minesweeper.

REDS DENY TROOPS ENTERED TURKEY

MOSCOW, Feb. 20.—(Tuesday.)—(AP)—Tass, Soviet Russian official news agency, today declared a report circulated from Istanbul by Stafani, official Italian news agency, alleging that a Russian army detachment had crossed the Turkish frontier in the Caucasus was a "product of the sick imagination of its authors."

Tass said the Stefani report added that "Turkish authorities sent a Turkish detachment to investigate the reasons for the crossing" and that "no fighting took place."

Georgians Give $46,488 for Finnish Relief

Georgia comes through for the Finns! Ryburn G. Clay, Atlanta, co-chairman of the Georgia committee for the Finnish Relief Fund, is shown left, handing former President Herbert Hoover, national chairman, a check for $42,045.62, representing a part of the $46,488.57 Georgians contributed. The Georgia response was one of the largest single state contributions, Hoover said.

'Lunch Before Trial'—Prisoner Has Own Way

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 19.—(AP) John T. Clark, 57, accused of hurling a brick through a post office window so he could spend the winter in a warm jail, held up federal court proceedings for an hour today because he refused to go on trial until the government gave him lunch.

Once before he refused to appear in court until the government bought him a pair of shoes.

He not only got his lunch—but also his wish. The trial, in which Clark acted as his own attorney, ended in conviction and he was promptly sentenced to jail.

FAKE ARMY CAPTAIN MAKES GUILTY PLEA

Harold Hay Admits U. S. Charges That He Impersonated Officials.

Harold Henry Hay, shorn of h' self-assumed titles as special agei of the FBI and youngest captain in the United States army air corps, yesterday stood before the bar of justice in federal district court, to enter guilty pleas on charges of impersonating federal officials.

He pleaded guilty to one count charging impersonation of a G-man at Newnan last summer, and to three counts accusing him of posing as "Captain Harold Henry Hay" in Marietta, where his social charm won him welcome entry to the very top of the town's highest society.

The indictments against him charged he obtained small sums of money from his acquaintances by posing as a representative of the government. Judge E. Marvin Underwood took his plea under advisement. Sentence is to be passed later.

CITY TIGHTENS LAW FOR HEALTH TESTS OF FOOD HANDLERS

Council Modernizes 1925 Milk Ordinance; Passes Street Repair and Improvement Program.

City health laws were tightened yesterday as council overwhelmingly revised the food handlers' ordinance, affecting 10,500 Atlantans, and then modernized the old 1925 milk ordinance.

In approving the new food handlers' measure, council followed recommendations of the Fulton County Medical Society, the Atlanta Association of Better Restaurants and Mayor Hartsfield in taking from private physicians the right to examine applicants for venereal aand other communicable diseases. Under the new law, the city health department will name the doctors to its staff to perform this service.

A fund of $7,421 was set up for the examinations. The new system will be placed in operation July 1.

30,000 Gallons Daily.

Although some provisions of the newly enacted milk ordinance do not become effective for another year, it is regarded as a sweeping improvement, "designed to make the 30,000 gallons of milk consumed daily locally the purest that protection can make it."

Major features of the milk ordinance provide for inspection of goat dairies for the first time in Atlanta's history, examination of cattle for bangs disease and tuberculosis, authorizes mechanical capping of milk, provides for use of single containers, prescribes rules for proper labeling, defines sour cream, vitamin "D" and homogenized milk.

Street Improvements.

The council also provided a funds of $14 467.24 as a part of a $60,000 downtown street improvement program which the municipality will undertake in co-operation with WPA.

The sum of $5,308.60 was set up for removal of wooden paving blocks on Forsyth street from Peachree to Marietta streeet; $5,073.37 for removal of wooden paving blocks on Forsyth street from Marietta to Hunter streets, and $4,085.33 as the city's share of expense of repaving Broad street from Peachtree to Marietta streets.

Work to Start Soon.

Work on the projects is expected to begin next week, it was announced at council's session after the measures had been submitted by the finance and public works committee.

A council proposal to write-off about $85,000 from January excess water bills was re-referred to the water committee for further study after Councilman John A. White and George B. Lyle, co-authors of the measure, presented letters from members of the Atlanta Real Estate Board and a petition bearing the signatures of "from 1,000 to 1 500 citizens of the West End section."

Free Trade Schools Urged To Train Youths for Jobs

Mobley and Woodward Favor Institutions Located in Great Industrial Centers Under Local Control But Supported by State and Federal Funds.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

If a fellow doesn't want to be a doctor or a lawyer or a banker or a farmer, what is he to do?

If a girl doesn't want to be a teacher or a dietitian or a nurse, where can she learn something else?"

How are the folk who just want to take their place among the great masses who do the work of the world going to train themselves to build the houses, lay the pipes, string the wires, make the engines run, and sell the goods behind the counter?

The answer right now, in general, is "Nowhere."

If a fellow comes out of high school determined to be a doctor he can go to medical school and learn his profession, presuming he has the money and the brains. If he wants to be a lawyer, or a teacher, or a newspaperman, he can do the same.

Schools for Farmers.

Five hundred schools in Georgia teach vocational agriculture, if he wants to be a farmer. If she wants to be a home economist, that's all right. That many schools give courses in home economics.

But what about the thousands of fellows who drift away from the farms every year? And the thousands of girls who want to earn their living for awhile before settling down to home-making?

What about them? Where can they go to learn the metal trades, plumbing, steam-fitting, boiler-making, foundry work? Where can they go to learn radio, electricity, Diesel engine work, the mysteries of a gas engine. Where can they learn soda fountain work, steam table work, beauty shop work, barbering, baking, meat-cutting, grocery and department store sales work?

The Hard Way.

By getting a job and learning? Maybe. But that's the hard way. These modern times move too swiftly and industry demands too much of its novices.

The plumber's helper may get to be a master plumber, but he'll learn faster and earn more and be a better plumber if he has first been trained.

The "learner" at a textile loom may get to be foreman some day, but he'll learn faster and go further if he comes to the job with a knowledge of his machine.

The girl at a sewing machine in an overall plant may become expert in a year or two, but she'll be worth more to her boss if she knows her job when she comes in.

By going to the private schools advertised in the yellow pages of the phone book? Maybe. But they operate for profit and only a few of those who seek knowledge have the money to pay. And the fields of their instruction are limited.

Part-Time Training.

By going to the industrial towns, where under the supervision of the state department of vocational education, teachers recruited from industry itself give part-time instruction in the crafts of which they are master?

Maybe. But there the specter of Georgia's poverty in the wider field of vocational education raises its head. The agricultural schools are fine. The home economics courses are excellent. But these scattered classes are too few, too poorly equipped, too limited in their scope to do much good.

What's the answer then?

To men like M. D. Mobley, state director of vocational education, and Paul S. Woodward, director of vocational education in Atlanta public schools, it's simply this:

More schools. Not academic schools but trade schools at the secondary level, as colleges are, really, "trade" schools at the higher level.

They would be located in the great industrial centers—close to the job markets.

Free to All.

They would be under local control, but supported by state and federal funds, and thus free to every boy or girl, whether he lived in the city or in some faraway rural county.

They would work with industry, to learn industry's needs, and they would turn over to industry men and women trained as industry wanted them trained.

Looking far ahead, Mobley, one of the nation's foremost leaders in the field of industrial education visualizes a more perfect Georgia in these words, taken from his little book on Georgia's needs in the vocational field.

"With vocational agriculture as a part of the offering of every high school serving rural youth with home economics in every high school in which girls are enrolled, and with an adequate system of schools offering training in trade, industrial, and distributive occupations, for the use of all the youth of the state Georgia would indeed have the finest and most comprehensive program of vocational education of any state in the nation. Such a school would afford opportunity to all the masses enrolled in our schools of less than college degree to receive practical training to prepare them for their chosen occupations."

Georgia gave the nation the Smith-Hughes Act and the George-Deen Act, parent legislation under which all vocational education in this country operates.

Georgia should give the nation this other, greater thing, carrying the vocational concept to its complete fulfillment.

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT LOOMS IN OHIO

Donahey Refuses To Be F. D. R. 'Ghost'; Wheeler, Garner May Enter.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—A battle for Ohio's big delegation to the Democratic national convention between Vice President Garner, Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, and supporters of a third term for President Roosevelt took shape today as the result of a whirlwind series of events.

At the same time, with many an approving word, Republicans in congress hastened to support the tentative platform submitted by the Glenn Frank committee.

Behind the Ohio developments lay a situation which found the leaders of the regular Democratic organization ardently supporting the draft-Roosevelt movement. They had chosen Senator Donahey to enter the presidential preference primary on May 14 as a "favorite son" candidate, but with the understanding that at the right time he would free the delegation to vote for Mr. Roosevelt's renomination.

But Donahey, who has opposed important New Deal measures and has, moreover, been a close friend of Garner, refused today to be put in the role of a stalking horse for the third term movement.

'BLACKJACKING' CHARGED TO NLRB

Committee Subpoenas Cabinet Officers To Testify.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The House committee investigating the National Labor Relations Board tonight issued subpoenas for three cabinet officers "or their representatives" to appear tomorrow for testimony in connection with charges by the committee's counsel that NLRB had attempted to "blackjack" employers.

In making the "blackjacking" charge, the committee counsel had reference to evidence that the NLRB had sought to have government contracts withheld from companies accused of violating the Wagner Act.

The cabinet officers on whom the committee said the subpoenas were served were Secretary of Interior Ickes, Secretary of the Navy Edison and Secretary of Labor Perkins. Subpoenas also were issued and served on H. E. Collins of the Treasury procurement division, the government's big purchasing agent, and George R. Cooksey, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

POLISH PIANIST TO PLAY TONIGHT

Jan Smeterlin Substitutes for Rudolf Serkin.

Jan Smeterlin, Polish pianist, will give a concert tonight at the Atlanta Woman's Club, according to announcement by Mrs. Harold Cooledge, president of the Atlanta Music Club. Mrs. Cooledge received a wire yesterday from Rudolf Serkin, who was scheduled to play tonight, saying that he was ill and could not fill the engagement.

By telephone to New York arrangements were made for Smeterlin to fill Serkin's engagement.

Smeterlin is known particularly as a great interpreter of Chopin, though he has also done much to bring works of modern composers into popularity. He is a former pupil of Leopold Godowsky. Since his American debut in New York in 1930 he has been one of the country's favorite concert artists.

Republicans To Visit Deep South In Search of Farm Information

Democratic southern farmers can do something March 1 and 2 they have been wanting to do since the War Between the States. They can get together and cuss the Republicans to their faces.

The Republicans in question are the members of the Republican agricultural committee who are coming into the deep south to try to learn something about the farm problem in this section of the country.

They are doing it here just as they have been doing it all over the country, west, midwest, southwest, and east, because Republican Joe Martin, of Massachusetts, the firery minority leader in the house, figured that the Republicans need a farm program and they needed one based on actual knowledge.

If they are the majority in the house next session, Martin reasoned, they will need the knowledge in shaping legislation for introduction that will meet every farmers' problems.

If they continue to be a minority they will need the knowledge to vote intelligently on legislation put before them.

Anybody who produces the fruits of the soil, whatever it may be, cotton, corn, fruits and vegetables, livestock, hogs, timber, or whatnot, are invited, according to Wilson Williams, representative of the committee, who is paving the way for the meeting at Charlotte.

"All we want to know is: Is the man actually a farmer?, and what particular farm product's problem he wants to talk about," said Mr. Williams.

Anybody wanting to appear before the committee can do so, according to Mr. Williams, by writing to The Republican Agricultural Committee, 1413 House Office Building, Washington, D. C., or to Jake Newell, Charlotte, N. C.

Clifford R. Hope, representative from Kansas, is to head the committee at Charlotte.

It is also possible that the committee members will come on to Atlanta on Sunday, March 3, to visit farms in this section and talk with farmers here.

ONE DEAD, THREE SHOT IN CALIFORNIA MELEE

WILLOWS, Cal., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Chief of Police Dave Markham, 68, was slain, and three other men, including another policeman, were wounded today in a downtown shooting affray which followed an attempt to question A. E. Carroll, 45, farm worker, who was brandishing a shotgun.

Witnesses said Carroll levelled the gun at the officers and all three appeared to open fire at once, blasting away in a circle about 15 feet in diameter.

The shooting stopped only when the three men lay helpless on the ground.

Nervous, Ankles Swollen, Backache, Kidneys Strained?

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, late hours or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and put a heavy load on your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Nature's Way

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters and the heart pumps blood through them about 200 times an hour, night and day. No man has ever made a machine that would stand up under the work the Kidneys are asked to do so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down as you grow older.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three natural ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, aliveness and enthusiasm which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under this positive money back guarantee, so get Cystex from your druggist today for only 25c.

Farm Tenant Problem

It would appear, from some actions of the economy bloc in congress, that the popular demand for reduction of federal expenditure is, as have so many other fundamentally commendable movements, being used by some political factions to serve selfish purposes.

In the sweeping effort for reduced appropriations there have been some programs threatened which, by every measure of public service, should be retained. There is little use in budget reduction unless discretion and wise discrimination direct the cuts.

Elimination of funds for continuance of the farm-tenant purchase plan is a startling case in point. Of all the developments in the national agricultural program there is none more soundly based or holding forth greater promise of ultimate benefit to the nation and its people than this.

Under the Bankhead-Jones farm tenant act, the government makes a limited number of loans to worthy farm tenants by which they can purchase their own farms and make such improvements as are needed to give reasonable opportunity for successful farm operation and ultimate independence.

Under this act the number and amount of these loans is strictly limited. The appropriation for the fiscal year which ends on June 30 was $40,000,000, making possible a total of 6,971 loans. The loans are confined to counties where the tenancy problem is most acute, and are allocated to states on basis of farm population and prevalence of tenancy.

Under this plan, 1,644 loans were available this year for tenants, share-croppers and farm laborers of Alabama, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina. For these, there were 83,685 applications.

It must be remembered that outlay under this act is not of the outright gift variety. The money is advanced on terms permitting repayment, at 3 per cent interest, over a period of 40 years. It is, in fact, similar in its workings to the successful HOLC and FHA programs for urban home-owners.

Under the system of apportionment the south has received ag reater proportion of these loans than many other sections of the country. This is due to the high ratio of farm population and the prevalence of share-cropping, or farm tenancy, in the southern states.

It has been charged that the elimination of this program from the agricultural appropriations for the coming year is attributable, in part, to the ancient prejudice against the south in some other parts of the country. Whether or not this charge is true, the basic economic folly of halting this program remains unchanged.

The farm tenant problem, the plight of the share-croppers not only of the south, but of the midwest, is one of the most fundamental evils now facing the nation. Contented farm ownership is the bedrock of national solidarity. A nation of tenants is a nation of unrest, susceptible to every wind of radicalism, ripe for the effort of the un-American preachers of subversive isms.

There is more wisdom in a program which seeks to re-establish the landless upon their own home farms than in all the plans for subsidies, for equalization and for crop bounties combined.

Of all the efforts of the federal administration to improve the economic lot of the rural population of the country, there is none which can be of greater value than this program to make farm owners, once again, out of worthy, but landless, farm workers.

This "revolt in Germany" talk must be wishful thinking. A people that take sauerkraut pie in their stride are tamed.

Whate'er betide, the Welles boys are looking out for us. Sumner has sailed in the interests of peace. On the other hand, if it must be war, we have Orson to scare a foe silly.

The Trade Agreements

Reports from Washington indicate that both house and senate will, after somewhat heated debate, vote for extension of the Hull reciprocal trade agreement program. Opposition centers in a combination of Republican political strategists and a small group of die-hard Democrats. The majority sentiment, however, agrees with that of the country as a whole, which is that the Hull agreements have contributed more to the hope of a future world at peace than any other international program of the past couple of decades.

Removal of trade barriers is, in the final analysis, the surest avenue to world peace. Nations barred from world markets because of discriminatory tariffs or other barriers ultimately reach a stage of economic stagnation that causes, first, despair and later submission to any wild theory that promises better economic conditions.

That is the story of Germany's descent into Naziism and the story of the rise of all the dictators.

The Hull trade treaties, by lowering the tariff barriers on a reciprocal basis, and limited to such imports as do not compete with vital American industry, have done more than anything else to revive international trade.

True ,that revival has been interrupted by the European war. But that war cannot continue forever and it is of vital importance to the world that, when peace does come, there shall be channels of world trade open and free.

Cordell Hull will yet go down in history as a man who contributed, perhaps more than any other, to the prosperity of his own people and to the well-being of a world.

The reciprocal trade agreement program should be continued on a basis which will give Secretary Hull as free a hand as possible.

35th Birthday

This week brings celebration of the 35th anniversary of the founding of Rotary International. The Atlanta Rotary Club will take part in the world-wide celebration, the local program having begun yesterday when T. T. Molnar, of Cuthbert, was the principal speaker at a meeting devoted to "Observance Week."

Rotary began in 1905, in Chicago, and it was not until 1908 that the second club was formed at San Francisco. The first Canadian Rotary Club was organized at Winnipeg, in 1910, and the first across the seas was at Dublin, Ireland, in 1911.

Since those days the growth of Rotary International has been rapid. There are now more than 5,000 clubs with a total membership in excess of 200,000. There are clubs in many European cities, though they have been proscribed in Germany, where Nazidom is jealous of all organization save its own.

The foundation of Rotary was the ideal of mutual service. At first, the main objective was the service and aid one member could give to another, but it was not long until that thought had expanded into the ideal of service by the club to its community and its nation.

Today there is scarcely a worth-while movement in any city where Rotary exists, that does not find enthusiastic and valuable support in its local club. Its members have become leaders in ever-widening spheres of service.

In short, Rotary has contributed greatly to the betterment of life and conditionswherever it has reached, and, without Rotary, millions of people the world over would be far worse off than they are today.

More On "Moving Day"

The rental committee of the Atlanta Real Estate Board estimates that 70 per cent of Atlanta residential leases now expire on September 1—the annual moving day. The board points out that relief in the annual expense and turmoil of mass moving has been a matter of concern to the members of the board for several years and that, by following a policy of spreading lease expirations, they have alleviated the situation to this extent.

Staggering of lease expirations long has been sought as a method of lowering the expense of moving, of redecoration, and of actual rental costs. It also would tend to eliminate the seasonal employment of many workmen. A reduction to 70 per cent in September 1 expiration indicates an improvement in the condition, but suggests that a more radical shifting of lease expiration dates will have to be resorted to as an alternative to a much slower procedure along natural lines.

Carefully closing the sedan window before sounding off to the other driver is the better part of valor.

February, with 29, gives us an extra day this year to think about getting ready to make out an income tax.

As to the John Lewis-Bill Green battle of the century, it is now well past the fourteenth round, with nobody kissing anybody so far.

Editorial of the Day

SHIPS AND SHELLS.

(From the Oakland Tribune.)

Once great ships—and still carriers coveted by nations in need of bottoms—are on the government auction block and will be reduced to scrap.

One is the George Washington, which carried Woodrow Wilson to the peace conference; others are the Monticello, Mt. Vernon and America, all former proud liners which served as troop transports. No belligerent is allowed to bid for them as ships, for it is considered unneutral to release them for the carrying of articles of commerce. Yet buyers may turn them into scrap and use that scrap in munitions.

Three of these liners at one time were known as the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, Amerika and Agamemnon. In 1917, when freedom of the seas and the urgent need for ships was also present, we took them from Germany. Is there something ironic and pathetic in the fact once stately, and still presentable, liners will have their next voyage, not upon the limitless meadows of the sea but through the air as particles incased in shells?

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER

NO FEASIBLE BASIS FOR PEACE WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. Appointment of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles as the President's roving ambassador in Europe has been least well received by the President's nonroving ambassadors. Joseph P. Kennedy and William C. Bullitt, who both happen to be in this country, have given private signs of a marked lack of enthusiasm. The trouble is that roving ambassadors are always about as popular with more stationary diplomats as a fine, classical case of cholera morbus.

From some of the countries Welles is to visit and from many quarters in this country, doubts and objections have also been heard. No feasible basis for peace now exists, unless Hitler's Germany is to be left in possession of the gains which England and France went to war to prevent. In high Englih and French quarters the view is rather naturally taken that a peace effort at this time can only result in demands for concessions and appeasements which cannot be granted.

EVERS TO TINKER TO CHANCE But although his appointment of Welles has been widely misinterpreted as preparation for an immediate peace effort, the President's primary purpose was only to obtain a panoramic view of the European situation through one pair of eyes he could trust. He trusts few men more than he does Sumner Welles.

The administrative triangle between the President, Welles and Secretary of State Cordell Hull has been the subject of much speculation, for the reason that Welles so obviously is personally closer and more sympathetic to the President than his immediate chief is. The President and Welles are old friends. They share a common interest in several special policies, such as the drive to improve our South American relations. Welles is constantly at the White House. And Welles' handsome place at Oxon Hill has sometimes been the scene of the rare relaxations which the President seeks outside the White House. Therefore, the habits of the bureaucracy being what they are, it has often been supposed that Welles has poached on Hull's territory.

Actually, however, the Roosevelt-Tull-Welles triangle is an effective working team. The President is the entrepreneur, Welles is the technician, and Hull supplies the conservative judgment which the other two sometimes need as a rein on their enthusiasm. The President undoubtedly finds it easier to work with Welles than with Hull; indeed, recognizing this and believing in Welles, Hull has frequently deputed his lieutenant to represent him at the White House. But the trio, while they are healthily disputatious at the outset, are invariably agreed in the outcome.

STIFF AS A RAMROD Thus Welles has a rather special position in the administration, larger than his official title would suggest, yet perfectly honorable and aboveboard. He also has special qualifications for the task which the President has just confided to him.

If we must have roving ambassadors, they should be, above all, hardheaded and experienced in diplomacy. Welles has both these qualities in an unusual degree, as well as being able and gifted with a far-sightedness which his South American policy has demonstrated. He is, to be sure, a strange fellow, appallingly precise of speech, glacially chilly in his manner, and in all outward seemings as stiff as a ramrod. As a child at play in the country, he used to wear white gloves. He gives the impression that he still suspects some hidden infection in his surroundings.

Yet the Welles exterior is probably an asset in his new task, for a man more practiced in bonhomie might be asked for commitments, and in the good feeling of the moment, might even make them. No one will doubt Welles' discretion or expect him to cast it aside.

Nor could Welles have made a better choice of traveling companion than Jay Pierrepont Moffat, the chief of the western European division. Both men come from the same background of New York in the brownstone era; both, oddly enough, had the same education at the President's own Groton and Harvard, and Moffat's diplomatic experience fully equals Welles'. But where Welles is intensely ambitious and sometimes too taken with the virtues of his theories, Moffat is the ideal civil servant, hard-working, learned, with an abnormal sense of duty, and a tremendous caution. The job before them is exceptionally difficult, but between them they ought to do it pretty well.

Of Those Who Steal.

Some time ago this column commented upon the news story of the arrest of a $5-a-week chambermaid in a New York hotel who had stolen approximately $100,000 worth of jewelry from the rooms of guests. The comment here was to the general effect that the hotel which paid a chambermaid the pitiful wage of $5 a week and yet placed her in position where she could purloin such jewels, was little, if any, short of criminal itself.

Now comes a letter from T. B. Thurman, of Atlanta, which agrees with that general thesis, but adds the opinion that more stealing is done by what society terms the "better class" than by the poor wretches who are victims of a system that denies them not only the comforts, but many of the necessities of life.

Mr. Thurman seems, from his letter, to be referring principally to (to quote him) "people who are engaged in business and who engage in practices under that name that are as dishonest as any form of stealing specified in the penal code, but for which the law provides no penalty."

And he'd like to know this column's views on that angle of the topic. Well, here goes.

Behind The Times.

Well, in the first place, if Mr. Thurman believes, as he implies, that dishonesty is the general practice in business, I disagree entirely. Frankly, I think he's 'way behind the times. He must be living back in those dim, past ages when "Caveat Emptor" was the motto, "Let the Buyer Beware." I'm not going to attempt a Latin translation, but the modern warning might better be "Let the Seller Beware."

There are mighty few businessmen today who don't understand, thoroughly, that if they aren't scrupulously honest in their dealings with the public they won't be businessmen long. They'll be nothing but cases in the bankruptcy court, and ex-businessmen.

There are a number of conditions which keep the modern businessman honest and I think the first, and most effective, of these is advertising.

No firm can do business long nowadays without advertising. Profits no longer depend on extracting the biggest price possible from the individual customer who accidentally happens inside the store. They depend, rather, on giving the best possible value for the lowest possible price and thus attracting customers in such quantity that volume makes the business pay.

And how do you attract customers in quantity? Only one way. By advertising.

Now, if that advertising isn't honest and if the goods sold are not as represented, at a proper price, the quantity stream of customers isn't going to last long. For there won't be any repeaters, no regulars. And no business can succeed on one-time sales alone.

Then There's Regulation.

And haven't you heard of governmental regulation? The businessman of today is more an object of public sympathy than of public suspicion. For, with all the governmental agencies he has to answer to, report to and pay to, he is bedeviled from early morning to late night by officials who are too apt to gaze upon him with cold and fishy eyes.

Racketeers Are Different.

Of course, Mr. Thurman may be confusing businessmen and racketeers. A totally different breed. Every activity of the racketeer is dishonest, usually. But to call him a businessman is to cruelly smear a class of men who have, actually, contributed more to the desirable features of modern American life than any other.

There are, of course, individuals who try to make a profit out of sweat-shop labor. Who take advantage of helpless employes by vicious underpayment. That, however, is racketeering and is outrageously dishonest as well as brutally inhuman.

But they don't come under Mr. Thurman's imaginary classification. For the law does provide a penalty, if they are caught.

There are the 260-percenters, the illegal loan sharks and salary buyers. Dishonest? To be sure. But illegal too. The law provides a penalty for them, too.

No, there aren't many dishonest businessmen today. Advertising sheds too strong a light of publicity and the businessman is rare who is so dumb he doesn't know that the business life of the trickster is not only unsavory, but mighty short as well.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Saturday, February 20, 1915:

"This afternoon a matinee performance of 'Camille' will be given at the Atlanta by the Baldwin-Melville stock company."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Thursday, February 20, 1890:

"The greatest game of billards played here for a long while past was enjoyed yesterday at the Kimball. It was a four ball and a four handed game. Judge Henry Tanner and Mr. Clark Howell played Mr. Howell Irwin and Mr. Zack Castleberry. The judge and his partner won by a scratch."

Oklahoma Marksmen.

Denizens of the underworld who may be contemplating a change of address to Tulsa, Okla., ought to ponder a couple of recent events that took place there.

N. C. (Shorty) Williams, motorcycle patrolman, outshot a half dozen F. B. I. agents, an assortment of sheriffs, constables, policemen and railway officers for a score of 94 to gain the title of "best pistol shot in Oklahoma."

On the same day, Patrolman Grady Porter, whose specialty is "pinching bootleggers," was out rabbit hunting and shot 72 rabbits in 73 tries.

"One got away," explained Porter, laconically. "He saw me aim. His hair turned white and I couldn't see him against the snow. So I missed."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Envy, That's All. NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Nothing could be further from my intention than to doubt the word of such men as John Kieran, the professional know-it-all of the radio and J. Otis Swift, who writes quiet things about the intimate affairs of little birds and squirrels. I just envy them, that is all.

Mr. Kieran knows the calls of all the birds, and when he goes out golfing he is always stopping and saying, "Well, a double-breasted junco; it's early for them," or "last week I discovered a nest of Carolina due-bills. You seldom see them this far north."

Do you happen to know that public park in St. Louis across the street from the hotel where the ball clubs used to stop? Sometimes in the morning we would go around the first nine, and Mr. Kieran would lag back and pull one ear out a foot and stand still as a hydrant until from somewhere in the rough or in a clump of shrubs there would come a tiny little no-account creak. Then he would let his ear snap back and smile and say, "I will bet you don't know what that was."

And Will Murphy, or whoever, would say, "Come on and shoot. I love four to yonder."

Birds Have To Trust You. He knew the names of all the flowers, too, and even the weeds; and I have thought that if he were to grow an apostolic beard and hair down over his shoulders and pick out a bench in some park the sparrows and pigeons would come and pick birdseed out of his lips. Like that man in Paris, in that park across, you know that street that runs past the Continental and the Meurice. The birds have to trust you. You have to have a certain way.

Mr. Swift is that way, too. I have never met Mr. Swift, but I have read his pieces, boy and man, down the years, for years and years. You know what he does, even? He even watches weed-seeds to see what they do, in the dead of winter. Like the other day when he heard a male goldfinch exclaim, "per-chick-o-rie," as it tore some thistleheads to pieces, spilling some of the seeds on the snow, and he watched the wind roll them along until they dropped down a deep hole melted around the stem of a weed where the spring rains will hatch them into more thistles. Thus life goes on.

I have never met him, but his son was cable editor on the night side of the U. P. back down the years, and the gift has skipped anyway one generation. Young Otis knew birds only by general classification, such as chickens, parrots, pigeons and little birds. The various weeds were just hay to him.

If I Didn't Care. It would be different if I didn't care. But I have tried and tried.

A friend up the road had so many deer around eating his apples that he would heave rocks at them and yell, "amscray, umsbay." And they would duck around the woodpile and come back for more apples. I even brought some store apples and a brick lick of salt, but the apples got frozen and covered with snow, and the deer never paid any of this hospitality any mind. One day I saw some scarlet runners scratching around in the snow, so I got a streamlined fender and filled it up with the regular blue-plate special, including sunflower seed and the little kind that you feed canaries. There hasn't been a bird around since.

If I watch a weed-seed it sulks. You can go crazy watching weed-seeds.

Once I got a sheep. I got a female because they say the females are gentle and come arrunning if you call them. But mine was a dog-killer. She would lower her head, her yellow eyes glaring, her lips curled back from her sharp fangs in a menacing snarl or creep out on an overhanging limb, lashing her tail until the dog was safe. She attacked people, too. I gave her to a farmer, and he shot her in self-defense, just as she was crouching to spring. Johnny Kieran or Mr. Swift probably would have made a house sheep out of her.

It was the same way about insects. I read how Mr. Fabre, with the aid of ordinary reading glasses and a little patience let himself into a whole miniature world of insect affairs, including nations, dictators and wars.

But all I saw was some ants and bugs chasing around like mad.

One day when I was sitting in the weeds peering through the glass, a little boy came over and watched me a minute. Then he said, "For God's sake." That was all he said. Then he walked off. You have to be the type.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

HARD TIMES ROAD ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 19.—Not far out of Albany along the road to Newton, there turns off a road which is called "The Hard Times Road" or the "Hard-Up Road." The Negroes in that section called it both.

No one quite knows how it got its name. I recall the first of the southern amateur field trials nine years ago and a barbecue held by an old church on that road.

The field trial which began today was in that territory. I remembered, riding along the quiet dirt road, the old Negro who sat as a sort of master of ceremonies, watching his staff of younger men barbecue the meat.

This was in the midst of the great depression. I asked this ancient man how the road got its name.

"I don't rightly know, suh, how that was," he said. "I guess some folks along here got right hard up, suh. And had some hard times."

He stopped and looked at the meat over the sizzling coals and called to a boy, "Bring me a piece of that there brown meat." He tasted it with the discerning wisdom of one who has savored a thousand barbecues, and said, "Put on some more of that sauce."

I waited until he had tested the meat and asked:

"Do you suppose times were as hard as they are now?" This was in 1933 and times were very, very hard. "Times hard now, suh?" he asked. "No, suh, times ain't hard now. Why, my pigs ain't never been as fat as they is this year. And my collards got just the right amount of frost and is good and sweet. I never did see such a crop of black-eyed peas. My old woman done put up enough peas and we got so much meat we is going to have good eating all year. No, suh, no indeed. Times ain't hard now."

Those were the days when suicides filled the newspapers; when banks were in jeopardy and when the magic of Franklin D. Roosevelt's courage and optimism was just beginning to lift things.

I thought of all that and, listening to the ancient Negro with his gray hair, agreed that, after all, everything is relative.

I asked about the old man and they told me he had gone on to his reward. It is a good one, I am sure, and I imagined him sitting by the celestial barbecue pits, looking on with a wise eye and saying to some busy cherub,

"Boy, let me taste some of that brown meat."

GENERAL WINSHIP Members of the Southern Amateur Field Trial Club were welcoming General Blanton Winship, famous Georgian who has served his country as governor general of the Philippines, of Puerto Rico, and who has served as emissary in Europe.

Retired now, the general is coming back to his native Georgia and the life he loves.

Standing about a fire waiting for lunch today, he said:

"I plan to have my own dogs in the trial next year. This year I'm just watching. I always have liked to shoot. My mother used to say she spent her time raising boys and bird dogs and we boys always liked dogs. We had both pointers and setters."

General Winship did his country a great service in Puerto Rico. The Spanish used to let nature take its course there. In the days when they ruled it, yellow fever, malaria and other diseases kept the population down to a workable figure.

The United States, on taking over the island, reduced disease so much the population gained a half million in 40 years.

General Winship was there when some of the radicals, inspired no doubt by foreign influences, resorted to violence. His life was threatened and efforts made to assassinate him. He went on appearing in public and he held the esteem and admiration of the great majority of Puerto Ricans.

When he left the island was at peace and the radical, foreign-inspired elements were no longer a menace.

The Puerto Ricans want not independence, but to be admitted to statehood. The first impression is they are not ready for statehood. But when one considers what some of our states have sent to congress one cannot be too sure.

At any rate, it is most enjoyable having General Winshop back in Georgia and in the field trials.

ALBANY FIGHTS BACK Coming back to Albany from the peaceful roads, the quiet roads and the brown fields one sees at the field trial, makes the entry into the city more shocking than if one comes into it along one of the main streets.

The disaster of the tornado still is so terrible and awesome to see one wonders why hundreds were not killed even though the storm did strike at an early hour before dawn.

The Albany spirit is magnificent. The sound of hammers and saws is heard from early morning until late afternoon. A start is being made but one sees it will be months before the disaster is conquered. The damage here in property was twice that at Gainesville. But Albany is at work.

Henry T. McIntosh and his staff of the Albany Herald make one proud of being a newspaperman.

With the help of friendly neighbors they managed to get out their edition every day. Their plant was opened again last Monday. Entering it at seven in the morning with not a line of type set, they got out a 14-page newspaper at 2:30 in the afternoon. Yesterday their Sunday edition was a special one and a most excellent one. They printed 20,000 and thought perhaps they had printed too many. In the afternoon of Sunday it was necessary to start the presses and print 5,000 more.

The First Purpose of Union Is To Unite the Strength of All To Protect Each One

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

When an American citizen trying to do business in a foreign country appeals to our government for protection against some grave injustice, there are many people who say: "Let him take his medicine. It isn't right to endanger the rest of us for the sake of some adventurer in a foreign land. Let him stay at home where he belongs."

But the world's business can't be done by staying at home. Every nation has agents in our country to buy our products and find a market for their own. And we must have agents everywhere to get the things we need and find a market for our surplus products.

An American in a foreign land is more than a private citizen. He represents the dignity and the power and glory of a great nation. He is a part of America, and is so regarded. If the natives hate America, they persecute him. If they feel friendly toward America, they honor him.

We cannot desert him without deserting our country. He is one of us. An injustice done to him is an injustice done to America. To deny him protection because he is outside our borders is to shame our country before the world. It is a proud privilege to be a free citizen of the world's greatest nation, but no man is worthy of it who will not give to fellow citizens the same rights and protection he claims for himself.

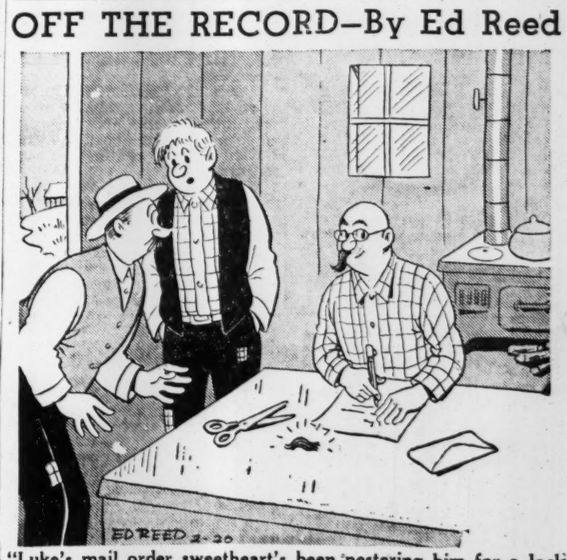

Custom and common sense require the alien in any land to abide by the laws that govern its citizens, but he is entitled to the protection of his country if controlled courts or the arbitrary power of an executive deny him elemental rights and simple justice.

Various backward countries, possessing great natural resources but lacking both the skill and the money to develop them, have encouraged Americans to undertake the job on some kind of percentage basis. Operating under such a "concession" is always a gamble. One American oil company has just finished opening a new oil field in South America, and the cost of roads, pipe line and other construction was so great that it must take out 100 million dollars' worth of oil before it gets a cent of profit.

Other companies have invested millions in Latin America, and received small return after paying wages and taxes, and now they are in danger of losing their whole investment by "expropriation"—which means theft from a foreigner by the government.

The losers are not the investors alone, but every American who feels a decent pride in the good name and prestige of his country.

ROW ON ALTMARK EXPECTED TO LAST LONGER THAN WAR

Norway's Neutrality in Jeopardy; Unrestricted Attacks on Shipping Believed Likely Result.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

The English raid into neutral Norwegian waters to rescue more than 300 British seamen from the Nazi prison-ship Altmark bids fair to raise a lot of ruction before we are quit of it.

Already it has precipitated a six-shooter argument in international law which will outlast this war.

It has placed Norway's anxiously guarded neutrality in jeopardy, owing to Germany's anger because Norway didn't prevent the delivery—and if that neutrality goes by the board we get a new lineup of belligerents.

It may help to influence the inauguration of an unrestricted Nazi submarine and bombing campaign against Allied shiping.

The Germans and the Norwegians charge England with violation of international law in making such an attack in neutral waters. Britain has informed Norway firmly that the Germans themselves were acting illegally by taking advantage of the cover of neutral waters, and that the British destroyer Cossack was wholly within her rights when she drove the Altmark among the rocks of the ice-bound shore of the fjord. England also challenges the Norwegian handling of the situation.

It is important to note, that when it comes to international law to wartime, the judge, jury and lord high executioner in any case are one and the same individual—the fellow who is quickest on the draw. He says what the law is, and that remains the law (for him) so long as he can maintain it. That is a cold fact which every neutral must face.

Naturally this incident has made the countries of our hemisphere sit up and take notice, since what can happen in Norwegian waters could happen quite as well in any neutral zone. Indeed, this side of the Atlantic already has experienced several embarrassing affairs.

Of much more concern, however, is the fact that Germany immediately let it be known unofficially through the press that it considers itself free to wage unrestricted warfare on Allied shipping. This action was premised on the announcement by the British first lord of the admiralty that English ships were to be armed with anti-aircraft guns, but the German's spoke in the heat of anger over the British action against the Altmark.

There is no indication at the moment that Norway won't be able to ride out the neutrality storm. Should she be pulled into the war as the result of German rage, Sweden probably would be caught in the current. In that event it is difficult to see how they could do other than cast their lot with the Anglo-French Allies, in view of the assault on their neighbor, Finland, by Hitler's friend Stalin.

That, of course, would please England and France no end, for it would give them a chance to send troops through Sweden to the Rescue of the Finns, and thus open up a new front in northern Europe against Hitler.

Spalding Runs Across Human Head Bootlegger

(Quito, Ecuador, likes to sit calmly in the sunshine and let the rest of the world go by, Jack Spalding finds on his visit to that 'little bit of heaven." Yet not far away are the head-hunters and there is a bootleg head for sale in Quito).

By JACK SPALDING.
Staff Correspondent.

QUITO, Ecuador, Tuesday, February 13.—(By Mail)—Heaven, say the Quitenos, has a window that opens on Quito. Otherwise it would be impossible to be happy there forever.

They may be right. Looking Quito over would be a very pleasant way to spend part of eternity.

Quito is that rare thing, a city that is content to be itself. Unlike other Latin capitals it stands on its own merits and has no shoddy imitations of Paris and New York corners to please its citizens and weary its visitors.

It is simply Quito, an unself-conscious compound of timelessness, cleanliness, leisure, sunny patios, good living, sparkling fountains, clear blue skies and air cooled by the perpetual snows of the Andes.

Sad Love Songs.

Woven in its bright pattern is a thread of music; of stately Gregorian chants heard in the dim light of a baroque church; of lilting Spanish rhythms in a smoky cafe; of sad love songs and the mournful minor wail of an Indian flute as some descendant of the Incas retells the tragic story of his race to the listening hills.

Quito is ageless. Before Columbus, Quito was. Its old buildings rise on ancient foundations laid by the Incas. In Quito the centuries blend and time is a peaceful stream.

The world is remote from Quito. Europe and the mad little man with the moustache are like half-remembered dreams. In Quito that is older than history, news seems unimportant. Papers are thrown away with a shrug and Quito goes about its business of living. It is too mature for hysteria.

Quito has been tempered by the fires of wars and revolution and bathed in its own blood. Its original inhabitants were conquered by the Incas who then were subjected by the Spaniards. Its people threw off the Spanish yoke and warred with their neighbors and themselves. Recently there was an opera bouffe revolution. There was a presidential election; a candidate with more ambition than votes went into exile; four aviators were shot and a handful of people thrown in jail.

Nothing Matters.

To Quito it was that and nothing more; a stone thrown in a still pool, something that has happened before, something that will happen again, but in the last analysis nothing that really mattered.

Quito is steeped in simple truths. It puts its faith in the grateful warmth of the sun, the southern cross that wheels across the heavens at night and in the good earth. Quito is past sophistication.

Quito remembers what the rest of the world has nearly forgotten, that the sum total of human achievement is a very little thing indeed, and that man is more than a body to be fed.

"Thus Passes the Glory of the World," is carved in stone on Quito's churches. And Quitenos, careless of the transitory glory, sit in the sun and laugh.

Full of the wisdom of the ages, Quito lives in peace in a cloistered Andean valley, her feet in the soil and her face turned to the stars.

The capital of Ecuador, Quito lies just south of the equator and more than 9,000 feet above the sea. Its narrow streets meet hillsides and change into long flights of shallow stairs. They curve from plaza to plaza and dive under stone arches, carved with the coats of arms of Spanish knights and bishops.

To the west of Quito is a high cordillera and beyond that the coastal plain where cacao, Ecuador's chief export is raised. To the east is another cordillera whose foothills slope down to the Amazon basin. Eastern Ecuador is an unexplored, unbounded land of immense natural riches. Very few white men have penetrated it. Fewer have come out. There live the savage tribes who count their wealth not in beads or cattle, but by the number of human heads that hang from the roof-tree of their huts.

Head for Sale.

There is a head on sale in Quito at a bootleg price. There is also a $500 fine for attempting to smuggle it out of the country. It is a gruesome caricature of humanity, shrunk to the size of an orange, yet with the proportion of every feature perfectly preserved.

Because there are tales of buried Inca gold in the east, streams that run over gold-flecked rocks and oil that bubbles from the ground, there are stories of adventurers who went in and were not heard from again until their heads turned up one day. The stories are variations on the same theme.

The most common one is the tale of a tourist who wanted a head as a souvenir. He was shown a blond one. Sometimes it turns out to be an old friend.

Then there is the one abont the rescue party that cut through the jungle after a lost explorer to find his head dangling by the topknot in the lodge of an apologetic chieftain. Occasionally, the lost one's head is found by a brother explorer who mutters, "By gad, it's Joe," and takes a quick drink.

Most effective is the story of the brave wife who insisted on accompanying the expedition in spite of hardships. This one has several endings.

Prowling around a dirty village, she stumbles across all that remains of her ex-husband, swoons and goes mad. Or she shoots the chief and then herself. Or better yet, she only goes half crazy and takes the head home with her, or sets up housekeeping with it in the jungle.

(In his next article, Spalding says he is dripping with money. You swap an American dollar and get 15 Quito bills in return. He's very happy).

American motion pictures are much more popular in Mexico than a year ago.

GOOD MORNING
By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

TEXAS.

This is written from Fort Worth, in between flights from one to another place in this vast empire. Texas is too big to write about—you just have to see it to get any idea of its size. Coming down here from Dallas just now, I asked a man if he had ever seen all of Texas. "No," he answered, "I will have to wait to get to Heaven to see all of Texas."

The streets are wide, and I asked Dr. Scarborough why they were so wide as we drove out to Seminary Hill this morning. "So they can drive the cows through them," he answered. In other words, they laid out their cities for cows instead of cars, and it works mighty fine, now that the cars have taken the place of the cows.

"Look any direction you wish," said President Neff this morning, "and you will see fine fields, fine cows and fine men." President Neff was formerly governor of this state. He now presides over Baylor University, the largest Baptist university in the world. I am writing this in Dr. Scarborough's office, the president of the largest Baptist seminary in the world. I will speak tonight (Friday) at a dinner in honor of Dr. Truett, pastor of the largest Baptist church in the world. And so it goes.

But these folks out here in Texas, having the largest of everything, are in no sense egotistical about it all. They are beautiful in their courtesies. They have a spirit of tolerance that is most appealing to the visitor. They keep talking about how much Georgia did for Texas in sending such great men as Jenkins, McConnell, Truett and others out here.

At the great University of Texas I met a gentleman who was telling me how great Georgia is. I asked him to write it down for me, but he said he preferred for me to take it in broken doses—that it would finally soak in. And when you hear one of these men tell you about Georgia's greatness—a man who knows as much as this professor of history—it does give you a renewed sense of gratitude for Georgia.

But don't forget that you have a lots to see if you have not seen Texas.

OPINION IS DIVIDED ON ITALY'S POLICY

Equal Number of Britons See Her as Ally, Still Neutral.

By American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 19.—The average Britisher in a new survey of British public opinion indicates a belief that Italy will either join with England and France against Germany before the war is over or will remain neutral to the end.

EXCLUSIVE

The survey, conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion, asked a representative cross-section of the public in the United Kingdom: "Which do you think Italy will do in this war—join the Allies, join Germany, or remain neutral?"

The answers, to be published in London tomorrow, are as follows:

Join Allies	34%
Remain neutral	34
Join Germany	5
Undecided or don't know	27

In the last war Italy joined with the Allies in 1915 despite an existing alliance with Germany and Austria-Hungary.

SEAL TAKES TO ROAD; TOURISTS ADOPT HIM

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Cal., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Walden Flick, Harold Perkins and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Boyle, tourists from Indianapolis, were riding along the highway when they spied a seal. They stopped as he waved a flipper, much in the manner of a hitch-hiker, and took him in.

Now "Oscar" has a dog collar and a leash, and the prospect of a trip to Indianapolis.

MISSISSIPPI COUNTIES TO GET FOOD STAMPS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP) Secretary Wallace announced today a decision to extend the food stamp plan to Forrest and Jones counties in Mississippi.

He said operation of the program would begin in about a month.

19 DRIVERS ARE FINED FOR PARKING ON RAILS

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Feb. 19.—(AP)—You'd hardly think it necessary, but 19 motorists were given parking tags and fined for parking their cars on the Pennsylvania railroad tracks here.

Snow hid the rails. Three trains were stopped in one day, to prevent wrecking the autos.

Real Truth Can Be Learned Only at Front, Says White

By WILLIAM L. WHITE.
Special Correspondent.

IN THE FRONT LINES WITH THE ARMY OF FINLAND: (By Mail)—I wonder if the boys of the A. E. F. have forgotten how sweet a trench feels. That memory should not dim, because a nice well-made trench is one of the most pleasant things of life. All morning we had been throwing ourselves flat in the snow and feeling cold in the small of the back when the big shells came screaming through and over the pines from Russia. The first few times the newspaper men did it under orders, then they saved themselves a few dives by watching the bluff and hearty major who was conducting us, and who resembled a Notre Dame football coach. When he dived into a snow bank the world press dived with him, but when he knew by the tone that the shell would go screaming harmlessly over the treetops, we also kept on walking.

In the course of this I learned a useful diving technique—I became expert at landing on top of my white cotton ku klux klan regalia of camouflage, which kept the snow out of my boots and neck in this weather, 33 degrees below zero.

When we got to the communication trench it was better, for here you needed only to stoop, and the deep, well-buttressed front line trench was the best of all. There you needed only to nod your head when they came howling at you like famished banshees. A good, stout, deep trench goes down, along with a rare sirloin with mushrooms, a cold swim on a hot day, and a couple of other items, as among the four or five most pleasant things in life.

EXCLUSIVE

In between curtsying to machine gun bullets and shrapnel, we watched the front line soldiers at work. Since no Russian attack was expected that day, the trench was thinly but adequately manned every 15 or 20 yards by a tough, grinning Finnish soldier in steel helmet, camouflage and an automatic rifle.

Each had built, at his post, a recessed shelf in the paper sand bags, on which lay extra clips of cartridges and four or five potato-masher type hand-grenades. One of these usually had a small box of dynamite—about as big as a cigaret package—tightly wired to its head, for tossing under the tread of any Russian tank that might come lumbering and rolling over the logs and barbed wire of no-man's land toward the trench.

If you ask if the enemy troops are good, you get a thoughtful, honest answer. Some are and some are not, but you always can know by how well their formations are kept when they come over in an attack. And it is the same with their officers: Some are skillful, some are brave, others are neither.

I think you get truth in the front lines because here men get out of the habit of lying to others or themselves. Here everything must be known exactly, for all life depends on having the facts exactly as they are.

You cannot lie to yourself in the front lines about anything and live long. So out here, between the walls of paper sandbags, truth becomes a habit, and only civilians have the luxury of believing what they would like to believe.

Tokyo, Japan, has a milk shortage.

BLESSINGS CONFUSED.

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Mixed blessings were reported by one Negro woman who survived the tornado. "Christmas I had a big fireplace and no wood," she explained. "Now there's all the wood I wanted, but no fireplace."

At the CITY HALL

Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, yesterday was re-elected unanimously for another three-year term. He has held the position for the last 17 years and is widely known in planning and zoning circles of the southeast.

Alderman L. O. Moseley, of the third ward, who has been ill for the past several weeks, yesterday was up for the first time, and notified council he will return from Florida to assume his duties within 10 days or two weeks.

Miss Dorothy Daniel, secretary of the Georgia Rainbow Girls' drill team, yesterday thanked the mayor and council for designating the unit as the official drill team of the city of Atlanta.

Mayor Hartsfield and city council yesterday accepted an invitation to attend citations by Old Hickory Chapter No. 98, Military Order of the Purple Heart, at Fort McPherson at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. Fred J. Cliff, commander, extended the official invitation.

Alderman Lester Brewer and Councilmen John T. Marler and Mac Bolen, members of the fourth ward delegation in council, yesterday announced they will nominate D. M. Therrell, former president of the board of education, to succeed Ernest Brewer, resigned fourth ward board member. The nomination will take place at the March 4 council session to comply with a law that a resignation must remain on the desk for two weeks after it is submitted to council.

The city was $323,331.21 richer yesterday when the Georgia Power Company and the Southern Bell Telephone Company paid that sum into the municipal treasury, representing gross receipt taxes for the year 1939. The power company paid $290,884.42, as against $266,727.50 for 1938. The Southern Bell organization's 1939 payment was $32,446.79, as compared to $29,785.93 for 1938.

City council's finance committee will attempt to work out details of necessary changes in water mains and sewer lines incident to construction of the West North avenue underpass, it was decided yesterday. Adjustments of the mains will cost about $70,000, it was said.

Vice Chairman John T. Marler, of council's police committee, yesterday announced that the deferred session of the committee will be held at the police station beginning at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Lack of a quorum caused postponement of the meeting last Friday night.

Speedier condemnation procedure of the city is the object of a measure approved yesterday by council. Alderman Frank H. Reynolds, chairman of council's sewer committee, proposed that the next legislature be asked to make available for the municipality the same procedure as Fulton county now enjoys. He explained it takes the city six months to conform to state requirements, while the county can "condemn properties for public use in two weeks."

At the COURTHOUSE

On order of Lieutenant Cal Cates, of the Fulton county police, bond of Mrs. Jimmie Adams, held as a suspected accomplice in a number of recent northside burglaries, was increased from $2,500 to $5,000 yesterday. The woman, police say, is suspected with Robert A. Manners under indictment for the burglary of the homes of Dr. Lawson Thornton, Samuel Baum and C. L. Gillette.

Roy Wilson, a 14-year-old youth, was accused of burglarizing the home of Luke Appling, major league ball player, by county police yesterday. Appling's home on North avenue was entered last week. County Police John Davis and E. G. Fitzgerald said they traced a pistol, taken from the Appling home to the youthful suspect who is in jail on another burglary charge.

County Policeman Hugh Perryman yesterday arrested and placed in Fulton Tower a man who gave the name of Jack O. Everson, of Jacksonville, Fla., on charges of attempting to cheat and swindle. Perryman said Everson claimed he fell in a downtown office building Saturday and injured himself. The insurance company involved sent Everson to a private hospital where he was arrested by Perryman after consulting the physician who attended Everson. Bond was fixed at $2,000.

Ivan Cochran, deputy clerk, Fulton superior court, was back on the job yesterday after an illness of several days.

William Sanders, 19-year-old youth, who recently figured in an escapade with city detectives that resulted in the killing of Jack Matthews, 18 years old, was acquitted by a jury in Fulton criminal court yesterday of attempted auto larceny charges. Matthews was killed by Detective J. D. Corley as he ran from a Nassau street parking lot. The shooting was termed accidental. Sanders is now serving on probation a five-year sentence for auto theft.

BIRTHS

Birth certificates were filed in Atlanta yesterday for the following families: H. P. Eidson, Union City, Ga., son; M. E. Harris, 24 Rhodesia avenue, S. E., son; P. T. McDonell, 564 Brownwood avenue, son; J. M. Smith, College Park, Ga., son; A. H. Sentell, Smyrna, Ga., son; G. B. Smith, 306 Atlanta avenue, daughter; W. E. Garrison, 567 Techwood drive, daughter; M. W. Hood, 1096 Boulevard drive, daughter; E. H. Gibson, East Point, Ga., son; T. E. Barber Jr., 80 13th street, N. E., daughter; D. L. Jones, 38 Eddie avenue, S. E., daughter; L. W. Overstreet, 113 South Grand, son; J. A. Boyd, 405 Fourth street, daughter; J. T. Coggins, Conley, Ga., son; F. D. Pierce, East Point, Ga., daughter; P. Tenebaum, 1037 Washington, son; S. Krantz, 55 LaFayette drive, daughter; R. B. Vance, 81 Peachtree Battle, daughter; J. F. Smith, 531 Ashby street, son; P. C. Jett, 483 Payne, daughter; R. A. Cox, 106 Linden avenue, daughter; T. V. Aldredge, route No. 4, daughter; M. L. Clonts, East Point, Ga., daughter; C. W. Leming, East Point, Ga., son.

At the STATE CAPITOL

They may get their feathers ruffled but all the stuffed birds—as well as animals—in the wild life exhibit of Georgia's state museum are literally "going to the cleaners" before they are allowed to occupy a place in the new, modernized display, plans for which already have been announced. Wild life experts were saying yesterday that some of the raccoons look like black beavers, and some of the birds like buzzards. It has been a long time since these specimens had a good dusting.

Comptroller General W. B. Harrison was studying a comptroller's report of 1864 yesterday. It was a bit yellow and tattered, but among the things it revealed was that in 1864 Georgia's slaves were valued at $762,105,994, while the value of all the property in the state at that time was $1,612,592 906.

Dr. A. S. Furcron, state geologist, left yesterday for Kolomoki mounds, which is not a place in China, but a newly created state park near Blakely. Today he will investigate sites for a dam.

A number of school books were destroyed during Albany's recent tornado. But the children will not have to do without books just because the elements went wild. Officials of the Department of Education said the books were going to be replaced without any charge to the Albany schools.

Hallman Bell, of Richland, member of the state welfare board, came to see Governor Rivers yesterday. The Governor was out, however.

Do you know Georgia's seven natural wonders? Take a look in the capitol some time, and you'll see pictures of them. Here they are: Long Swamp valley marble deposits in Pickens county, Amicalola falls in Dawson county, Okefenokee swamp in southeast Georgia Tallulah gorge in Rabun county, the national forest on Jekyll island, Warm Springs, and Stone mountain.

Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, will address a joint "fathers and sons" meeting of the Kiwanis Club and Future Farmers of America tonight in Cairo. He will talk on "Vocational Education."

Ben T. Huiet, commissioner of labor, was back on the job yesterday after a week's trip to Washington, where he conferred with officials of the Social Security Board.

Joel Chandler Harris' "Uncle Remus" sories are much in demand, Miss Ella May Thornton, state librarian, said yesterday in commenting on books. They're even reading Uncle Remus tales in Russia, where 275,000 copies were sold from January to August last year. And collectors are interested especially in getting Harris' first editions. Ivy Lee's "Memories of Joel Chandler Harris" is offered for $15, while the same dealer quotes a "Gone With the Wind" first at $12.50.

R. H. Driftmier, of Athens, supervising engineer for the board of regents, was at the capitol yesterday for a conference with Chancellor S. V. Sanford.

Attorney General Ellis Arnall will go to Athens tomorrow, to address the student body of Lumpkin Law school as guest of Dean Alton Hosch. Arnall was graduated from the school in 1931 with first honors.

Zach Arnold, state auditor, yesterday submitted to Governor Rivers an audit of the DeKalb county school system for the year ended June 30 and the six months ended December 31, 1939. The audit showed total expense payments for the year were $223,277.65, and for the six months $88,093.87.

OFFICERS TO HEAR DEFENSE REPORT

Annual Program Will Be Reviewed Tomorrow.

With the 1940 observance of National Defense Week drawing to a close with a Washington birthday celebration Thursday, Atlanta reserve officers will hear a report of the 10-day program of activities tomorrow night preceding the semi-monthly military school session at 8 o'clock at the Georgia Tech military department.

Major Dee Berry, chairman for the National Defense Week program in the fifth congressional district will speak at the Reserve Officers Association meeting at 7:30 o'clock. This meeting will follow an executive committee session at 8 o'clock at Peacock Alley, Captain Robert L. Watkins, president, announced.

Major Tuttle spoke on national defense yesterday before the Atlanta Lighting Club. He asserted that America's defense forces are inadequately equipped, and that the greatest need is to equip and train civilians who, in event of war, would be called upon to fight.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

Doctors Say
KEEP BOWELS OPEN
During Cold Epidemics

When colds are all around you, don't let weak spots in your defense arise due to constipation. "Keep Regular," many physicians advise.

For constipation and its strength-sapping symptoms; headache, biliousness, sluggishness, dizziness, sour stomach, use a laxative that acts thoroughly but not harshly. An ideal one is Dr. Hitchcock's All-Vegetable Laxative Powder, which acts thoroughly, but usually with gentleness when taken as directed. It contains pleasant-tasting aromatics, carminatives and what is known by medical authorities as a gastro-intestinal tonic-laxative. It helps tone sluggish bowel muscles.

Dr. Hitchcock's Laxative Powder costs less than 1c a dose. Get it at any drug counter. 10c, 25c. (adv.)

For Misery from HEAD COLDS use MENTHOLATUM

Link them together in your mind!

ARE you at the mercy of a sniffy, sneezy, smothery head cold? Why endure so much misery? A little Mentholatum applied in each nostril will soothe the irritated nasal membranes, check the sneezing, relieve the stuffiness, and help you to breathe more easily.

Also rub Mentholatum vigorously on the chest and back to improve the local blood circulation, and thus gain extra help in relieving cold discomforts. Rub it on the forehead and temples to allay headache and neuralgia due to colds.

TRY THIS VERY FAST RELIEF FOR PAINFUL SYMPTOMS OF COLDS

3 Steps shown here start to relieve both aches and sore-throat in a short time

1. To relieve headache, body discomfort and aches, take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

2. For sore throat from cold, dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in ½ glass of water and gargle. Pain, rawness are eased in a very short time.

3. Check temperature. If you have a fever and temperature does not go down — if throat pain is not quickly relieved, call your doctor.

Quick-acting Bayer Aspirin does it.

Don't wait if you even suspect you are catching a cold. At the first sign, follow the directions in the pictures above—the simplest and among the most effective methods known to modern science.

See Your Doctor. Even though he may wholeheartedly approve using Bayer Aspirin to relieve painful symptoms, you should not fail to see your family physician, because many colds may lead to serious consequences. Largely with medical approval, this simple, scientific method of relief has taken the place of old-fashioned strong medicine for colds, which may upset the system. Literally millions have adopted it.

Try this way. You will say it is unequalled, we are sure. When you buy, be sure you get the fast-acting Bayer product you want. Ask for Bayer Aspirin by the full name, not for just "aspirin" alone. And see that you get it.

DRAMATIC SPEED TEST

Drop a genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablet in water. Almost instantly it starts to disintegrate—is ready to go to work. Make this test, and see for yourself why Bayer Aspirin acts so quickly!

CHAPTER 3

HOW THE LONE RANGER CAPTURED "SILVER"

Copyright 1940, The Lone Ranger, Inc.

Silver Battles King Buffalo

Having mounted the hilltop, Silver surveyed the countryside, seeking out the advantages it offered for hiding, drinking, and grazing.

His sharp ears caught the sound of tramping feet. At first he thought they sounded like horses' hoofs as they struck the earth, but he was quick to realize the tramp of the feet was much heavier than a herd of horses would make.

From his vantage point on the hill, he saw a tiny bunch of specks, in appearance—because of the distance—much like little pebbles rolling here and there.

They were blotted from sight, momentarily, by a scrubby tree, but appeared again.

Silver's curiosity was aroused to full pitch, and off he dashed toward the specks, miles west of the spot where he had spent the night. Stopping only for water and a little grass, he pushed forward, unknowingly, to meet with the greatest adventure he had yet had, from his colt stage to his present age.

Silver, standing behind some bushes, watched the queer animals as they grazed and drank from a nearby river. Often some would run about in a circle full speed, tearing up the sod beneath them with their flying hoofs.

He could not figure out what they were. Their necks were hard to see, for it seemed the head and the body were as one. He did not advance at once, but continued to study them further.

He noticed that one of the queer things had caused another of its kind to bellow in pain by rushing at it, head first, and sticking some pointed things on its head into the other animal, which also had these pointed things on his head. By the sound of agony the stuck animal made, Silver realized those pointed things must be dangerous. He decided in case the queer animals attacked him, he would be careful that those sharp things on their heads would not touch him.

DANGER—BUFFALOES AHEAD!

Memory brought a dim picture before him. His mother and father were next to him, and he remembered his father telling his mother about the meeting with the buffaloes, and how they fought with horns, mostly, and that they rushed with the speed of the wind and knocked objects down before them, like the mighty river which pushes great trees before it.

These were buffaloes, Silver concluded, after noticing how much likeness there was between these animals and those his father had described.

Finally he came out from behind the bushes and dashed up to the surprised bison. The herd, consisting of fifty or more buffaloes, gathered together. A mighty bison, King of the group, slowly walked toward Silver.

Silver's skin shivered. He felt he was in for a fight and doubted, for the first time, his ability as a fighter compared to that of the powerful looking creature coming toward him.

He steadied himself. With a roar, like a shot from a cannon, the buffalo tripled his speed and, head downward, came toward the ready horse. Silver for a fleeting second thought of running, but pride steadied him and, rearing on his hind legs, he met the onrush of the mountain of animal muscle.

A cloud of dust and flying turf hid the scene of battle for a moment but, after it cleared away, there could be seen a torn animal lifting itself up off the ground only to be thrown down again beneath the hammering hoofs of a silver colored horse. However, the bison hurled itself clear of the horse's hoofs and, rising to its feet, again prepared to rush. Silver retreated a few yards and watched his enemy.

STRUGGLE FOR SUPREMACY

Many a mountain lion, horse, and other animal had been subdued by the cutting hoofs of Silver, and little wonder the brave horse was troubled by the amazing amount of punishment his foe could stand without being beaten. Now almost exhausted by the battle, he faced an enemy full of vigor, ready to attack again.

The infuriated buffalo charged. This time Silver leaped to one side and the bison flew past. Turning, uttering a loud bellow as he came, he rushed at the whinnying horse. THEY MET!

Silver's defiant, shrill cries mingled with the blatant bellowing. Thunderous snorts of the maddened buffalo filled the air with the dull thudding sound of the impact of heavy animal bodies as they struggled and swung against each other in their supremacy for life.

Blazing eyes and foaming mouths. Rearing horse and crouching buffalo. A gorgeous and terrifying scene of battle—a stage-setting in animal-life which a playwright would have been eager to reproduce for a human audience, but there were only the prairie and the elements for its audience.

HOW MERITA CAPTURED FLAVOR

Many a dab of delicious butter made a real success in life only because it rode home to glory on a slice of Merita Bread. Many a spread of jam or jelly—born otherwise to go unsung—brought down the house because it played its final role against a backdrop of Merita. Instead of dancing meek attention on fancier foods as other breads might do, Merita Bread is the life of the party!

It has a flavor all its own—a flavor that counts up to a big and toothsome total in three square meals a day. Are you and yours getting all possible pleasure from your daily association with the staff of life? If bread has become a routine in your home—instead of an adventure—switch to The Lone Ranger's favorite bread! One slice explains why Merita is the South's fastest-selling bread.

SIX MORE OFFICERS WILL BE SOUGHT FOR WAR ON 'BUG'

Vagrancy Law Weapon Racketeers Fear Most, Boykin Declares; More Rewards Are Offered.

Enlargement of the city's special lottery squad by the addition of at least six men will be sought today, Acting Lieutenant P. H. Jones announced yesterday. He said he would file his request with Chief Bornsby this morning.

The city squad rounded up seven more lottery suspects yesterday.

Lieutenant Jones likewise issued a warning to owners and operators of legitimate businesses that they should not permit lottery writers and pickup men to hang out around their places.

"We are planning a series of organized raids on lottery hangouts and if we don't get any lottery evidence we will invoke the state's vagrancy law to hold those we know are engaged in the 'bug' business," he said.

Vagrancy Law Hurts.

Meanwhile, Solicitor General John A. Boykin termed Lieutenant Jones' use of the vagrancy law in fighting the "bug" the city's most effective weapon in stamping out the evil and increased his reward list to include players, writers and pickup men.

Previously he authorized a $50 reward for information leading to seizure of a lottery headquarters.

The solicitor general said he would pay $5 for each verified list of habitual lottery players and $10 for information leading to the arrest of a writer or pickup man with tickets.

Flexible Law.

Inid scussing the vagrancy law, which was invoked by police yesterday under Lieutenant P. H. Jones, the solictor general pointed out that the law is so flexible that you don't have to catch them playing writing or picking up the "bug."

"Just slap them in jail on a vagrancy charge," he said. "The law is very clear. It says a person must have a fair, honest and reputaole livlihood. Certainly the 'bug' won't come under the heading of reputable livlihoods.

"After we have charged them with vagrancy, it is up to them to prove they have a legitimate means of support or employment. Most of the racketeers fear this law more than they do the lottery law."

Meanwhile, Chief J. T. Dailey, of DeKalb county police, promised his support of the drive against the "bug" and issued an appeal for any information about the operation of the lottery in DeKalb county.

Solicitor Boykin also took occasion to charge that some legitimate business firms which are indirectly profiting from the operation of the lottery have inspired the so-called public protests aginst the chasing of lottery cars by police.

The solicitor said he had information that one auto salesman has been working up pubilc indignation by having caused phone calls and letters to be sent to newspapers, protesting against police speeding in the case of lottery suspects.

"The firm for which he works has sold more than 200 autos to racketeers an their girl friends," Boykin added.

In pushing his drive against the lottery, Boykin is now buisly engaged in preparing an enxhaustive report of lottery here for submission to the grand jury at the earliest possible moment.

Seven Suspects Arrested.

Those arrested yesterday were listed by police as Margaret Brown, 41, 542 Forrest road; Tom Guthrie, 34, 239 Milledge avenue; Ralph Crowell, 42, 542 Forrest road; Lizzie Marshall, 24, negro, 160 Butler street; Guy W. Sholtz, 20, 27 Gertrude place; Henry Stovall, 50, 996 Palmetto street, and J. I. Buice, 59. Buice was fined $27 before Recorder Callaway yesterday.

All but Crowell were charged with being lottery suspects. Crowell was booked on a charge of operating a dive.

Want To Become Street Cleaner? Tarzans Needed

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—So you want to become a street cleaner (says the sanitation department through the municipal civil service commission).

Well, can you pick up a 100-pound can of garbage and run 120 yards with it? Can you even pick it up?

Still interested?

Well, how about picking up an ordinary sweeper's cart, weighted to 120 pounds gross, and depositing it gently—gently, mind you—on a ledge 4 feet 6 inches high, the height of the loading edge of a collection truck.

These are a couple of things you'd be required to do in the physical examination for jobs in the department as outlined by the commission. Nearly 40,000 men are going to try for the jobs, which pay $1,800 annually.

SERVICE PLANNED FOR LATE JUSTICE

J. B. Hutcheson's Memory To Be Honored.

Memorial services for the late Associate Justice John B. Hutcheson, of the Georgia supreme court, will be held in the courtroom at the state capitol at 11 o'clock this morning.

Judge Hugh Dorsey, of Fulton superior court, is chairman of the memorial committee. After his report Associate Justice Samuel C. Atkinson will respond for the supreme court.

TATTNALL TO ENTER PRODUCE BUSINESS

Prison Board Discusses Fruit, Livestock Prospects.

Tattnall prison is going into the livestock, fruit and poultry business.

This developed yesterday as a delegation headed by Chancellor S. V. Sanford conferred with members of the prison board.

The officials discussed plans for improved breeding of livestock at the prison, the cultivation of such fruits as grapes, figs, strawberries, pecans and pears, and the raising of poultry.

MAYOR URGES HELP FOR 38,000 JOBLESS

Atlanta Groups Called on To Do Some Thinking About Situation.

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday called upon business and civic leaders, civic organizations, women's clubs, churches, newspapers and radio stations "to bestir themselves into some clear thinking and aggressive action on behalf of the 38,000 men and women in our midst who are unemployed."

He spoke on the first program of the "Job Clinic," broadcast from Atlanta's state employment service office, over WSB. The clinic, which is scheduled for 12:45 o'clock each Monday, is a program in which applicants for work set forth their qualifications.

Speaking of the large number of unemployed persons registered at the office, the mayor said:

"These are self-respecting men and women. They want their efforts, brains and labor to pay their own way—that is the American way of doing things. They ask for jobs because they can perform services satisfactorily and do jobs well."

'PAT AND PATRICIA' NAMED AT O'KEEFE

School Chooses Its King and Queen.

"Pat" and "Patricia" is O'Keefe Junior High school's Irish way of saying king and queen. "Pat" this year will be Wallace Carter, while "Patricia" will be Marion DeLoach, it was announced yesterday.

O'Keefe is planning a "hobby fair" for March 8, when the green-and-white, O'Keefe colors as well as Ireland's, will decorate the building and "Pat" and "Patricia" will rule supreme.

Selected from a representative of each class, Ella Murell and Fay Robinson were runners-up in the "Patricia" contest for queen, while Charles Elyea and Wesley Moran came second and third in the "Pat" contest.

COST CUT STUDIED BY WELFARE BOARD

have had an excessive amount of personnel."

W. S. Scherffius, state director of employment for the WPA, put the board on notice that they can't expect any help from the WPA in meeting administrative expenses.

This came after Gossett had asked for the appointment of a three-man committee to take up with WPA officials the question of meeting part of the light, heat, and general operating expense at welfare headquarters.

He pointed out that 75 per cent of the relief in Fulton county is now being supplied by the WPA and that the WPA is now paying the salaries of 20 welfare workers who are stationed at the county headquarters for recertification work.

"It seems to me," said Scherffius to Gossett, "you are putting the cart before the horse."

Among those who spoke against any reduction in personnel were Mrs. Henrietta Krohn, of the Child Welfare Society; Mrs. Leonard Haas, of the Atlanta League of Women Voters; E. M. McGee and Mr. Scherffius.

Opposes Cuts.

Mrs. Haas, who is chairman of the league's welfare committee, told the board her organization was interested in an administrative board chosen on merit and ability; an adequately trained staff, and adequate financial support by the county.

In discussing these points she said the league had confidence in the present board and did not favor any cuts in personnel at this time unless absolutely necessary.

She termed the financial situation "the crux of the present difficulty" and added that we should all join to see that adequate finances are provided by the county.

Several of the speakers emphasized that under the present personnel the average number of relief families inspected per welfare worker is 185 while the absolute maximum should be 100.

Mays said, "I marvel at the way the department has been able to keep such a complete group of workers on such low salaries and such disheartening working conditions." Salaries average $84 per month.

Hailey Attends.

County Commissioner Hailey, who sat through the entire meeting, blamed the present situation on the state of Georgia and not the county commissioners. He pointed out that a breakdown in the state finances was at the bottom of the trouble because the federal government and the county are ready and willing to co-operate in the state aid program but the state has no funds with which to co-operate.

He did not make any explanation of the relief money being diverted by county commissioners to hospitalization.

He said there are 12,000 eligible in Fulton county for aid under the state program but no state money available. He did not discuss county finances from which the welfare board receives from the county commission $13,000 a month for direct relief out of $59,000 monthly, which the commission says it gives for relief.

After the public meeting yesterday morning attended by 35 citizens the welfare board held another conference at the Federal Reserve Bank building, which was attended only by Board Members W. S. McLarin, Dean Paden, Albert Gossett, Director Mays and Commissioner Hailey. W. E. Mitchell, a welfare board member, came in late.

Society Must Solve Problems of 'Eva'

Betty Mathis Pictures Results of Rearing Children in Poverty; More Direct Relief Money, Elimination of Politics, Public Awakening Suggested as Answers.

(Editor's Note: This is the last installment in a gripping story about relief in Atlanta. Betty Mathis writes about this family because they are symbolic of thousands of other Atlantans. Their immediate needs—food, clothing and money in small amounts—have been generously contributed by readers. For this they are grateful. But help for this symbolic family will not answer the larger problem, which is greater than any one family. If this condition existed for one family alone in Atlanta it could easily be solved. This article sums up Betty Mathis' conclusions. They are her own, not those of The Constitution. Miss Mathis believes she knows the answer to this condition. Do you agree with her?

By BETTY MATHIS.

In recent days I have told you the story of the things I saw and heard during the week I spent with Eva, her husband, Fred, and their four children, carefully avoiding until now the expression of any opinion regarding the shocking living conditions of this dauntless family—typical of thousands of families in Atlanta.

The city editor was determined that the public first should get only the facts, uncolored by any interpretation which I might have put on words or actions of Eva and her flock.

Now the time has come when the significance of this situation must be brought forward. That can be done only by pointing out the dangerous results, beyond hunger and cold, which can arise when human beings find themselves in the miserable plight of this family.

Writer's Opinion.

"Write your impressions and your conclusions now," I have been told.

They are, doubtless, not unlike those of any other man or woman who has enough to eat and a reasonable amount of the bare physical necessities to survive on this earth. To see bright, earnest children sit down to a meal of stale bread and gravy, to see them cold, ill clothed, living in what they call "home," without lights and without water and heat, tears at the heart and the very insides of any decent American.

But sympathy does not solve the problem. Only an understanding of the situation and intelligent remedial action can do any good.

First, consider what will happen if such action is not taken. Immediately facing the people of Atlanta is the problem of crime. Can one honestly blame a hungry child for stealing from those who have more than he? Yet, if he succeeds in one violation of the law, subsequent violations are bound to follow.

Criminologists will testify that the seriousness of the crimes will increase. Potentially, many of the children growing up in dirt and poverty are murderers. The cost in human lives, in stolen goods which are never recovered, is enormous. Is it to become larger, as America's increasing number of poverty stricken youngsters grow up?

The Real Cost.

And ultimately, these law violators will be apprehended. Then the real cost to the public begins. Trials are expensive, and the bill for supporting criminals in prison is a big one.

Next comes an even bigger problem, one which threatens the entire democratic world.

Already Alfred, the 18-year-old son in Eva's family, is becoming a radical.

He doesn't realize it, and would not know the meaning of Communism if it were mentioned to him.

But he is restless, dissatisfied with conditions.

He begins many sentences with "What kind of a country is this that—?"

Alfred, and the many young people like him, can hardly be blamed if they turn to glowing promises of equal possessions for all.

Even if they fail to succumb to the shining outlook provided by "sharing the wealth," they easily can believe that under no other form of government could things be worse.

Freedom, after all, means little to the hungry man who is free only to starve.

In addition, is Atlanta going to produce subnormal beings, reduced by generations of hunger, cold and disease, to unintelligent, physical weaklings, incapable of holding a job, even if jobs were plentiful? Such persons would be permanent public charges.

People Indicted.

That such shocking conditions exist and continue to exist is an indictment against the farsightedness of the American people.

Ample evidence has been presented that the people of Atlanta are shocked at the conditions under which Eva and her family live.

They are eager to alleviate the misery of Eva's little brood; they have generously offered food, clothing, fuel and money, in small amounts.

Eva has been taken care of, for the present, through such donations. But the problem has, by no means, been solved. All these things will soon be used up. Then what?

Fred may have a job by that time. But he may not. And even if he does get work, his health is not good. He may not be able to hold a job long. In the event that Fred is unemployed when the family's present supplies give out, their problem will be just as acute as it was before their plight was brought to the attention of Atlanta.

By gifts such as those which have been turned over to The Constitution in the last few days, the problem of this family merely has been continued, not solved. And besides, it is not the citizens' private duty. It is the duty of public officials to do this.

Temporary help, for even one family, does little lasting good.

What of the thousands who have not received help of this kind? Are they to die from disease and hunger, or are they to seek some means of living, outside the law?

Relief costs money, lots of it, and yet, there is not half enough provided in Fulton county either through public assistance or private agencies.

Will Officials Fail.

Must private charities, in some way, raise many times the amount now spent through the Community Fund, through civic clubs and churches to distribute among the poverty stricken which public officials are elected to do?

The solution of the problem is not something which can be reached in a day. The answer will be found only after serious consideration by every intelligent Atlantan. However, there are certain immediate steps which can be taken to alleviate the suffering of many to a certain extent.

To cope with the situation as it exists in Fulton county today, to rescue the thousands of families, in desperate need, who, like Eva and I, have walked for many miles from agency to agency, unable to get help, I respectfully suggest:

1—Provide more money for direct relief. This can be accomplished by action of the Fulton county commissioners in directing that the maximum legal amount be appropriated for this purpose, without diversion for other activities.

2—Create an agency to care for families which are temporarily in need of assistance—families, like Eva's, which now are ineligible for relief because a member of the family has been termed employable, yet which have no means of support until WPA assignments come through.

Eliminate Politics.

3—Keep administration of all public assistance out of politics. Relief and its distribution have long been treated like a political football. Too long has the relief situation been a subject for political speeches, rather than for constructive action.

4—Awaken the public to an active interest in the problem. It is time the people took the ball and called the signals.

These are my own conclusions. They are not those of The Constitution.

I simply have expressed my own ideas after a week of living with Fred and Eva.

The readers have offered me all kinds of help for Eva and Fred, but help of another kind is now needed. That help is to write a letter to the editor of The Constitution expressing your opinion and give him the assistance that is needed to keep relief out of politics.

I thank you. So will all the needy.

STATE LABOR UNIT PRAISED BY HUIET

$3,239,655 Payed Unemployed Persons Last Year, He Reports.

Georgia ranks among the best states in the nation in the administration of the unemployment compensation law, Ben T. Huiet, commissioner of labor, said in his annual report submitted yesterday to Governor Rivers.

He explained that during the past year 524,003 checks for unemployment insurance were issued to 59,298 individuals for a total of $3,239,655.39.

Referring to the report of the Georgia State Employment Service of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, Huiet said a total of 90,215 job placements were made during the past year. Of this number 56,613 were in private employment and 33,602 in public employment. Of the private placements 26,918 were regular and 29,695 temporary, he said.

HOUSE BILL CALLS FOR CONSTRUCTION

Southern Sloons Introduce New Loan Measures.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Creation of separate funds aggregating $400,000,000 for government public construction loans was proposed today in bills introduced by Representatives Starnes, Democrat, Alabama, and Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi.

Starnes' bill (HR 8547) would permit $300,000,000 to be loaned for construction of hospitals, and water, sewer, pollution-control, and related projects. Loans would be available to public agencies and private non-profit organizations.

Rankin's bill (HR 8546) would created a $100,000,000 fund for long-term 2 per cent interest loans to public agencies for the purchase, construction, or improvementa of power-generating facilities.

Sheep Win Battle With Snow As Storms Beset Big Area

Winds Whip and Rains Soak Region From Atlantic to the Rockies; 40 Motorists Marooned in Oklahoma Town But Are in High Spirits.

By The Associated Press.

Four hundred and fifty sheep at Waynesburg, Pa., flicked snowflakes from their wind-blown fleeces last night after emerging victorious from a battle with the elements in which they were lost underneath a blanket of snow for two days.

Their owner, Burt Huffman, credited their survival to ventilation holes their breath made in the snow.

Meanwhile, fresh snowstorms beset upstate New York and overlapped some sections of New England, while rain or snow, whipped by stinging winds, soaked a widespread area stretching from the Atlantic seaboard westward to the Rockies.

Two corning, N. Y., residents were the first reported victims of the new storm. Howard B. Kelley, 68, died of over-exertion while shoveling snow and Samuel Bergman, 65, succumbed while he and his wife attempted to push their automobile from a snowdrft.

Northward, the heaviest snowfall of the winter covered central and western Ontario, Georgian bay and the Niagara peninsula. The mercury dipped slightly. Air travel south of Boston was cancelled.

Temperature throughout most of the central section of the nation remained somewhat above normal. Coldest point in the country was Great Falls, Mont.—8 above zero.

A 48-hour downpour in the southeast caused numerous streams to rise, but weather observers expected neither serious damages nor dangerous flood levels.

Americus, Ga., reported a 4.28-inch rainfall and Savannah, on the Georgia coast, reported 2.45 inches.

Forty snow-bound motorists at Mustang, Okla., took their imprisonment in high spirits as their unexpected host, Farmer Fred Spitler, announced he had on hand "90 dozen eggs, a yard full of chickens, and smokehouse full of hog meat."

MAN BREAKS ANKLE, LEG IN SAME ICY SPOT

LYNN, Mass., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Last year, 285-pound Charles D. Long slipped on ice and broke his left ankle. Patrolmen John Keenan and Charles Burrell took him to a hospital.

Last night, Keenan and Burrell answered another call. Long had fallen on the ice in the identical spot and broken his right leg.

These owners have now driven their Studebaker Champions nearly 50 million miles—and they've averaged better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline in fast driving, slow driving and under all kinds of driving conditions.

Repairs have amounted to less than $2.50 per car for each 8227½ miles traveled—3/100 of a cent a mile!

83% of these Champions added no oil between crankcase changes!

Is it any wonder that a stock Studebaker Champion, with an expert driver and low-extra-cost overdrive, was able to average 29.19 miles in the Gilmore-Yosemite Run?

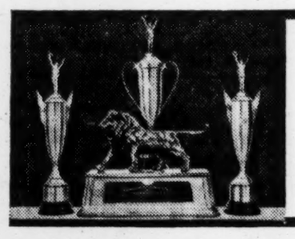

Come in and drive a stunningly styled, restful-riding, Studebaker Champion. You don't need a lot of ready cash. Low down payment—easy C.I.T. terms.

You get all these "extras" at no extra cost

Planar independent suspension
Finest hydraulic shock absorbers
Non-slam rotary door latches
Front-compartment hood lock
Foot-regulated hydraulic brakes
Steering wheel gear shift
Sealed-beam headlamps
Shockless variable-ratio steering

And, at slight added cost, we equip your Champion with automatic hill holder, automatic overdrive and Studebaker's exclusive fresh-air Climatizer for winter comfort and safety

STUDEBAKER WINS OVER ALL CARS in official gas economy test

Under American Automobile Association supervisio.., Studebaker's 3 great cars, with low-extra-cost overdrive, finished 1—2—3 in the Gilmore-Yosemite Economy Sweepstakes. The Studebaker Champion averaged 29.19 miles per gallon; the Commander 24.72 miles per gallon; the President Eight 23.40 miles per gallon.

U. S. MAY PARTICIPATE IN 1942 FAIR AT ROME

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Senator Mead, Democrat, New York, introduced a bill today authorizing United States participation in the fair at Rome, Italy, in 1942, at a cost of $2,000,000.

He recalled that Italy had invested $3,000,000 in its exhibit at the New York World's Fair and that he favored participation in the Rome fair "in view of the unusual international conditions."

"It appears to me," he said, "to be a normal, happy avenue of contact with another friendly neutral power. . . . We can accomplish more in friendly participation in an international fair than we can accomplish in the construction of a battleship."

Array of Presidential Possibilities for 1940 Is Largest In Recent History, But Who Can Rate Anyone's Chances?

No One Candidate Stands Out in Either Major Party.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE, Associated Press Feature Writer.

WASHINGTON. — This year's array of "leading" presidential possibilities is the biggest in modern political history. But you can't find a neutral expert who will venture to rate their nomination chances.

That's due largely to the silence of the nation's No. 1 politician on a third term—and on his preference for the Democratic nomination.

Usually at this time, one or two candidates stand out in each major party. Early in 1936 the Landon boom was going strong; Roosevelt's renomination was a certainty. And in 1932 the Democratic tide was running toward Roosevelt and the Republicans weren't considering anybody but Hoover. Besides the President, seven candidates are ranked as "big shot" possibilities now.

Nutshell summaries of the Big Eight campaign to date:

DEMOCRATS.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT — Laughs off third-term queries. . . . most significant utterance on subject is Farley's statement the President would not seek a third term unless drafted in a national emergency. . . . New Dealers Henry A. Wallace, Joseph Kennedy and Senator Norris urge Roosevelt's re-election as imperative in troubled foreign and domestic situation. . . . John L. Lewis says third term effort would meet "ignominius defeat." . . . Delegations of some states, notably Illinois and Florida, reported ready to board third-term bandwagon.

VICE PRESIDENT GARNER—The "silent candidate." . . . Managers say he will make no public statement before convention. . . . Biggest campaign effort, more than 2,000,000 letters, with "Back Garner" pledge cards, sent to Democrats in every county in United States. . . . Volunteer Garner committees in key states. . . . Sure of big Texas delegation.

PAUL V. McNUTT—The handsome Indiana "If Roosevelt Doesn't Run" candidate. . . . Boom blossomed early, but he is putting on the brakes now. . . . Doesn't want to run himself out in first laps. . . . As social security chief, his speeches are broadly nonpartisan, stress amity between business and labor. . . . His political talks lavish in praise of Roosevelt. . . . McNutt workers busy in strategic sections.

CORDELL HULL—The stately Tennessee secretary of state continues to be a leading possibility, although he refuses to discuss the subject. . . . Even has been reported Roosevelt's choice, although the President laughed off a question regarding that. . . . No Hull-for-President organization, but he's certain to have at least Tennessee's delegation.

BURTON K. WHEELER—Veteran western liberal from Montana said to have strong backing in all branches of labor. . . . John L. Lewis has called him a "true liberal" and has taken a wallop at McNutt's labor record. . . . Wheeler is a busy speechmaker, audiences ranging from Jackson Day Democrats to National Association of Manufacturers. . . . His fight against Roosevelt court plan won him favor with conservatives. . . . Some western congressmen have urged his nomination.

REPUBLICANS.

ROBERT A. TAFT—Supporters claim this Ohioan has a running start in capturing delegates and speech making. . . . See delegates of several southern states already in his bag. . . . Only leading candidate to "stick his neck out" early, tackling specific issues in all parts of country. . . . Taft workers admit he's "no political glamour boy," but stress his "solid sincerity." . . . Mrs. Taft, vivacious and witty, is a good campaigner for him.

ARTHUR H. VANDENBERG, of Michigan, recognized as a leading possibility since 1936, when he shied away from a vice presidential nomination. . . . Willing to serve as President, but says he "will not do any trading to get delegates." . . . Michigan Republicans have urged party to draft him. . . . Record as a moderate liberal senator rated strong asset. . . . No particular Vandenberg organization, but Republican high command said to think highly of his ability.

THOMAS A. DEWEY—The New Yorker's No. 1 ranking in Republican presidential preference polls is rated his most potent campaign asset. . . . Reported to be building an elaborate organization, including even a specialist on movie appearances. . . . Dewey workers making a special drive for youth vote. . . . His competitor for New York delegates is newest Republican candidate, Frank B. Gannett, newspaper publisher who formed the Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government.

The list of potentially formidable candidates and "dark horses" includes these Republicans: Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon; Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Massachusetts; Senator H. Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire; Governors Bricker, of Ohio,* and James, of Pennsylvania.

Democrats in this group classification: Postmaster General James A. Farley, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, Attorney General Robert Jackson, Senator Bennett C. Clark and Governor Lloyd Stark of Missouri.

ADVERTISING URGED FOR AMERICANISM

DETROIT, Feb. 19. — (AP) — James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville Banner, said today that advertising "still stands as the only means by which this highly geared industrial system of ours can be kept grinding."

In a speech prepared for the Detroit Economic Club he proposed that in addition to goods and services, advertising must be used to "sell or resell" to the American people "that commodity so aptly called the American way."

J. M. AKRIDGE SR. DIES AT AGE OF 62

Veteran Journal Employe Succumbs While on Visit to Miami.

Jesse M. Akridge Sr., 62, of 502 Lawton street, S. W., veteran member of the Journal stereotyping department, died yesterday while on a visit in Miami.

Although he had been in failing health for more than a year, his condition had not been considered serious and his death was unexpected.

A native and lifelong resident of Atlanta, he had been connected with the Journal for more than 40 years and up until recent weeks had been working continuously. He was a member of the Atlanta Masonic lodge.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Julian and Jesse M. Akridge Jr.; two sisters, Mrs. Robert Russell and Mrs. Greer Beavers; a brother, T. J. Akridge, and a grandson, Eugene Akridge.

The body is to be brought here for burial and funeral arrangements will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

WILLIAM PERKINS DIES AT AGE OF 82

Headed Bank of America Before Merger With National City Institution.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—William H. Perkins, 82, president of the Bank of America before its merger with the National City Bank in 1931, died of a heart attack today in his apartment at the Hotel Vanderbilt.

The aged banker was stricken this morning and telephoned for the hotel physician, Dr. Edward T. Bennett, who found him semi-conscious when he entered the room. Medical attention proved futile.

A bachelor, Perkins had lived at the hotel for the last 20 years. He is survived by a sister in Athens, Pa., who requested that the body be shipped there for burial.

Former business associates said Perkins had been a quiet, retiring figure, well-known in banking circles for his financial ability, but apparently with few outside interests.

DR. ROBERT BIGHAM DIES AT AGE OF 82

Rites for Retired Methodist Minister To Be Held in LaGrange Today.

Dr. Robert J. Bigham, 82, retired Methodist minister and a resident here for many years, died late Sunday at his home, 503 Peeples street, after a year's illness.

A native of Cuthbert, he was a graduate of old Emory College and served most of his life in the North Georgia Methodist conference. He was at one time presiding elder of the Atlanta district. He retired about 10 years ago.

Surviving are a sister, Miss Madge Bigham; a brother, Ernest W. Bigham; three daughters, Miss Carrie Stewart Bigham, Mrs. Holcombe Armour and Mrs. Fred Teague, and several grandchildren. His wife, who died several years ago, was the former Miss Fannie Foote, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock this morning at the graveside in Hill View cemetery, LaGrange, Ga. Burial will be under direction of Brandon-Camp.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, Polar Explorer, Says Recent Blizzard Was Novelty

"More Snow Than I'm Used to," Declares Man Who Addressed Emory Audience on 'Over and Under the Polar Regions.'

If the recent storm which blanketed Atlanta and the southland under many inches of snow caused you much woe, be consoled in that it was just as disconcerting to Sir Hubert Wilkins, the famous polar explorer.

"It was more snow than I'm used to," Sir Hubert told an audience last night in Glenn Memorial auditorium on the Emory University campus.

"In the polar regions we usually have from eight to nine inches of snowfall during an entire year. Not ten inches at one time."

The arctic and antarctic snow drifts which sometime reach a depth of more than ten feet are not caused by continuous snowfalls, but by shifting winds, he explained. Heavy snows are unusual in both the North and South polar regions.

A veteran of many years of polar exploration, Sir Hubert hopes some day to predict weather conditions for the entire world by observation of polar phenomena.

His address, "Over and Under the Polar Regions by Airplane and Submarine," was accompanied by colored slide illustrations. He was introduced by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech.

WALTER BARRINGER, BUSINESSMAN, DIES

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Walter Barringer, 67, Chicago, who had held a membership on the Chicago Board of Trade since he was 19 years old, died in his hotel room here today.

Barringer had been ill for the past 30 years. He came here several months ago and went to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras, suffering an attack of flu. He returned here a short time ago. Mrs. Barringer, to whom he had been married 15 years yesterday, was with him at the time of his death. She is the only immediate survivor.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Captain S. J. Roberts, who died February 20, 1939.
Our lips cannot tell how we miss you,
Our lips cannot tell what to say,
God alone knows how we miss you,
In our home that is lonesome today.
MRS. ONIE ROBERTS, Wife.

JUDGE DECLINES TO DISMISS SUIT AGAINST WHITLEY

Tuggle Writes Arnall He Will Not Permit Withdrawal Until After a Hearing Is Held.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

LAGRANGE, Ga., Feb. 19.—Judge E. C. Tuggle, of the city court of LaGrange, said today that he had written Attorney General Ellis Arnall advising him that he would not permit withdrawal of the $165,000 John E. Whitley suit "without a hearing."

The suit was filed against Whitley by special assistant attorneys general appointed by the Governor, and Arnall, as head of the state department of law, has petitioned for the withdrawal.

Judge Tuggle said today that he had written Arnall saying, "I think it is fair to have a hearing before I make up my mind what should be done."

The suit seeks recovery from Whitley for alleged excess profits on asphalt sold by him during the Talmadge administration.

AUTHOR GETS DIVORCE.

Attention! All Amatuer Sleuths, 'Mr. Raffles' Arrives Tomorrow

Take a good look at him—"Raffles" will be worth $15 cash to the first one identifying him on some Atlanta street tomorrow.

$15 Award Will Be Given to First Person To Spot Him.

The mysterious "Mr. Raffles" will arrive in Atlanta at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and the sleuthing chase which has attended his visit to other cities will get under way here. And it will be profitable sleuthing for Atlanta's amateur detectives.

Each day, during his stay in Atlanta, "Raffles," who is here in advance of the showing of Samuel Goldwyn's latest screen hit, "Raffles," co-starring David Niven and Olivia deHaviland and which comes to Loew's theater Thursday, will appear on busy downtown streets, in department stores and in hotel lobbies. If "Mr. Raffles" is caught the first day, he will continue his rambles until he is "put" on the spot for four straight days, and each time his captor will receive the sum of $15.

How He Looks.

Just to give you an idea of "Mr. Raffle's" appearance, we are printing a picture of "Mr. Raffles" herewith. Of course, to make it harder, we've masked the picture, but he will not wear a mask during his strolls about the city. Whether or not he will wear the same attire as above, we cannot say.

If "Mr. Raffles" is caught the first day in Atlanta, his captor will receive $15. If he is not caught until the second day, the reward will increase to $30. In other words, the reward will mount $15 each day "Mr. Raffles" remains at liberty.

Only Requirement.

Here is the one and only rule: You must have a copy of the latest edition of The Atlanta Constitution in your hand.

You must approach the person you think to be "Mr. Raffles" and say in these exact words:

"You are "Mr. Raffles" of The Atlanta Constitution and Loew's theater. I am claiming the reward for your capture."

If the sleuth makes the right choice he or she will be taken to the office of The Atlanta Constitution where your reward will be paid. Let's see how good you are at sleuthing. Maybe you will receive the reward for the capture of "Mr. Raffles."

CARTER, IN TEARS, ASKS EXONERATION

Court-Martial Evidence Is Termed 'Fanciful.'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP) Oberlin M. Carter, of Ironton, Ohio, and Chicago, described today as a "fanciful creation" evidence which resulted in a court-martial verdict against him 40 years ago.

He asked a senate military affairs subcommittee to approve a bill to void the verdict, based on charges that he defrauded the government while supervising a Savannah, Ga., harbor project.

Carter, 83-year-old former army captain and one-time military attache at the court of St. James, told the subcommittee tearfully that "enemies" developed evidence against him by reading his private papers.

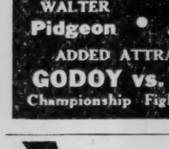

He denied there was any information to justify his conviction and subsequent prison sentence. All he wanted now, he told Chairman Minton (Democrat, Indiana), was to clear his military record.

FIRE BREAKS OUT FOLLOWING PARTY

Hostess, Secretary to City Comptroller, Suffers Shock.

It was after the party was over that things began to happen at 1385 West Peachtree street Sunday night.

Miss Aileen Brown, hostess, tidied up her apartment, where she had entertained several girl friends, by folding the bridge tables, emptying the ash trays, and sweeping the rug.

Then Miss Brown, a secretary to the city comptroller, took a bath. From out of the suds she smelled something strangely like smoke. One of the discarded cigarets, coming into contact with a well-stocked waste paper basket, started a blaze which spread rapidly.

Grabbing a bathrobe and a glass of water, she tried to extinguish the flame in the basket just as the sofa caught fire. Then Miss Brown yelled out the conventional "fire."

Companies 8, 11 and 15 completed the job started by the glass of water, but only after the fire had done considerable damage to furniture and fixtures. Resting at home from shock yesterday, Miss Brown decided against any more parties within the near future.

Yankees' GWTW Parties Use Surplus Dixie Cotton

By LUKE GREEN.

Southern cotton farmers may yet get the laugh on those "Dam-Yankees."

It appeared yesterday that if "Gone With the Wind" plays long enough in the north, the southern planters might get a boost in cotton prices. Here is why:

In almost every city where the picture plays there is some kind of a party or celebration. Many of them are elaborate affairs such as the Junior League staged in Atlanta.

Naturally the people who stage the celebrations must have cotton to carry out their decorative schemes. But there isn't much raw cotton to be found in the north. About all the Yankees see of cotton is the clothes they wear.

They have solved their difficulties, however, by writing to Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture, and asking him to send them a little cotton—just enough to provide the atmosphere of the south that "Scarlett" knew.

Commissioner Roberts is trying to oblige the northerners as much as possible. He has some member of his office bundle up a box of the fluffy stuff and send it to them.

There is some question, however, as to how long the commissioner will continue the practice. If they start asking for bales, it will mean sales for the farmer.

DR. S. S. SMITH, 70, ATHENS, SUCCUMBS

Rites Planned Today for Veteran Physician.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Dr. S. S. Smith, 70, for 33 years a practicing physician here, died at his home last night after a long illness.

Dr. Smith was a native of Newton county and a graduate of the Atlanta Medical College in 1892.

Funeral services will be held in the First Methodist church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, with Dr. E. L. Hill, the Rev. Perry Swann and Dr. H. C. Holland officiating.

Before coming to Athens, Dr. Smith practiced medicine in Rockdale county two years, and at Watkinsville, in Oconee county, eight years.

He is survived by his wife; five daughters, Mrs. W. V. Avera, Mrs. D. D. Quillian and Misses Martha and Ann Smith, all of Athens, and Miss Louise Smith, of Montgomery, Ala.; a son, Starr Smith of Augusta; two sisters, Mrs. Ed Wright, of Mansfield, and Mrs. Charles Hancock, of Covington, and three brothers, W. N. Smith, of Athens, and Dr. T. U. Smith and L. C. Smith both of Covington.

MAN RIDES BOB-SLED TO HOSPITAL AND DIES

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Kenneth Oakley, husky 35-year-old farmer, was brought to a hospital on a bob-sled today, from his snowbound home where he was stricken with pneumonia.

He got out of the sled, walked into the hospital, and announced: "I've come here to die." He died in an oxygen tent five hours later.

SHIPS' SALE APPROVED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(UP) Sale of eight United States Line ships to a Belgian corporation was approved by the U. S. Maritime Commission today with the consent of the State Department which previously had fought successfully against transfer of the vessels to Panamanian registry.

U. S. PEACE DEPENDS ON EUROPE, SAYS NYE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(UP) Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican, North Dakota, who recently succeeded the late William E. Borah as a member of the senate foreign relations committee, warned tonight that the United States is drifting toward war, with the administration doing nothing to stop it.

Nye, a leader of the mandatory neutrality bloc and foe of administration foreign policy, said in an interview that only early termination of the European conflict could modify the certainty of American involvement.

CONTRACTS AWARDED FOR NAVY BUILDINGS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The navy today awarded a $283,684 contract for miscellaneous temporary buildings at the Key West, Fla., naval station to the Ivy H. Smith Company, Jacksonville, Florida.

The Murphy Elevator Company, Louisville, Ky., received a $46,444 contract for elevators in the general storehouse at the Jacksonville naval air station.

DOCTOR DIES AT 104, STILL A PRACTITIONER

BETHEL, Ohio, February 19.—(AP)—Dr. William Eberle Thompson, known as the nation's oldest practicing physicians, died today. He would have been 105 years old July 6.

Born and reared in this village, 30 miles east of Cincinnati, Dr. Thompson resided here all his life, content in the simple but arduous role of "country doctor." He had been in ill health in recent years, but continued to prescribe for such patients as called at his modest, white-painted cottage home.

FLORIDA MEN JAILED IN OFFICERS' SLAYING

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Four Negroes were placed in the state prison at Raiford today for safekeeping, while Leon county officers investigated the slaying of a constable and his deputy here last night.

Sheriff Frank Stoutamire said one of the Negroes, booked as John Holliday, had admitted he fatally shot Constable T. B. (Doc) Oppert and Clyde Sauls, the latter's deputy, when they attempted to arrest him at a Negro restaurant.

Wrote one pupil:

"February has many great birthdays. My dog's is on the sixth."

Series of Poet Stamps Indicates Which Five are Favorites of F.D.R.

Selected Group To Be Honored Was Given Farley Who Consulted With President; Those Chosen Are Longfellow, Lowell, Whittier, Whitman and Riley.

By CHARLES HONCE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—

Blessings on thee, little man,
Barefoot boy, with cheek of tan!

Maybe that verse will pop into your head automatically when you begin licking the new two-cent John Greenleaf Whittier stamp in the poets' division of the post office's "famous American stamp" series.

Or—

I shot an arrow into the air
It fell to earth, I know not where—

You know the lines, of course, but if you don't remember the poet, he happens to be probably the most popular of all American verse makers—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow—and you can croon those words or many others just as well known as you affix the one-cent Longfellow stamp to your envelope on the same day.

It may be a little more difficult to conjure up a verse to hum over the three-cent stamp, which carries the bearded visage of James Russell Lowell, author of "The Vision of Sir Launfal" and "A Fable for Critics," but you should not have much difficulty in recalling lines from Walt Whitman ("O Captain, My Captain") and James Whitcomb Riley ("An Old Sweetheart of Mine"), who complete the set of five poets.

Lowell stamps go on sale on February 20; Whitman five-cent stamps on the same day. The poetic division closes with the ten-cent Riley stamp on February 24.

Longfellow, Whittier, Lowell, Whitman and Riley—that's the set, representing America's poetic output. Whether there will be literary discussion over the selections, with protests as to why a certain poet was included or another given the cold shoulder, remains to be seen; at present attention is directed almost exclusively to the stamps themselves, with philatelists going into the usual dither over first issues, covers, cachets, and what not.

If literary criticism does develop, however, it will have to be directed at Washington; and at present it is not entirely clear who had the final say on the five poets.

Roy M. North, deputy third assistant postmaster general says that his own staff made up a slate of poets from which the five were picked. The slate was submitted to Postmaster General Farley who named the winners. But post office officials say President Roosevelt is consulted by Farley in selecting commemorative stamps, and so it is possible that the final decision was the President's and that therefore Longfellow, Lowell, Whittier, Whitman and Riley are his favorites.

Asthma Coughing, Wheezing Palliated for Thousands

Do attacks of Bronchial Asthma make you choke, strangle and gasp for breath? Are you bothered so bad some nights that you can't sleep? Do you cough and cough trying to raise thick strangling mucus, and strain so hard you fear rupture? At times are the attacks so bad you feel weak, unable to work? Do colds, exposure and certain foods seem to provoke attacks?

No matter how long you have suffered or how skeptical you are we believe there is good news and new hope for you in a Doctor's prescription called Mendaco for palliating Bronchial Asthma symptoms.

Mendaco works fast because it contains ingredients to relax contracted bronchial tubes and to help nature dissolve and remove strangling mucus, thus opening up the breathing passages for joyous relief in a high percentage of cases. Mendaco is not a dope, smoke, injection or spray but is in pleasant, tasteless, easy-to-take tablet form. Formula on every package.

Money Back Guarantee Mendaco has proved such a great success in thousands of cases as a quick, delightful palliative that a printed guarantee with each package insures an immediate refund of your money on return of empty package unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose under this money-back guarantee, so get Mendaco from your druggist and put it to the test today. The guarantee protects you.—Adv.

Another Sub for Davey Jones

SMOKE MARKS THE SPOT Or, three stages in the death of a Nazi submarine. Here is the first stage. A destroyer has loosed depth charges which seem to have found their mark. Oil, which has come to the surface, is burning, visible for miles.

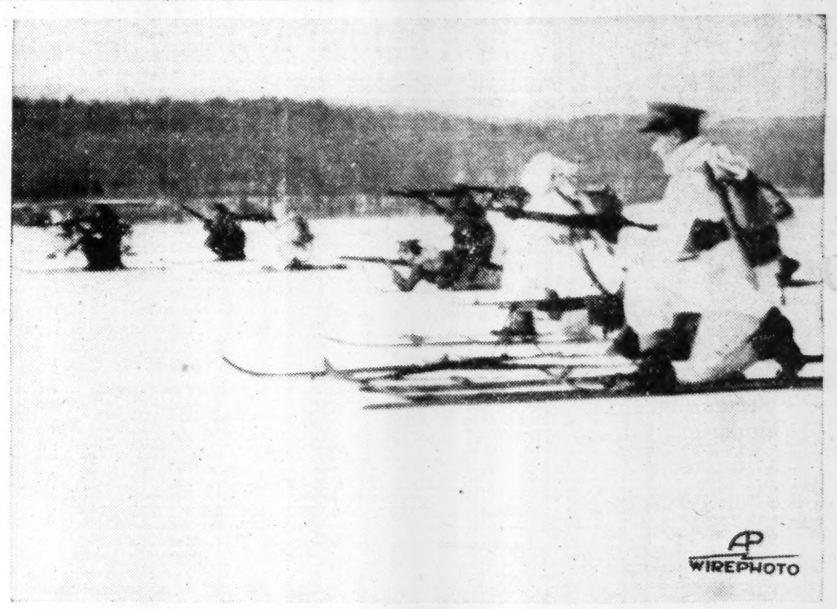

AROUND AND AROUND The destroyer circles the burning patch of oil, looking for survivors and making sure of its prey. This is the second stage of the drama that spells the doom of an enemy undersea craft. The fire burns blacker and more fiercely now.

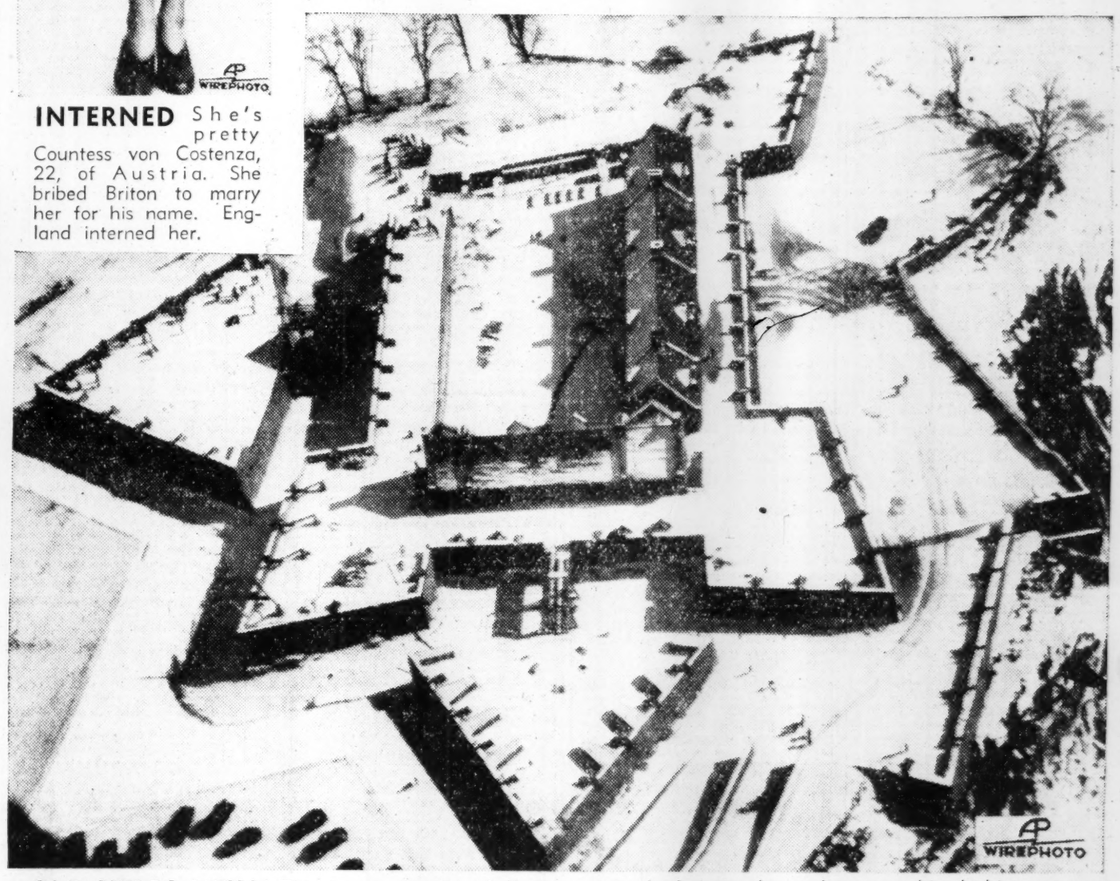

BRITAIN CLAIMS A U-BOAT This is the third and final stage of the destruction of a sub. The destroyer moves in closer to the oil patch, increasing size of which is mute testimony that it is all over with the sub. The destroyer has destroyed.

INTERNED She's pretty Countess von Costenza, 22, of Austria. She bribed Briton to marry her for his name. England interned her.

HERE AGAIN The Green Mountain Boys—in this case the ski detachment of the 172d infantry, Vermont national guard—re-enact the capture of Fort Ticonderoga, that exploit 165 years ago of Ethan Allen and his lads. It's part of the army's training in fighting on snow and ice.

OLD HELPS NEW This is an air view of Fort Ticonderoga, captured from the British during the American Revolution by Ethan Allen and the famous Green Mountain Boys. A Vermont ski squad of national guardsmen combined ski maneuvers with a re-enactment of the historic scene. In the days of the Revolution, however, the Allen boys used boats to cross Lake Champlain. Now, it's skis—the modern touch.

Adaptable Foods Favored by Moderns

Macaroni a la goldenrod is a most colorful dish.

There's No Limit to Dishes Using Macaroni as Base

By Sally Saver.

One of the most adaptable foods and one of the least expensive is macaroni. With meats, cheese, chicken, fish or vegetables it lends itself to an almost endless variety of dishes.

Shown today is a macaroni and egg dish called macaroni a la goldenrod, which is quite colorful and good. It is made with elbow macaroni. Here's how to make it:

MACARONI A LA GOLDENROD.

1 package elbow macaroni.
2 tablespoons butter or margarine.
2 tablespoons flour.
2½ cups milk.
Salt, pepper.
1 pimento, chopped.
2 tablespoons minced parsley.
3 hard cooked eggs.

Cook macaroni as directed on package and drain. Melt butter, stir in flour and add milk gradually. Stir over low fire until smooth and thick. Season to taste with salt and pepper, and add pimento, parsley and chopped whites of the hard cooked eggs. Combine this sauce with the cooked macaroni. Arrange hot macaroni on a large platter. Press egg yolks through a sieve and sprinkle over macaroni or arrange a nest of it in the center, as pictured. Garnish with parsley and bits of pimento.

Questions about foods, recipes, or cookery will be answered personally by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or WA. 6565.

He Participates in Marathons Despite Age of Fifty-Four

By Dr. William Brady.

Here's one for men only. Oh, well, then, maybe it will do no harm for boys and staid old greezers suffering from chronic progressive dignity to read it. It is a query coming from deep in January. As I vaguely recall—you see here in paradise we just bowl and bowl the year around (except ten or twelve days when it rains)—up New England way they have long, hard, cruel winters when the green is sleeping under a lot o' slush.

Dear Doctor Brady:

I have enjoyed your articles for years.

I am nearly 54 years old and have been a runner for 30 years. I still compete a few times each year, also walk a great deal to keep in shape.

I am 68 inches tall, weigh 167 stripped, chest measurement 36 inches, 41 inches expanded. Blood pressure 140 over 80. Pulse 68 to 70 when at rest.

Am I in good proportion and is the blood pressure good? Doctors have always passed me for my runs to date. I feel fine and have finished every marathon I entered feeling strong and never exhausted—six full marathons (26 miles), two 15-mile runs, one 10, one five and 12 half-marathons (13 miles). I won a medal in the 1939 15-mile run.

I eat two meals a day, plenty of milk, fruit, cereal, not much meat, sleep well and take cold baths. Are cold baths all right to take?

Please give your opinion as to whether I may safely continue my athletic career. It is part of my life. I am used to it, feel better when I run than before.

Very truly,

Perhaps the conventional medical opinion would be that it is wise for a man to moderate his athletic activity when he reaches middle age. For most men that may be so.

But I told this man—remember, all I know about him is what he says in his letter—that in his place I should continue training and running at least until I observed some manifestation of strain. I told him I was not in a position to judge whether the pulse pressure—difference between the systolic and disastolic—is normal, for in order to judge I should need records of his blood pressure ten or more years ago. In any case, it could do no harm, I suggested, to supplement the diet with a good ration of the essential vitamin B complex and sunshine vitamin D. Finally I assured the marathon runner that cold baths are all right. For that matter, they are all right for any one who enjoys them. Personally I'd druther go, well, as I am.

It is sad but true that few adults can run a mile at fifty, at their own pace. Most people get "winded" when they run a few blocks. They lack that "adequate fund of reserve power to tide over emergencies and strains" which is one of the features of vite. Copy of the pink paper, about "Reserve Power" mailed on request if you provide stamped envelope bearing your address; for 70-page booklet "7 Keys to Vite" inclose two bits.

It is a fair test of any one's physical fitness, if he or she can run a mile, at any pace.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Chronic Running Ear.

Quite a while ago you gave a recipe for chronic discharge for the ear. Two people I know have told me it cured them, but they can't remember the formula. (S. H. M.)

Answer.—Drop in ear night and morning two or three drops of saturated alcoholic solution of boric acid, from a vial warmed by standing in warm water. One ounce of alcohol will dissolve about 30 grains of boric—if more is put in than the alcohol will dissolve the excess settles at bottom and will be dissolved when alcohol is added.

Cracks

I am a young man 20 years old yet only 64 inches tall. How can I increase my height—and no cracks, please. (R. H.)

Answer.—I don't know, son. Personally, I wouldn't mind taking all the cracks if I could learn how to increase my height an inch or two.

Acid Stomach

My only trouble is acid stomach and heartburn. I've taken barrels of soda and mint, but the trouble goes on about the same . . . (W. F. A.)

Answer.—For the price of a barrel of soda and mint you could have a complete physical examination and whatever special clinical tests your physician deems necessary to arrive at a diagnosis. Or isn't your health worth such an investment? Send a stamped envelope bearing your address, and inclose 10 cents in coin for booklet "So You Have Indigestion." It contains advice about diet and the least objectionable alkalis to neutralize acidity.

Actor Asks Pay While Beard Grows Back

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 19.—Monty Woolley, who left Hollywood for the New York stage because of a sparsity of film work, is now, as a result of his success in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," juggling fat film offers from Metro, Paramount and Warners. Shortly before leaving for New York Woolley was wanted for a picture at Paramount, but the deal stipulated that he cut off his beard. The actor said "o. k.," but he wanted compensation in the form of $3,000 down and $500 a week while the beard grew back. He reckoned it would take three months—"to attain its present beautiful proportions." And so the deal was off. It's interesting to note that Adolphe Menjou was offered the Woolley role in the Kaufman-Hart play. He even went to New York to discuss it, but turned the part down because he didn't think the play would be successful!

According to Metro, Father Flanagan, of Boys Town, will receive $100,000 for his institution as a result of the studio's decision to make a sequel to the earlier picture. Spencer Tracy again portrays Father Flanagan, with Mickey Rooney repeating his former role . . . May McAvoy comes back to the movies with a term contract at Metro. Her first picture is a bit in "Two Girls on Broadway" . . . Ann Sothern follows Constance Talmadge and Marion Davies as the scren heroine in "Dulcy." There must be a shortage of film stories when they have to do the same picture three times.

The Fred MacMurray-Madeleine Carroll combination continues. They will be co-starred in the screen version of "There's Always Juliet," in which Herbert Marshall and Edna Best appeared on the London stage (in the days when Edna and Marshall were married—and in love). Did I ever tell you that on the Edward Everett Horton estate there are two magnolia trees? One is called Herbert, the other Gloria? They were planted during the days when Marshall was in love with Gloria Swanson!

George Bancroft, who gives a swell account of himself as Tom Edison's father in the Mickey Rooney starrer, gets the big "heavy" role in De Mille's "Northwest Mounted Police" . . . Shirley Temple is the youngest living thespian to have her past glorified on the screen. Her next picture, "Young People," gives excerpts from Shirley's former pictures and tells the story of a young revue artiste who retires at the age of 10. (The latter does not refer to 10-year-old Shirley.)

Ida Lupino gets her movie reward for good work (or should I say bad work) as the "meanie" in "The Light That Failed." Her next picture for Paramount is the starring role in Conrad's "Victory"

MY DAY: Visit to Florida State College

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—I left Washington yesterday morning by air at 11 o'clock. Senator and Mrs. Pepper came to see me off. I think they wanted to be quite sure that I actually started on my trip to Tallahassee. We took off under blue skies, but before long, clouds appeared on the horizon and I began to worry as to whether we would have bad weather before we reached Jacksonville. Fortunately, the wind and rain did not bring us a very low ceiling and I was able to change in Jacksonville to a smaller plane. The weather grew worse and the clouds seemed to close in ahead of us. We were flying very low and every now and then the ground would disappear under the scudding clouds. We landed in Tallahassee in a downpour of rain, and I was worried about a group of girls who evidently came to see the plane come in and stood in the mud with little rivers running all around them.

We drove at once to Mrs. Moor's house, in front of which are some of the most beautiful oak trees, none of them less than a hundred years old. There is no doubt about it, trees like this make any park space really beautiful.

We reached the Florida State College almost an hour late. They have a fine campus with many new buildings which have been added under PWA or WPA. The federal government seemed to have contributed something of real value here under its emergency works program. We paused in the gymnasium to greet a big group of girls who could not get into the auditorium, and drove directly to the auditorium for the exercises. On our return to Mrs. Moor's house, the children fell upon me with requests for autographs in books and on sheets of paper for themselves and their friends.

I did not mean to stay for dinner, but since my hosts were to drive me over to Jacksonville, and they were kind enough to assure me that the meal would be short, I stayed and dined very sumptuously before leaving. Piloted by the state highway patrol, they drove me into Jacksonville through heavy rain and we arrived safely at about 12:30. This morning the same patrol drove me to Daytona, for the section of the train on which my secretary, Miss Thompson, was traveling, was three hours late.

The Smooth-Mannered Girl May Expect Second Invitation

A dinner date which might have been the beginning of a delightful friendship—and she spoils it all by her careless manners!

For a girl posted on etiquette does not embarrass her escort by spitting fruit seeds into her spoon. She knows it's correct to drop seeds, fish bones inconspicuously into her cupped hand.

Nor does a well-mannered girl eat peas with a spoon, drop olive pits into the ash tray, or lay her crumpled napkin on the table before other have finished.

The right way is to eat peas with a fork, put olive pits on your bread-and-butter or dinner plate, discard your napkin only when everyone is leaving the table.

It's little things like these that reveal your background to others. But you needn't fear the impression you make if you know etiquette—and the rules are easy to learn.

Dining at a restaurant, tell your escort what you want, let him give the order. If you are going to dance, wait for him to rise first, pull out your chair. When motoring, let him get out of the car first. At the movies, standaside while he buys the tickets.

In every situation, you appear gracious, sophisticated when you know what's correct. The acquaintance who joins your group at the country club appreciates your courtesy when you include him in the conversation with "We were talking about the tennis courts . . ."

Have the smooth manners that make you welcome in good society. Our 40-page booklet, Etiquette for Every Day, gives correct form for dinners, dates, restaurants, the theater; when traveling, motoring, visiting. Has pointers on introductions, invitations, cards.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR EVERY DAY, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

The Lonely Wife Keeps Happy Home for Her Children

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

What is a wife to do when her husband is interested in nothing but hunting, fishing and other things outside his home? You'd think a father of fine sons would want to take his boys along on his pleasure trips. Well my husband prefers to go by himself. Even his own brother says he can't see how I endure the loneliness of my life. Really I think my husband resents having a wife and children. Sometimes I see hate in his eyes when on rare occasions he spends a week end at home. Our home is attractive. The children are well-behaved and I have always taken care of my personal appearance. He couldn't have any kick against us. Yet he does nothing for us but pay our bills.

R. N.

Answer: I know a woman who is married to a wild Indian just like the one you describe. She spent the first few years of her married life weeping and sulking and complaining to his face and behind his back. All of a sudden she saw the light and began to walk in it which is what every wife should do when her husband won't play with her.

She saw him off on his hunting and fishing trips (which incidentally were usually to far places and lasted for weeks at a time) and no sooner was he out of sight than she began to enjoy life. She encouraged the children to have their friends come in for night parties on week ends. She had friends in for meals and card games afterwards. She renewed her correspondence with old friends she'd lost touch with, which resulted in their visiting her and inviting her to visit them. In a few short years she had full and contented life with her family and friends. And because she had ceased to fret about her husband's Indian habits she could be pleasant and agreeable with him when he happened in for a short stay at home.

Perhaps it is a great compliment to the American husband after all; but the truth is that the American wife expects him to hand her her happiness on a silver platter and if he fails she sits down and cries that she's cheated. Maybe she is cheated of the companionship she had counted on. Yet if she has any resources within herself she can rustle around and find a number of substitutes for the pleasure of papa's company.

First, she has to overcome her irritation with him for being AWL. Second, she has to mark him off as far as fun is concerned. Third, she has to make up to the children for what they are missing in having a father in name only. Fourth, she has to find new interests for her leisure time. These should include social life, mind-improving activities and good works. In the meantime she should remember that even if papa isn't participating in a friendly way, his financial backing makes it possible for her and the children to live, love, laugh and have some fun.

Improve Contour Of Your Legs With Exercise

By Ida Jean Kain.

When a girl has been so crippled that she couldn't even walk becomes one of the world's great ballerinas, that is a miracle. And, to come directly to the point, it is a story which should fire the courage of those who are actually handicapped, and spur the determination of the estimated 34-out-of-every-35 women whose legs could be improved in appearance.

Nana Gollner, with the Ballet theater in New York, is the heroine. At the age of two she had infantile paralysis. Both feet were left with a clubbed conformation. Her ankles were too weak to support her and she couldn't walk. But today she has a pair of strong, slim, shapely legs that carry her surely through those amazingly intricate figures and breath-taking leaps.

In the years between there lies a story—of exercise. First, walking in the sand—if you can call it walking when the person has to be half carried and even then falls down at every other step. Walking in the sand is harder than on the level. The doctor ordered it to strengthen those weak foot and leg muscles.

When she succeeded in walking alone, she began to try to walk on the tiptoes. As soon as she was able to do a thing, it was made a little harder! Walking on the toes in the sand is very much harder than walking on a level in the usual fashion. But the treatment was a success. At the age of eight, Nana started ballet lessons, also at the doctor's suggestion. And now, at 21, she is conceded to be one of the really great ballerinas.

Naturally, she thinks there is no limit to what can be accomplished with exercise. But, fully aware of the extravagant expectations of a machine vendor age, she says:

"Miracles cannot be accomplished all at once. They take time. The person who takes up an exercise program for whatever reason should go about it slowly to get into condition. And then, the daily exercises should be taken slowly. The ballet dancer always "warms up" for 15 to 30 minutes before attempting the more difficult steps. Otherwise she might get a cramp or even tear a tendon. With daily exercise or a long program, it is important to begin slowly."

The ballerina's warming-up exercises constitute a set that would be very beneficial to the average pair of underexercised legs. Don't worry about overdevelopment. Nana is convinced that bulgy leg muscles in the dancer are caused by faulty technique. Her own measurements are: Thigh, 21 inches; calf, 13 inches; ankle, 8 inches. And for your incidental information her other measurements are: Bust, 32 1-2 inches; waist, 24 1-2 inches; hips, 32 inches.

The exercises are:

Stand with heels together and toes turned straight out at sides so that feet are on one straight line. Very slowly, on the count of four, bend the knees deeply, keeping heels on floor, and then rise on the count of four. Turning the toes straight out and standing with heels together is no easy trick, but it is wonderful for strengthening those weak inner thigh muscles.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Are prices of diamonds higher or lower today than they were five years ago?

A. Higher.

Q. Do fresh eggs contain much natural sugar?

A. About 16.2 per cent.

Q. Occasionally my pet cat gets a bone in her throat, and I am at a loss as to what is the proper treatment. What should be done when this occurs.

A. If the bone can be reached with the fingers or pincers, remove it; otherwise give olive oil. Do not manipulate the throat as that only aggravates the trouble.

Q. Is skim milk a good food for growing children?

A. It has most of the bone and teeth-building materials of whole milk and can take its place if plenty of foods rich in vitamin A are used, such as butter, codliver oil and greens. Fresh skim milk, dry skim milk mixed with the right amount of water, and buttermilk made from skim milk are much alike in food value, but are not equal to whole milk.

Q. Is a water bath, an oven, or a steamer without pressure adequate for canning meats?

A. No; for although insufficiently processed meat may keep if stored at a low temperature, even when no visible signs of spoilage are observed there is no certainty that the bacteria which cause food poisoning have not been active. If a pressure canner is not available, other methods of preservation should be used

Bad Luck Superstition Brings Salt to Atlanta From Canada

By Sally Forth.

CONNIE SPALDING ANDERSON had always thought that such superstions as bad luck resulting from putting hats on beds, raising umbrellas in the house, black cats crossing the road, etc., were indigenous to the deep south—implanted there by the darkies.

So she was somewhat startled to discover a brand-new one, and in Toronto, Canada, at that!

Connie and Albert (the master of the Anderson household), with their small daughter, Constance, were making preparations to transfer their residence back to Atlanta. Naturally, the larder was filled with a number of half-used staples, among them a box of salt.

As they were taking their leave, Connie thoughtfully presented their white Canadian cook with the unused staples.

The domestic, however, balked at taking the salt. She explained that nothing but bad luck could possibly result from accepting this particular gift.

Connie was completely "bowled over" by what she considered nonsense, so suggested that the salt be given to one of the neighbors.

This, too, upset the cook, who insisted that the salt MUST NOT be given away under any circumstances, but must be taken all the way to Atlanta in order to ward off any evil effects.

The other staples were placed in a basket. And when the cook had finished helping with the packing, she was driven home by Albert. When he returned to the house, looking somewhat shamefaced, he was clutching the unwanted box of salt!

Connie had slipped it into the bottom of the basket. But the wary servant had made sure of its presence, refusing to let Albert escape without taking the unlucky item bac kto its donor!

And when the Andersons arrived in Atlanta, an important item in their luggage was the box of salt, somewhat the worse for wear!

RUSSELL STOVALL'S hospital room is a veritable spring flower garden, according to reports which have come to Sally Forth. It is filled with pots of pink azaleas, white, blue and pink hyacinths, cyclamens of all shades, roses in shades of pink and red and other pastel spring cut flowers interspersed with pussywillows.

Russell underwent an emergency appendectomy last week at St. Joseph's infirmary, and has been keenly missed from social activities.

DAME RUMOR has linked the name of a beautiful and prominent belle to an equally handsome out-of-town swain, the engagement of the couple to be made known at an early date.

The bride-to-be is a native of a near-by city, but she is well known here, having attended Washington Seminary, where she was a popular member of the Pi Pi sorority.

The groom-to-be hails from a famous midwestern city, where he and his bride will reside following their marriage. To give more hints would make guessing far too easy!

BEAUTY plus brains is a rare combination, but that charming Atlanta belle, "Bungie" Fuller, possesses both these desired assets, according to news receveid yesterday from Finch School in New York, where she is a student. Bungie made the dean's list, with a scholastic rating of "B," which places her average among the highest at the school.

"Bungie," who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fuller, was scheduled for presentation to Atlanta society this year, and was elected vice president of the Debutante Club, but completion of her school work at Finch was too great an attraction and she returned to New York last fall in lieu of remaining in Atlanta for the round of debut parties. Last week-end she was among visiting belles attending the dances at the University of Virginia. Sally hears that "Bungie" will return here on March 27 for the sping holidays and will be the center attraction at a number of parties.

GLIMPSED here and there: Jimmy Setze appearing in his sixteenth wedding as he served as best man for Alva Walton at his marriage to Laura McClellan last evening. . . . Two other bachelors, O. C. Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell Observe Twentieth Wedding Anniversary

Several hundred guests assembled at the Alpine road residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Caldwell Sunday afternoon in celebration of the hosts' 20th wedding anniversary at a beautiful reception.

Pastel shaded flowers used for the decorations carried out the color motif which was used at the marriage of the nosts on February 18, 1920, in Lancaster, S. C. Mrs. Caldwell is the former Miss Juanita Wylie, daughter of Mrs. Richard Evans Wylie and the late Mr. Wylie, of Lancaster, her marriage to Mr. Caldwell having taken place at a home ceremony.

Silver appointments were used on the table in the dining room, a basket filled with dainty pastel-shaded garden flowers gracing the center. Silver candlesticks held yellow burning tapers. Punch bowls, placed in the sun parlor, were decorated with floral bases and the tables were outlined with garlands of smilax.

Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell and their daughters, Miss Louise Wylie Caldwell and Miss Jane Brice Caldwell, formed a receiving line, standing in the living room before a background of palms and baskets filled with pastel flowers. Mrs. Caldwell was becomingly gowned in ice blue satin and wore a cluster of Parma violets. Miss Louise Caldwell was gowned in yellow taffeta and her flowers were gardenias, and her sister wore white faille with a shoulder bouquet of sweet peas.

Miss Robbie Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Taylor, received the cards at the door, and Miss Mary Ainsworth kept the bride's register. Presiding at the coffee tables were Mesdames Maude Craig Matthews, Robert L. McDougall, Kenneth Gregory and Herman L. Turner, and serving punch were a group of friends of the Misses Caldwell, including Misses Elizabeth Brice, Miriam Rudisill, Sada Nell Williams, Rosemary Wrigley, Mary Pennington, Frances Brice, Dorothy Wrigley, Paula Brewer, Jean LeFebre, and Mrs. John Rainey, of Birmingham. Others assisting were Mesdames Lewis Hawkins, W. N. Ainsworth Jr., Julian Tyndall, W. R. Ulrich, Asa Warren Candler, R. K. Taylor, and Miss Ethel Reese.

Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell are popular residents of Atlanta and have a wide circle of friends. The former is news editor of the southern division of the Associated Press and is well known in newspaper circles.

Spaghetti Dinner for 6—Only 40¢!

A grand dish for family dinners or informal entertaining. And to have spaghetti dishes at their very best—make them with Mueller's Thin-Spaghetti.

MEDITERRANEAN SPAGHETTI

1 pkg. Mueller's Thin-Spaghetti
4 tablespoons butter or fat
1 minced onion
1 tablespoon flour
2 cups tomato juice
1 small can tuna fish
6 anchovies or 1 tablespoon anchovy paste
Salt and pepper to taste

Melt butter in saucepan; add onion and cook until soft. Add flour and stir until brown; add tomato juice and stir well until smooth. Cook slowly for 5 minutes, add shredded tuna fish and anchovies. Season to taste. Cook Mueller's Thin-Spaghetti as directed. You'll be delighted with its fine, even strands and its firm, yet tender texture. Put spaghetti on hot platter and pour sauce over. Serves 6.

Mueller's cooks in half the time, just 9 minutes, due to an exclusive "quik-dried" process. Mueller's Thin-Spaghetti does not have that excess coating of starch that requires a cold-water rinse after cooking, so it can be served piping hot! Your "emergency shelf" will supply ingredients for many tempting sauces. Serve a Mueller's Thin-Spaghetti dinner tonight!

Miss McClellan Becomes Bride Of Mr. Walton at Winship Chapel

At a lovely ceremony solemnized at 8 o'oclock last evening in the Winship chapel of the First Presbyterian church, Miss Laura Worth McClellan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John M. McClellan, became the bride of James Alva Walton, son of Mrs. James Mose Walton and the late Mr. Walton, of LaFayette, Ala. Dr. William V. Garner, pastor of the church, read the marriage service which assembled a company of friends and relatives of the popular couple.

Dr. Charles Sheldon, organist presented a program of music during the assembling of the wedding guests. A silver urn filled with Easter lilies adorned the chapel altar, which was flanked on either side by tall palms.

J. B. McConnell and O. C. Blackmon served as ushers, and James Setze was Mr. Walton's best man. Mrs. John M. McClellan was the bride's matron of honor and only attendant. She chose for the ceremony a costume suit of navy sheer wool, with rimming of chartreuse and a chartreuse hat. Her accessories were in a matching shade of blue and her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of sweetheart roses and valley lilies.

Registering guests at the door of the chapel were Misses Mary Rose and Susie Harris.

Mr. Walton and his bride left for a wedding journey and upon their return will reside on Waverly way.

The league has favored civil service for many years and is gratified at the establishment of the merit system for Atlanta. Mr. Sutherland's talk will be of interest to league members. The public is invited to attend this meeting.

Mrs. J. R. McCullough will preside and introduce the speaker. Mrs. Fred Scanling and Mrs. W. F. Bolland will be hostesses.

Mrs. J. D. Thomas, president of the Atlanta league, announces an officers' committee meeting at 12 o'clock on Wednesday at league headquarters.

5th District Group To Meet Friday.

The Garden Division, Fifth District Federation of Women's Clubs, will hold the first meeting of this year at Sterchi's Friday. The meeting is called for 10:30 o'clock and will be presided over by Mrs. L. O. Freeman, division chairman.

W. E. Freeborn will speak on the newest and most popular annuals. Other features of importance will be the adoption of a flower to be suggested by the district as the emblematic flower for official use in the Golden Jubilee celebration of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Plans and arrangements for the Garden Institute to be held by the district garden division in the near future will also be discussed.

Luncheon will be served at noon, with the Forest Club, Mrs. E. R. Anderson, president, as hostess.

Mrs. W. R. Goodman, Ma. 2077, or the club's special attendance chairman, may be called for reservations.

Way "Build-Up" Helps Will Interest Women

The cause of a woman's periodic suffering from headache, irritability, cramp-like pain, may be functional dysmenorrhea due to a malnutrition, a condition that is often helped by CARDUI.

Principal way CARDUI helps is by stimulating appetite and the flow of gastric juices. Thus it may aid digestion; help build up a woman's strength, energy and nerve-force; so increase physical resistance to periodic discomfort.

It also helps reduce periodic distress for many who take it a few days before and during "the time". Your confidence in CARDUI is invited by its 50 years of popularity. —adv.

Pointers Derby Winners In Southern Field Trials

GREYMIST JAKE CAPTURES FIRST: GOOBER SECOND

Raymond Hoagland Handles First and Second-Place Puppy Winners.

By RALPH McGILL.

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 19. — Pointers scored all three victories in the derby stake of the Southern Amateur Field Trial here today with a Florida dog placing first with one of the finest performances a derby dog has shown here in years. The winner was Rider's Greymist Jake owned by Mrs. Lester White, of Orlando and handled by Lester White.

Second place was won by R. W. Woodruff's Ichuaway's Little Goober. This was the real triumph of the trial from many standpoints and a distinct compliment to the trainer and the handler. Little Goober was not ready a week ago and getting the dog ready for the trial and making him a place winner was a fine bit of work. Mr. Woodruff, whose home is in Wilmington, Del., owns a Georgia plantation. Trammel Scott handled the dog and as three bevies were found by the Ichuaway plantation entry. There was a lot of handling to do. The dog could have been steadier and somewhat wider but the showing was a fine one.

POTTER THIRD.

Third place went to W. C. Potter, of New York and Albany. Mr. Potter, chairman of the board of New York Guaranty and Trust, handled his own dog, Blue Springs Peggy, and did a fine job. His kennel is becoming increasingly respected. It has no stars as yet, but there is not a weak dog in his kennel. His trainer never puts down a dog that is not finished. Potter, one of the enthusiastic members, might have won second place but for one false point. His dog made one bevy find and was wider but the false point and Little Goober's find of three bevies put the Potter dog in third place.

The winner was so good that even the gallery seemed sure it was the winner. The white and liver pointer from Orlando has been a consistent winner in Florida trials this season. The dog was stylish throughout and while it made but one bevy its work was outstanding. He rambled wide, handled well, and took care of the birds like an old dog. He has not ben out of the money in any trial this year and great things are expected of him as an all-age dog. He is one of the famous Mail Rider pups. Mail Rider was a runner-up in the grand championship four years ago.

SCOTT HANDLES.

Trammell Scott handled another dog for the Ichuaway plantation, Ichuaway Norias Ike, which started well with a splendid find in front of the gallery and then got off the course.

Ike has been going wide all season and this reporter has a personal interest in him and a personal knowledge of his speed. Some weeks ago this reporter galloped an hour and a half after the fast stepping Mike and, to be truthful, hasn't entirely recovered from it yet.

Bob Sealy's Nice Momoney was tried out with actual shooting of birds and retrieving of the killed birds. He did well on the first bevy, but slowed for the remainder of the heat.

Sealy's firing of shells and killing birds with the dog asked to retrieve, was the first such instance in the history of southern trials. Sealy frankly tried it as an experiment. The dog stood steady to shot and wing and then retrieved. In the ordinary trial the shot is fired after the covey has been flushed and the dog has been given an opportunity to stand steady. In this instance the gun was fired on the covey rise. I' was a most effective test for a dog and the response was excellent. It was just an experiment and Sealy was getting rid of one of those long pent-up desires to see what a field trial dog would do under regular shooting conditions. He does not plan to repeat the experiment. Trainers had said it could not be done.

Raymond Hoagland, the well-known amateur bird dog sportsman, of Cartersville, Ga., did a splendid job of handling in the puppy stakes today.

He handled the winner and the second-place dog.

BILLIE RICKS.

The winner was a pointer, Billie Ricks, owned by Clarence Gains, of Sherbourn, New York. The second dog was a setter, Hilbright Roy, owned by M. G. Dudley, of Greenville, S. C. Dudley, one of the most popular figures in southern bird dog circles, long has been a contender here at Albany. His setter puppy is of approximately the same breeding as Sealy's Sue, a good blood bitch. Dot Sealy's Momoney, which did so well at Quitman and which is rated as one of the best female

All in the Game — by Jack Troy

FOUNDATION Confucius didn't say it, but nevertheless it is a fact that a building is no sturdier than its foundation.

Following the same reasoning, an athlete is no better than his legs.

A chorus girl is able to get by with a combination of attractive legs and a sweet face.

An athlete's face doesn't count. He can be, and often is, as ugly as a mud fence. But if his legs are sturdy, no matter what shape they're in, he need ask little more.

Babe Ruth was no adonis. Neither was Jack Dempsey until he submitted to plastic surgery. But so long as their legs were strong, they were the best in the business—one the baseball slugger; the other the slugger of the squared circle.

An athlete isn't necessarily leg conscious. The legs are always the first things to go. But often an athlete is a long time realizing just what it is that has happened to him.

POP'S IDEA We were talking about legs—athlete's legs—Pop Beckett and this correspondent, and the question came up concerning the underpinning of golfers who have passed their peak.

The question mainly concerned why it is that certain great golfers of the past are able to put a couple of outstanding rounds together now and then but fade when the extra rounds begin piling up.

Pop Beckett gave the matter careful thought and said, "The answer is legs. I could name a number of golfers of today who are better than they ever were. They still can shoot a round of 18 holes in grand style.

"But here's the point. They can't do it in tournament play. They might shoot one or two rounds well, but the pressure on legs mounts. It may look like their game suddenly is shot to pieces. And yet it's the legs that have gone back on them.

"There's nothing to be done about legs that have passed their peak of effectiveness. A player might not even realize what has happened. He feels all right but there is something wrong. It's his legs. When he puts continued pressure on them they don't respond and his whole game is affected.

"I was talking just the other day with Al Watrous. And Al thoroughly agrees that, even more than the mental strain of competitive golf, legs count most.

"A golfer can combat the mental strain, but if his legs give away he's sunk. And, as I pointed out, this matter of legs is a peculiar thing. They can go without a fellow realizing just what is wrong," Pop Beckett concluded.

"BE CAREFUL" Frank Menke recently said, in a Derby dispatch, that nothing ever before had been called Bimelech, and that the word wasn't used to describe anything, until Colonel E. R. Bradley gave it as a name to the race horse which is favored to win the Kentucky Derby in May.

Frank's wrong. Lou Bindman, a handicapper, tells why. "It all depends upon the way you pronounce it," Bindman says. "If you say 'Bim-e-lech,' well, it's likely that the name never was used before. But if you're going to say 'By-me-lek,' as so many do, then it's just a word in Yiddish that has been used for many generations, and means 'take care,' or 'be careful.'

"As we all know, Colonel Bradley named the horse Bimelech in honor of a friend whose name was Abimelech, and Abimelech was a character in the Old Testament, and the pronunciation was A-by-me-lek. The Colonel didn't call the horse Abimelech because of his rule to name all his horses with something that starts with the letter 'B.' When he chopped off the 'A' from Abimelech, that left Bimelech, and the customary pronunciation is Bim-e-lech.

"But, in Yiddish, that's 'By-me-lek.' Jewish families, in warning their relations concerning possible danger, always enjoin them 'by-me-lek,' which tells them to be careful.

"Yiddish is an entirely different language than Hebrew. The latter is the pure language dating back thousands of years. The Hebrew student is absolutely unable to understand Yiddish—and vice versa Yiddish is a hybrid language. It's a mixture of many languages, with expressions from German predominating.

"In this Yiddish speech, there's the word 'by-me-lek'—and it means 'be careful'—which is what plenty of horses will have to be of Colonel Bradley's colt, if they expect to come even close to winning the 1940 Kentucky Derby."

EX-TIGER Elmer Salter, Auburn public relations chief and new coach of freshman basketball, forwards a note regarding the Tech-Auburn basketball game Wednesday night at the Loveliest Plains, and reveals that—

"The Atlanta Crackers' new outfielder, Jack Suydam, is a former Auburn freshman and played football here. He was a frosh at Auburn in 1934. Scholastic trouble and a professional baseball offer caused him to leave."

Salter's note indicates that Suydam, who now gives his age as 22, must have been 16 as an Auburn freshman. Quite a boy, Suydam.

Amateur Nines Hold Meet Here Tonight

The Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation will hold its second meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at 66 Broad street. All strictly amateur baseball teams within a radius of 25 miles are eligible to join any of the associated leagues. Information can be obtained by calling Jack Perkins or Dusty Speer at Walnut 8757.

Candler Park Plans Visitors' Day Meet

Candler Park women golfers will observe visitors' day Wednesday morning on the Candler Park course with a one-day tourney.

There will be a blind bogey and some special prize events.

A luncheon will be served at the club immediately following the 18-hole round.

Batting Champion Is Visiting Mother

Only Philadelphia and Boston Appear Out of Running, Georgian Declares.

By JACK TROY.

Johnny Mize, the Georgia boy with the keen batting eyes, is looking forward to a six-club race in the National league this season.

The National league batting champion arrived in our town late Sunday night and spent yesterday resting from an arduous automobile drive from St. Louis, Mo.

Johnny, who reflects his Demorest heritage in a better-than-six-foot frame which appears as sturdy as a Georgia oak, said, "there are only two clubs which appear not to have a chance in the race. They're Philadelphia and Boston. And Boston always is hard to beat. The big park makes it tough on hitters.

STARTED LATE.

"Tough clubs this season are going to be Cincinnati, Chicago, Pittsburgh, New York and Brooklyn. Yes, sir, everything points to a six-club race. We (St. Louis) would have been stronger contenders last season if we had started our drive sooner.

"I'd say the Cardinals have as good a chance as any of them. Ray Blades proved last year he's an exceptional handler of pitchers. Everything he did toward the end of the year was right. Why, he changed pitchers three times in one game and they gave up only two hits."

Mize hit a cool .349 to lead the National league in batting last season. Fact is, almost half his hits were for extra bases. His record includes 28 home runs, 14 triples and 43 doubles. He batted in 109 runs.

352 TOTAL BASES.

His slugging included 85 extra base hits and 352 total bases.

"Couldn't tell it by the weather here," Johnny Mize said yesterday as he visited his mother, Mrs. E. L. Mize, "but we'll be in training before another couple of weeks pass. We'll have just a week to get in shape at St. Petersburg before we play the Yankees. That's a pretty good assignment."

Mize already has come to terms with the Cards, signing at a nice increase, and he is looking forward to another good season.

He never has batted below .329 for the Cardinals. Last season, of course, was his best.

QUITE A STORY.

The story of Johnny Mize is a great one in baseball annals. No farther back than 1935 there was some question as to whether or not he ever would make the major league grade.

In 1935 John Mize was suffering from a strange hip ailment which affected his running. It was largely due to a calcium growth.

That winter he underwent an operation after the Cincinnati Reds sold him to St. Louis. The following spring he was as good as new. And that summer he batted .329.

In his fourth year with the Cards—1939—he won the National league batting championship going away.

As may be noticed in the accompanying picture, Johnny Mize has plenty of support in his baseball career. His charming wife is a St. Louis girl. His equally charming mother works in a local department store and naturally is an ardent follower of his career.

Mize expects to spend about a week in this locality. He will visit his grandmother at Demorest. And along about next Monday he'll start south for spring training.

The Cardinals will miss Atlanta on the spring exhibition schedule.

DEAN, CUB HEADS CONFER ON PRICE

Diz Demands $5,000 More Than Officials Figure He's Worth.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 19.—(AP) Dizzy Dean, the Chicago Cubs' No. 1 holdout, left Jackson at noon today in his car for Dallas, Texas, where he is expected to confer with officials of the National league baseball club relative to salary differences.

A sum of $5,000 is said to stand between the two parties to a 1940 contract, with Dean believed demanding $15,000 and the club officials standing pat around $10,000.

The former leading hurler of the National league, who has been instructing at a baseball school here, said recently he believed a satisfactory agreement could be reached on the negotiations.

If terms are reached at Dallas, Dean will head directly for the Cubs' spring training camp at Catalina island.

PADGETT BALKS.

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 19.—(AP) Don Padgett, big St. Louis Cardinals catcher, returned his unsigned 1940 contract to St. Louis yesterday and left for his home near Forest City, N. C., to await a new salary offer.

TECH PULLS BIG UPSET IN BEATING KENTUCKY, 44 TO 39

Grid Champs Revolt, Seek To Oust Coach

BOULDER, Colo., Feb. 19.—(UP)—Colorado University regents admitted tonight that the school's "Big Seven" championship football team had petitioned for the immediate discharge of Coach Bernard F. (Bunny) Oakes.

Staff members of the Silver and Gold, student publication, said the petition was signed by 35 players and, in 13 pages, made three specific charges against Oakes.

The charges were that he constantly violated the two-hour practice limit; kicked the players during practice sessions, and that players who resigned from the squad last season because of differences with Oakes lost jobs which were putting them through school.

The student reporters said the petition also alleged that Oakes played men not in good physical condition, did not give his squad a Christmas vacation before the Cotton Bowl game in 1937, and "did not consider the fact that his players were students and football is an extra-curricular activity."

Oakes, who was voted the "complete confidence" of the board of regents last October after his team lost three games, said merely: "I have no comment to make at this time."

He is under a five-year contract at $5,000 annually ending in 1942.

The petition was presented to the board at a secret session Friday. Three members of the squad testified.

Tech High, G. M. A. Play Feature Game

Commercial Plays at Columbus High in Another Big Seven Battle; Purples Idle.

By ROY WHITE.

Tech High, the league's leader, and G. M. A. will battle at 4 o'clock this afternoon on the College Park court in the feature game of the semifinal round of the Big Seven prep basketball race. The other big feature of the final week will be played Thursday night when Tech High battles Boys' High on the Henry Grady court.

Other games tonight include Commercial and Columbus High at Columbus and Jordan, of Columbus at Canton. Boys' High drew an open date and will practice for its most important game Thursday with the Smithies.

This afternoon's game at College Park may be one of the deciding issues of the race, for half game behind the Smithies are Boys' High and Columbus, waiting for Tech High to drop a game so the title will hang in a three-way tie, leaving Thursday and Friday's games to decide the winner.

Columbus on their own court will be a heavy favorite to beat Commercial, since the Typist haven't won a single game in 10 starts. So Columbus is certain to remain in the championship running along with the idle Purples.

G. M. A. and Boys' High have shown more improvement than any other teams in the league, and both are likely to figure materially in the final standings.

CADETS STRONGER.

Starting with only one veteran, Carl Anderson, back from last year, the Cadets have come along fast, winning three and losing seven games. Four of the seven losses have been by less than four points, so with a bit of experience in the pinches, the Cadets might have been well up in the running.

G. M. A. has the best defensive record in the league except for Boys' High in 10 games played, and are only 23 points ahead of Tech High's nine-game defensive record. The Cadets also are well up in the offensive race with 362 points, despite being held to 13 points, the lowest in the league in their opening game with Boys' High.

Tech High is six points behind G. M. A. offensively and leading defensively, but is likely to lose their defense record after today's game, with Boys' High taking the defensive lead.

The big battle of the final week in addition to jockeying for first and second positions, will be for runner-up position for individual scoring honors. Jim Homer, of Columbus, has that title already "in the baskets," with nearly 200 points in nine games, one of the highest averages ever made—almost 20 points per game.

JORDAN'S RAY SECOND.

Ray, of Jordan, has an inside track for second place at present but can easily be displaced.

Carl Anderson, G. M. A.'s veteran, has 108 points and is still in the running. Ed Cates is the Cadets' next best scorer with 96 points.

Jack Pounds tops Tech High's individual scoring race with 104 points, with Grady Ammons 30 points behind.

Following today's games, G. M. A. plays Monroe Aggies Wednesday afternoon at College Park in a practice game.

Tech High and Boys' High play Thursday night, and the season will end Friday with G. M. A. at Columbus. Commercial and Canton have played their last game and since Canton and Jordan have a postponed game they will likely play in a double-header at Columbus.

Tech High still has a postponed game with Commercial which likely is to be played next Monday afternoon, as the teams leave early Wednesday for Columbus and the annual G. I. A. A. tournament, starting next Wednesday night.

CLARK FAVORED IN CAGE MEET

Morris Brown, Clark and Morehouse College, Atlanta's representation in the Southern Inter-Collegiate Athletic Conference, will move on Tuskegee Thursday for the seventh annual basketball tournament to be held there this week. The tournament will start Thursday and last through Saturday.

Close observers who have watched the Negro teams perform expect one of the schools in this city to emerge victorious. Clark seems to be the best of the three outfits.

There is one club, however, that stands in the way of Clark winning their first crown and that is Xavier University who has won the crown for the past two years. Although the Panthers were able to sneak out a close victory over the New Orleans lads here, it was considered one of those games that could have gone either way.

CARLTON LEWIS IS JACKET STAR, GETS 12 POINTS

Wildcats Are Able To Forge Ahead Only Twice.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Georgia Tech's in-and-out cagers became "upset champions of 1940" last night and established themselves as one of the many dark horses in the annual Southeastern conference tournament with a hectic 44-to-39 victory over Kentucky.

As a crowd of 2,000 cheered madly as the wild, rough-house tactics of both teams in general and Kentucky in particular, the Jackets battled gamely, turned in their best game of the season and scored their second major upset in as many weeks.

Surprise winners over Duke's Southern conference leaders last week, the Jackets were given little chance against the Wildcats, perennial winners of the annual S. E. C. tournament. That is, no one gave Tech any chance but the Jackets themselves. They went out, stole the spotlight from the 'Cats and romped home with a well-deserved victory.

GOT LEAD TWICE.

Twice in the contest Kentucky managed to forge ahead. But it was just for seconds. The Jackets came back with a rush and grabbed the lead again. The Wildcats held a 17-16 advantage midway the first half and managed to go into a 31-30 lead just as the second period got under way.

It was the Jackets' fast-breaking offense and the unerring goal shooting of Carlton Lewis and Boneyard Johnson which featured the victory. Adolph Rupp's boys couldn't gather their defenses for the lightning-like down-court charges of the men of Gold and, at times, appeared a bit frantic, especially with Rupp, himself, sitting on the sidelines and attracting many spectators' attention by shouting pep-talks.

Lewis, dropped from the conference scoring leadership in last week's games, regained his eye for the bucket and sank 12 points. Johnson counted 11 times. Jim Hughes, Walter Haymans and Charlie Burroughs collected 7 points.

Farnsley High.

Keith Farnsley, Wildcat forward, led his team's scoring with 11 points. He was followed by Mickey Rouse with 9. Rouse also played a fine floor game.

The entire Jacket starting five, Haymans, Johnson, Hughes, Burroughs and Lewis played all the way. Burroughs was especially valuable to his team under the baskets.

The Wildcats were charged with 23 fouls, much to the chagrin of Rupp, who offered Tech's coach, Roy Mundorff, the Wildcat uniforms after the game. Tech committed nine offenses.

Kentucky's offense, built around long shots by guards designed to open up opponents' defense, failed mainly because the guards didn't hit enough to worry the Techs.

BURROUGHS BATTLES BLUE-GRASSERS—Charlie Burroughs (4), of Tech, is shown fighting with Ermal Allen (13) and Keith Farnsley (16), Kentucky forwards, for possession of the ball. It looks as if Burroughs is taking a poke at Allen, but, of course, it's just good clean fun and if he did hit him, it was purely accidental. Allen is remembered as the great little left halfback on the Wildcat football team last fall. Tech's surprising 44-36 victory closed its home season.

Clayton Rallies To Defeat Toccoa in Feature Game in State Cage Tourney.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

The annual Georgia state basketball tournament got underway at the Fulton High gym here last night with Clayton's Mountaineers coming from behind to defeat Toccoa's rangy quint, West Point trouncing the Marietta National Guards, 62 to 23, and Royston, Ga.'s fighting five scrapping to victory over the Atlanta "Y" triangles, 40 to 34.

Tonight four tough melees are in the offing with Lithonia and Ivy Drug Store, local Commercial league leaders, breaking the ice in the 6:30 opener. Royston will tangle with the Crimson Bulldogs (formerly Warren Reserves); West Point and Clayton, the two tallest entries in the meet will square off, and the Sears, Roebuck and Lithonia tilt, the feature fracas will wind up the festivities.

Toccoa's dogfight with the Clayton Mountaineers was last night's feature go. Toccoa led during the entire game, though the score was always close, until there were but 10 minutes to go, at which juncture goals by Derrick and Nichols gave Clayton a 35-32 lead. The count was knotted again at 42-42 with two and a half minutes remaining. From here Ashe found the range for two baskets, Derrick one and Duncan dumped in a foul in a dazzling finish that allowed the mountaineers to come off with the laurels, 48-42.

James Ashe and F. B. Derrick, with 18 and 14 points, paced the winner's attack, while lanky Charles Strickland basketed 13 counters for the loser's cause.

Tournament officials have been allowed by the National Amateur Basketball Congress to place the Atlanta Crackers in the national meet, beginning next Monday at the Henry Grady gym, without participation in the state meet. The Crackers were last year's champions, and automatically qualified for the national. Georgia thereby is assured two teams—the Crackers and the winner of the state meet—in the big meet next week. The Crackers voluntarily withdrew from the state meet to make the event a wide open affair.

SNEAD LEADING HOUSTON FIELD WITH 143 TOTAL

Heafner Second; Grant, Guldahl, McSpaden Tied.

HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 19.—(AP)—While the national open champion quit in disgust, Sammy Snead, the young West Virginia slammer, punctured par to take the second-round lead in the western open golf tournament today.

One of five men who came below par 71, Snead blew around the River Oaks course in 34-34—68.

He combined that with his 75 of yesterday for a 143 two-day total.

Slippery greens handicapped the players and Byron Nelson, the national champion and defending titleholder, gave up when he missed a two-foot putt on No. 10.

"I've missed 12 putts that I should have made in the last 28 holes," he groaned.

Snead birdied five holes, and sank numerous long putts, winding up at No. 18 by holing a 25-footer.

Alone in second place was Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C. A smooth 36-36—72 gave him a two-day total of 144.

Three men were tied for third place at 145—Ralph Guldahl, of Dallas, who won the title three years in a row before Nelson won it six months ago; Jack Grout, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Winchester (Mass.) pro, who won the Houston open over the same layout last year.

Tech High Delays Spring Drill Start

Tech High's football spring practice, scheduled to start Monday afternoon, has been postponed, due to unfavorable weather conditions.

Coach Sidney Scarborough has turned the spring drills over to Assistant Coaches Tom Alexander and Hub Dowis. Scarborough will continue with the basketball team and will then be in charge of baseball.

The football practice will start just as soon as the weather permits and will continue for five or six weeks, determined only by the progress of the team.

BEATS CAMPOLO.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 19.—(UP) Jack Marshall, of Dallas, Texas, ruined Valentin Campolo's United States heavyweight campaign tonight when he took an upset 10-round decision over the big Argentine invader at Laurel Gardens, after flooring Valentin several times.

KENTUCKY CLUB IN POOR SHAPE AFTER ILLNESS

Florida, Mississippi State, Mississippi Dangerous Contenders.

By KENNETH GREGORY.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The man in the brown suit says it's Tennessee or Georgia for the basketball championship of the Southeastern Conference.

A bit strange is it to hear the championship of this league discussed and Kentucky's Wildcats not rated in the contending ranks.

But, the man in brown should know, for he is Adolph Rupp, who teaches basketball to the Kentucky athletes, and he relates how influenza struck down a squad he expected to be the "best I ever had."

"Why," says the Wildcat skipper, "I thought that with the squad I had and the way we started out we would walk right through everything in this league. Flu hit us hard and for some weeks now our best team has been on the bench."

Kentucky defeated some good teams early in the campaign, principally Ohio State, Kansas State and Marquettee. In the conference the Wildcats won victories over Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi State, but turned around and lost to Alabama, Tennessee and Vanderbilt.

THE VICTIMS.

"Five boys of our squad of 10," Rupp points out, "were victims of flu. On our trip to Milwaukee to play Marquette we had to put two boys in a Chicago hospital. This flu leaves you in a weakened condition and I can't keep a good team in action. We just haven't a chance."

Rupp believes Tennessee will be tough to beat, remarking that the Volunteers will be playing on their home floor when the tournament starts at Knoxville, February 29, and adding that Coach Johnny Mauer's boys "have lots of physical qualities."

"I'm anxious to see what the outcome of that Tennessee-Georgia game Saturday night will be," says the Wildcat coach, whose teams have won three titles since 1933 and tied for another when no tournament was staged in 1935. "You may have the champion in the winner of that game."

Rupp says he has been reminded by several coaches that Florida has a fine ball club and may be one of the surprise teams of the tournament. He also thinks Mississippi and Mississippi State will be troublesome, adding that Mississippi State "gave us a good ball game recently."

Jennifer Tries to Buy Star's Silence With a Gift of Expensive Jewelry

By SYLVIA TAYLOR.

SYNOPSIS.

Star Bright is unhappy and diffident. Her slovenly mother, Mamie, divorced when Star was a child, constantly talks of "better days," and her stepfather, Joe Delevan, is mysterious about his driving a truck at night. Mamie has insisted upon dancing lessons for Star, her ambition being, as her child's name indicated, that Star should shine on the stage. Star makes no friends at high school as she cannot entertain anybody at home and when she graduates she is relieved when her stenography teacher sends her to Nina Lambert, novelist, who wants a secretary to live with her. Nina's son, Bob, just out of college, falls in love with Star and when he plans an early marriage Nina has Star bring her mother to dinner. Nina purposely serves too much champagne and Star feels disgraced by Mamie's conduct. Bob reassures her but she leaves secretly, fails to get a job and when Mamie refuses to help her except by letting Joe get her a stage job, she is tempted to leap from a yacht harbor pier. Milton Wood magazine business manager and a friend of Nina, stops her and gives her a job as typist, and she comes to idealize him so that she is shocked when she learns he is married and then sees his beautiful wife, Jennifer. Joe is killed by racketeering gangsters and Star must support Mamie. The next day Wood makes her his secretary and Mrs. Wood shows an intense dislike for her. That night, while out with boy friends from her boarding house, Star sees Jennifer with a sinister-looking man, who soon gets his check and they leave. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XIX.

Little did the girl suspect how difficult this resolution would prove. The following weeks were a test of her ability to keep it. Through her husband Jennifer made endless demands upon Star's time. Theater tickets had to be obtained during lunch hour, books and flowers chosen and sent to a friend in the hospital. Jewelry taken to be repaired. Not one task that the lady could not have done for herself, but if Milton suspected that any of these services were unusual, he did not mention it. Star performed them with care. Entrusted with Jennifer's pearls, she did not even eat until they were safely delivered.

Then the day came when Jennifer called over the telephone and asked Star to address envelopes for a cocktail party.

"I'll send them down by the chauffeur," she said haughtily. "There will be about a hundred."

Star was furious, but she replied sweetly, "Yes, Mrs. Wood."

That afternoon as she sat at her desk addressing the stack of invitations, her employer passed through her office.

"What are you doing?" he asked in surprise.

"Addressing the envelopes for your cocktail praty."

His face flushed. Then he said, "You have enough to do without that. Put them back in the box."

She looked at him distressed.

"But, Mr. Wood, I don't mind doing it, really. I'll do them after closing time tonight."

"You'll do nothing of the kind," he insisted. "You are not a social secretary. This is a business office."

"I don't want to offend Mrs. Wood," she reminded him.

"I'll take care of that," he assured her.

Star rejoiced inwardly, but she had never seen him so annoyed. He was often irritable and impatient, behaving as if his nerves were on edge. This time, however, his gloom lasted for several days. Star thought disconsolately, "She's making him pay for it. It isn't going to help any for her to know that he's taking my part."

But although Star dreaded the effect this might have upon Jennifer, the only visible result was an abrupt cessation of all requests.

Another week passed uneventfully. Star, working hard all day, stopping at night to see her mother, tumbled into bed too tired to think. Until that fateful afternoon when she met Jennifer Wood coming out of the apartment across the hall from Mamie's.

The furtive-eyed man with the dissipated looking face was with Jennifer. At sight of Star, her eyes flashed with both hatred and fear.

Star started to speak but before she could do so Jennifer tossed her head and swept down the hall as if she did not know her. Star opened her mother's door and went inside.

Mamie asked interestedly, "Didn't I hear the door across in No. 11?"

Star sank into a chair.

"Yes. Why?"

"I though I heard voices in there this afternoon. Did you see that woman with him? What did she have on?"

"A black suit and hat with a black veil."

"She's the same one that was here before. She always wears black and such swell clothes," Mamie said appreciatively.

Star's hands were cold. Her mouth felt dry. She was actually trembling from the shock. What was Milton Wood's wife doing in an apartment house like this? Coming here with a man whose cruel, cynical face reminded Star of Joe's, it was so evil.

"Some society dame stepping out on her husband," Mamie surmised with satisfaction.

Star scarcely heard. Jennifer had looked at her as if she wanted to kill her. "And now what?" Star thought fearfully. "What would Mrs. Wood do now?"

She had not long to wait. The very next morning while her husband was in conference with the other executives, Jennifer appeared in Star's office

"Mr. Wood is busy just now," Star said.

"I know it. I'll wait," Jennifer replied pleasantly.

Her face looked strained, but her smile was friendly. She held a jeweler's box in one gloved hand.

"Oh, by the way," she said, "I brought you a little present. You've done so many things for me lately that Milton tells me I've been making a perfect pest of myself."

Star's eyes, blue and accusing, did not flinch.

"I was glad to do anything I could, Mrs. Wood. I don't want anything in return."

Jennifer opened the box with hands which trembled visibly.

"This is one of my favorite bracelets," she said. "I should really like for you to have it."

Her tone, as falsely sweet as the one she used to wheedle her husband, sickened the girl, who replied, "Thank you very much, but I can't accept it."

"You can sell it," Jennifer urged in a low voice. "Those are real diamonds."

Star was so ashamed for Jennifer that the color flooded her face. Without even looking at the sparkling bauble, she shook her head.

"You haven't told him already?" the other woman cried.

"No," Star said, decisively.

"Well, then," Jennifer continued, drawing a breath of relief. "Not that this is a bribe. It's just after the bad start we've had I should like to be friends. You see I'm leaving for Europe in a few days. Perhaps my husband has asked you to make the reservations."

"He rasn't asked me to do anything for you lately," Star informed her.

"Please accept my farewell gift," coaxed Jennifer, "just to show that you have no hard feelings."

How frightened she must be to lower her pride to such an extent! But Star knew now she had the upper hand. She, not Jennifer, was in a position to make demands.

"He loves you so much," Star said simply. "I don't see how you can act like that."

The other's eyes widened. An angry flush stained her smooth cheeks.

"What's that to you?" she demanded.

When Star did not reply Jennifer snapped the case shut and returned it to her pocketbook.

"All right, let me tell you something. You may think you can hold this over me but after all you'd have a hard time proving anything. Look," she added with a desperate attempt to control her temper, "he won't believe you anyway, so why hurt him? I've been a bit foolish. Indiscreet, perhaps, but I have put this other person out of my life. I never intend to see him again. That's fair, isn't it? If you love my husband, and you need not try to deny it because I can see you do."

"I've no intention of denying it," Star said deliberately. "And I won't tell him, but from now on I shall feel perfectly justified in getting him away from you if I can."

Jennifer smiled.

"You can't win him from me unless you tell him what you saw at the apartment house. Even if you do you will suffer as much as I do. I advise you not to tell, Miss Bright, if you want to keep your job."

"He won't fire me," Star asserted defiantly. "And while it is true that he may never fall in love with me, if he does I shall certainly have no qualms about you."

"Other girls have tried it before you," Jennifer remarked, powdering her flawless nose. "But Milton Wood happens to be in love with me. He may play around with you while I'm gone, but don't be deceived by that. I shall always be the one to bear his name and share his bank account."

Star shrugged. Jennifer knew as well as she did that her words were a bluff. She would be wasting her time to try such a thing and if she did the first result would be the loss of her job. Nevertheless she did intend to do all she could to comfort him. No wonder he was so cross sometimes. His wife gave him no real affection. He must suspect that something was wrong. Star vowed that while Jennifer was in Europe she would become so indispensable to him that he would never let her go.

A dangerous game, and no one knew it better than the girl, who was for the first time in her life desperately in love. Nothing to be gained for herself but heartache and tears. The more she permitted herself to care for him the more vulnerable she would be to pain. She knew too well to believe that he would ever ask anything dishonorable of her, and there was no chance of marrying him. Jennifer would not be able to understand a love like that, but why bother to explain to her? Let her think anything she pleased. The fear of losing him might bring her to her senses—since bearing his name and sharing his bank account were still important to Jennifer.

Continued Tomorrow.

Your Own Horoscope for Feb. 20th

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—In the morning and until 1:32 p. m. favors working in old, established affairs, for dealing in real estate, or affairs pertaining to the ground. After 1:32 p. m. favors sports, educational matters, and ordinary business affairs.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—The day favors cautiousness and moderation. The day does not appear to favor new or important undertakings.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Previous to 7:43 p. m. favors working on sound affairs, dealings with conservative people. After 7:43 p. m. people may be somewhat disgruntled, so guard against flareups and dissensions.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—The entire day and evening favors continuation of work already started. After 6:24 p. m. move slowly in sports, finances and legal matters.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—Previous to 6:24 p. m. does not favor promoting friendships with important people and new beginnings may ooze out into futility. The best part of the day is previous to 11:45 a. m.

Aug. 23rd and Sept. 22nd (VIRGO)—Aggressiveness should be curbed during the entire day, but those things which require energy and enthusiasm may meet with splendid results.

Sept. 23rd and Oct. 22nd (LIBRA)—Plan to do work of a mental nature prior to 2:45 p. m. After 2:54 p. m. appears to incline towards delay, obstructions and loss.

Oct. 23rd and Nov. 21st (SCORPIO)—The influences operating throughout the entire day are likely to bring discontent, when affairs will slow down or hardly move at all.

Nov. 22nd and Dec. 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Today is an excellent day. Until 6:58 p. m. the day favors going ahead with courage and confidence, when you can advance your ambitions. After 6:58 p. m. your energies may be held somewhat in check, so the period does not favor new or important undertakings.

Dec. 22nd and Jan. 19th (CAPRICORN)—Between 6:59 a. m. and 8:09 p. m. favors aggressiveness in matters of business, finances, travel, dealings with relatives and in art. Contacts and conferences should bring unlooked-for success.

Jan. 20th and Feb. 18th (AQUARIUS)—Previous to 8:59 a. m. may be slow, depressing and filled with hinderances. After 8:59 a. m. does not favor changes, but sticking to things already started.

Feb. 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—New beginnings today should progress quickly. Agreements, promises, dealings with professional people, finances and educational interests can take new turns, and you should feel a renewed interest and vigor in such affairs, without feeling that you are being hampered.

BIG TOWN—Fighting the battle of "Big Town's" underprivileged boys, Edward G. Robinson, as "Steve Wilson," managing editor of the "Illustrated Press," will thwart a shady financial deal engineered by crooked politicians on the "Big Town" broadcast to be heard over WGST at 7 o'clock tonight.

Assisting Robinson will be Ona Munson, who plays the role of "Lorelei," his society editor.

CAVALCADE—Miss Ethel Barrymore will star in the story of Anne Royal and her fight in the early 1800's which will be the subject of an original radio drama to be broadcast on the Cavalcade of America program over WAGA at 8 o'clock tonight.

Had Anne Royal lived a century later, this pioneer woman journalist might have become the most famous woman editor in America instead of being tried as a common scold in a case without precedent in American law.

COURT—Heirs to fortunes totalling many thousands of dollars will be sought on the "Court of Missing Heirs" during its broadcast to be heard over WGST at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

The cases dramatized are real-life stories taken from probate court files all over the country.

INFORMATION—Oliver La Farge, explorer, anthropologist and Pulitzer prize winning author will become an "Information Please" expert during the broadcast to be heard over WAGA at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

The program also will feature the regulars, John Kieran, Franklin P. Adams, and Clifton Fadiman, together with the irrepressible erudite, Oscar Levant, music man and author.

COLGATE COMPANY PROFITS INCREASE

Sales in 1939 Reach All-Time High.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co. reported today profit in 1939 of $6,632,654, equal to $2.74 a common share, compared with $4,921,-921, or $1.77 a share in 1938.

E. H. Little, president, in his report to stockholders, said sales of $101,935,438 were the highest in the company's history and topped the previous high of $100,-565,165 in 1929 by $1,370,273. The 1939 profit was the highest since 1931, he said.

In a further step in a retirement and refunding program, stockholders will vote on March 15 on a proposal to replace 125,-000 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock with new stock carrying a dividend rate not in excess of 4 1-2 per cent. In the past year the company has retired with treasury funds a total of $10,805,-000 of its 6 per cent preferred.

MARSHALL FIELD ROBBED.

$4,000,000 MORE URGED FOR INSANE

Hospital Head Says That Much Needed; Present Program Speeded.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Feb. 19.—(AP)—With the $4,000,000-plus building program nearing completion at the state hospital, Dr. John W. Oden, superintendent, said today another $4,000,000 should be spent to provide really adequate facilities for Georgia's 7,000 mentally ill.

The population of the hospital, he added, now is housed in dilapidated dormitories ample for only 5,000. More room and more modern quarters are needed, Dr. Oden asserted.

The prison superintendent described some of the dormitories as ramshackle, prison-like buildings erected when the institution was established 98 years ago as the "state lunatic asylum." Some are frame wards, cold and damp in winter. Window panes in others are missing.

An estimate that $10,000,000 instead of something more than $4,-000,000 should be spent to provide adequate facilities was released by the hospital authority created by the 1939 general assembly to direct the building program.

Five huge new buildings, to be ready for occupancy by summer, are included in the present program. Regarded as the greatest improvement is a modern tubercular unit, where nearly 700 patients can be given special care and treatment.

This unit, with the other new construction, includes 15 acres of floor space, more than three miles of corridors, 21 elevators, and enough pipe to extend from Milledgeville through Macon to Forsyth.

Each floor will have a dining room—34 in all—so patients will not have to take the risk of moving up and down stairways at mealtime.

Special valves in the new bathrooms will protect patients from scalding or drowning themselves.

SHORTAGE IS LAID TO POSTAL AIDE

Augustan Sought in $4,000 Embezzlement.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 19.—(AP) Alleged shortage of Assistant Postmaster James M. Raley, charged with embezzlement, was estimated at about $4,000 today by Charles M. Shannon, United States postoffice inspector, who issued a warrant for Raley's arrest.

Meanwhile, officers continued a fruitless search for Raley, who has been missing since last Thursday. An effort to determine his whereabouts was begun at the request of his son, A. B. Raley.

The warrant for Raley's arrest was forwarded to the office of M. C. Walthour, United States marshal at Savannah, for certification.
